Tape Demands Can Wait, Nixon Tells House Panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Tuesday told the House Judiciary Committee its demands for 41 additional presidential tapes for its impeachment inquiry would have to wait until after the Easter congressional recess.

A Democratic member of the committee immediately denounced Nixon's action as "contemptuous" of the impeachment investigation, and said the tapes must be subpoenaed.

The committee, which had given the White House until Tuesday to decide whether the tapes would be yielded voluntarily, says it must have the tapes to conduct a thorough investigation into whether grounds exist to impeach Nixon.

The letter from Nixon's Watergate lawyer, James D. St. Clair, delivered by hand to the committee, did not say whether the tapes would be turned over. In fact, the letter did not specify tapes—only mentioning "materials in question."

The House will return from Easter recess on April 22. St. Clair's letter said that Nixon "has directed me to advise you that a review of the materials in question is underway. We expect that the review can be completed by the end of the Easter recess, and that the additional materials furnished at that time will permit the committee to complete its inquiry promptly."

The letter seemed to be a sharp setback for the committee, which has indicated it will subpoena the tapes if necessary. The White House did not request the delay, it dictated it.

Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., immediately urged the tapes be subpoenaed because "the President has refused to cooperate with the committee."

"We should no longer tolerate his contemptuous attitude toward those seeking the truth of his conduct of his office. We must now subpoena all evidence we require," he added.

White House sources said that although the committee had set Tuesday as the deadline for the tapes, they were not yet in the hands of the committee.

Two Incumbents Fall In Anaheim

By MARJORIE FREEMAN

ANAHEIM — Two incumbents lost their seats in elections here Tuesday and a charter amendment passed for direct election of the mayor.

In unofficial final results incumbent W.J. "Bill" Thom, with 11,618 votes, scored a runaway victory, closely followed by John Seymour, 11,476 and Miriam Kaywood, 8,994. Incumbent Mark Stephenson and Mayor Jack Dutton placed fourth and seventh in the field of 11.

Thom, the only candidate for mayor, drew 11,242 votes. The score for the amendment was 12,218 and against 8,126.

However, Thom's taking his seat as councilman or taking office as mayor is jeopardized by a suit threatened by Cal. State, Fullerton, professor Lou Baca. Baca, charging fraud and conspiracy, is to meet with his attorneys today to map strategy for taking the issue to court before the new council meets Tuesday.

Thom, Seymour and Kaywood, who ran as a slate, reportedly owed their success to

Oil Tanker Explodes; 9 Missing

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A tanker that had pumped off most of its 200,000 barrels of heavy asphalt oil from Venezuela exploded at dockside and foundered in the Delaware River Tuesday night. At least one crewman was killed and nine were missing.

A Coast Guard vessel, fighting the blaze that destroyed 100 feet of the dock and endangered other ships in the vicinity, was reported to have caught fire. The Navy sent two fire-fighting boats to the scene.

The tanker, believed to be the Greek registry Elias chartered by the Atlantic-Richfield Oil Co. (ARCO), settled to the bottom of the river and was still burning at midnight.

Substantial damage was reported done to the ARCO building nearby.

The Philadelphia Fire Department, which had 125 men fighting the blaze, said the tanker carried a crew of 37.

Thirteen crewmen were injured and were taken to St. Agnes, Methodist and Philadelphia Naval hospitals. One woman, a member of the crew, was in critical condition at St. Agnes and another person was said to be in critical condition at Philadelphia Naval.

Fourteen of the crewmen were on shore leave and were accounted for.

The 31,000-ton tanker had tied up Monday at the Fort Mifflin Marine Depot and oil company officials said most of the cargo

2 Tustin Area Boys Electrocuted In River

PARKER, Ariz.—Two Tustin area youths died here Tuesday afternoon, apparently of electric shock received when they dived into the Colorado River adjacent to a swimming dock.

They were identified by a spokesman at the Parker Funeral Home as Karl Siegel, 16, of 12881 Bubbling Wells Rd., Santa Ana, and Mark Sweeney, 17, of 1201 SE Walnut Ave., Tustin.

The mortician said Siegel was pronounced dead on arrival at Parker Community Hospital and that Sweeney died a short time after reaching the same hospital.

The mortuary spokesman said he had scanned the sheriff's report and said electric shock apparently was involved in the deaths. He said, however, an autopsy was scheduled for this morning.

A relative of Karl Siegel said Tuesday night the boys had gone to the river on Friday for a holiday outing and were staying with relatives on the California side.

The relative said the boys were in a boat and had crossed the river to the Arizona side. The mortuary spokesman said the boys were alongside a swimming dock about five miles north of here and that one of them dived into the river.

"When he didn't surface, the other boy dived in. When neither boy surfaced, a third youth, unnamed, put a toe in the water preparatory to attempting a rescue."

"He felt a surge of electricity," the spokesman said, "and called out to shut off the current at the dock."

The spokesman said an adult aided the third youth in locating and retrieving the bodies. "The Sweeney boy still had a pulse when he reached the hospital," the spokesman said, "but they were unable to bring him around." He said the boys reached the hospital at 3:05 p.m.

Siegel was the son of Gary and Judy Siegel. He attended Tustin High School last semester and recently was enrolled in a private school in the San Diego area.

There was no explanation available as to the cause or origin of the electrical charge which the third youth reported. Deputies with the Yuma County Sheriff's substation here refused to divulge any information about the deaths. Calls were referred to the commanding officer of the sheriff's station at Yuma, where a spokesman said the commander was off duty.

FBI Says Hearst Case Could Break 'Any Time'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The FBI agent in charge of the Patricia Hearst kidnapping investigation said Tuesday "something could happen at any time" in the case.

Special Agent Charles W. Bates said no restrictions had been placed on the FBI by Patricia's family.

"Our investigation in this case, as in any case where there is a victim, a hostage, our first concern is for the individual's safety and welfare and it is in this case," said Bates, who has directed the investigation since Patricia was kidnapped Feb. 4.

"Now we are conducting our investigation as aggressively as we can, considering all the facts we have. I don't have any information that would indicate anything specific as of right at the moment, but I know that with the type of investigation we're conducting, something could happen at any time."

Bates' remarks came after U.S. Attorney General William Saxbe said in Washington: "Now the lid is off, I think we are going to see some results."

Attorney Vincent Hallinan, who represents a convict he describes as the founder of the Symbionese Liberation Army, called the SLA kidnapers of the 20-year-old newspaper heiress "hard criminals."

Hallinan, who also is a trustee of the $4 million Hearst food ransom, complained that since he offered his services as an intermediary with the SLA last week he has "not heard a word from them."

"If they had anything to negotiate they would have made contact," he said.

"Hearst and I worked very hard together to get the FBI to lay off so we could negotiate her release," Hallinan said. "Now the longer it goes the more I feel the girl is not alive. I don't believe she joined the SLA, or anything like that."

Patricia's father, Randolph A. Hearst, and her mother, Catherine, have gone to Mexico for a rest after two months of attempting to arrange the girl's release through a $2 million free food program and the pledge of another $4 million once she is freed.

Although Saxbe indicated he feels the FBI has an implied go-ahead from the Hearst family to go all out to seize the abductors, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said Tuesday the agency is going to continue to try to get Patricia home unharmed.

"Actually our tactics will not change a bit," he said.

In St. Paul, Minn., Dennis Banks, leader of the American Indian Movement, said he expects a break in the Hearst case soon.

Banks has said he is

Teachers' Union Fined $50,000 In KC Strike

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The striking Kansas City Federation of Teachers was fined $50,000 Tuesday and its president, Norman Hudson, sentenced to 10 days in jail for a 23-day strike which has shut down the city's schools.

Jackson County Circuit Court Judge Alvin C. Randall imposed the sentences after ruling the union and its president in contempt of his orders to end the strike under Missouri law prohibiting walkouts by public employees.

But in a move to encourage a settlement, Randall said that only $10,000 of the fine must be paid immediately and suspended Hudson's sentence for 10 days.

He said that if the school board produces no evidence in the next six months that teachers had again violated the back-to-work order, the remaining $40,000 fine would be dropped.

Hudson was released on $1,000 personal recognizance bond. The strike has shut down classes for 62,000 students.

Campaign Bill Filibuster Ends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate supporters of public financing of federal election campaigns Tuesday won by a one-vote margin their bid to shut off debate and speed the measure to a vote.

The Senate voted 64 to 30 for cloture, the Senate's gag rule, which requires approval of two-thirds of those present and voting for passage.

An earlier bid to shut off the filibuster which has kept the Senate tied up since March 27 failed by four votes.

Under Senate rules, amendments pending prior to the invoking of cloture may be called up and voted on, but not debated, prior to a final vote on the bill itself.

The rules also provide that each member may speak on the bill for an hour, if he chooses, prior to the final vote. This could mean a possible 100 hours more of debate, but it was expected that very few senators would exercise that right.

Mansfield, leader of the anti-filibuster forces, said that because of the breakthrough on the campaign bill, the Senate probably could quit for Easter on Thursday instead of Friday, as originally scheduled.

It was only the 17th time since the Senate enacted its extended debate rule 57 years ago that the Senate had voted to invoke cloture.

The last time was just a month ago when debate was halted March 6 on a bill to permit congressional pay raises.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., had charged that "dishonesty, cheating and law violations" would only get worse if the measure became law, and called for the measure to be "consigned to the lower regions as quickly as possible."

Aiken, whose last campaign cost $17.09, said he would vote to shut off debate Tuesday so he could vote to kill the bill. Aiken voted against cloture last time. Opponents of the bill, which contains a provision for financing federal elections with tax dollars, have been filibustering against it since debate

Thief In White Raids Lockers At 2 Hospitals

HUNTINGTON BEACH — A young man dressed in a white laboratory coat walked calmly through a locker room at Huntington Intercommunity Hospital Tuesday morning and stole $400 from the belongings of hospital employees.

Then, according to one report he asked directions to Fountain Valley Community Hospital, where he carried off a similar theft.

The white lab coat and the thief's air of confidence apparently were the reasons he completed the thefts without a hitch, according to Dick Grundy, administrator at Huntington Intercommunity Hospital.

"He got into some strange places, such as our coronary unit, where the nurses shooed him out," said Grundy. "He appeared to be knowledgeable about hospitals and was able to walk around without attracting attention."

Grundy said employees at the hospital wear blue identification badges on their lab coats, but he added that new employees do not receive the badges immediately and the intruder could easily have been mistaken for a new employee.

"We called all the neighboring hospitals to warn them, but by then he had already been to

GROWERS' LEADER WARNS

'Cheap Food Era Gone Forever'

By TOM EICHHORN
Register Staff Writer

Now that federal price controls have been lifted from food products, housewives can expect fewer shortages but continued rising prices, a group of California agricultural representatives said Tuesday.

"The era of cheap foods has gone," said O.W. Fillerup, executive vice president of the Council of California Growers.

Preventing a return to cheaper food prices, Fillerup said, are the rising costs of labor and fuel and increased worldwide demand for meat, grain and produce.

Meat prices still are gyrating from the effects of last year's price controls which, economists said, threw the marketplace law of supply and demand out of kilter.

Beef prices currently are "low" because consumers aren't buying as much. But Fillerup said the supply will adjust to this demand by fall, with an accompanying increase in prices.

Robert Hartzell, deputy director of the State Department of Food and Agriculture, predicted that housewives will buy fewer items of processed foods as prices rise due to increased labor and packaging costs.

"Processed foods are less en-and vegetables," he said.

"Consumers probably will find they can feed themselves cheaper and better by using fewer highly prepared foods—going back to peeling potatoes again."

Fillerup and Hartzell were interviewed during a visit to The Register's news offices along with Lloyd Eveland of Woodland, president of the Council of California Growers; Ted Shields, public relations director for the California Milk Advisory Board; and John Knechel, head of the Bank of America's agri-business analysis division in San Francisco.

The state's agricultural industry is feeling the pinch of the energy crisis despite the Federal Energy Office's vow to give farmers all the fuel and oil they need, they said.

Higher petroleum prices are passed on to farmers and manufacturers of fertilizers produced from oil.

But Hartzell said two related industries needed by the state's food producers were omitted from the favored list—herbicide and pesticide manufacturers and contract truckers who haul the farmers' products to market.

And now, Hartzell added, the FEO has proposed removing the state's wine grape vine-posed by both state officials and the wine industry.

Last year's grape crop, including grapes for produce and raisins as well as for wine, totaled $700 million—making it one of the state's top money-making crops.

Meanwhile, the state's olive, strawberry and Valencia orange growers are concerned that migrant farm workers won't have enough gas to travel to different areas or that high gasoline prices might discourage their travel.

Plot To Kidnap U.S. Consul In Juarez Told

JUAREZ, Mexico (UPI)—The September 23rd League, the Mexican terrorist group suspected of kidnapping U.S. vice consul John Patterson, also planned to kidnap the U.S. consul in Juarez, a Mexican official said Tuesday.

Antonio Quezada Fornelli, attorney general of the Mexican state of Chihuahua, said the plot was not carried out or attempted. The diplomat, Goodwin Shapiro, 50, and his wife and 14-year-old daughter were safe Tuesday in the neighboring city

Despite recent increases in milk prices, Shields said further price hikes are needed because dairymen are caught in a price squeeze due to rising costs of labor and feed grain. Although federal price controls were removed, milk prices continue to be regulated by the State Department of Food and Agriculture, which sets maximum and minimum prices under the milk stabilization acts of 1935 and 1937.

"California's milk prices are still the lowest in the United States. That's one of our problems," Shields said.

The cost of feed, grain and hay have doubled since late 1972, Shields said, and now account for 85 per cent of the dairy farmer's overhead.

While asserting that shortages of milk are possible, Shields viewed this as unlikely "if we get a fair return to the farmer."

Meanwhile, said Knechel, grain prices have begun to taper off, but still will remain high.

He attributed the turnabout to the world's grain-producing nations gearing up to meet the ever-increasing worldwide demand.

Knechel scoffed at comments by bakers' union officials that Americans may be faced with wheat and bread shortages.

Orange County Election Results

Turnout in five Orange County city elections Tuesday was low. Only about 25 per cent of the voters recorded their preferences.

Fifty candidates sought 16 open seats on city councils in Anaheim, Placentia, Newport Beach, Los Alamitos and Huntington Beach.

Four incumbents were upset, including Jack Dutton and Mark Stephenson in Anaheim, and Joe Hyde and Charles Heiser in Los Alamitos.

Also in Anaheim a city charter amendment to elect the mayor by popular vote passed, and councilman W.J. Thom was elected to that position.

ANAHEIM
(Council, Three Seats)
Unofficial final results—W.J. Thom 9,048; John Seymour 8,961; Mariam Kaywood 6,955; Mark Stephenson 4,846; Donald Roth 4,636; Glenn Fry 4,277; Jack Dutton 3,377; Vivian Petros 2,285; Joe Conrad 1,667; Madeleine Jensen 952 and David Doering 348.
City Charter amendment—Yes 9,539; No 5,412
Mayor—W. J. Thom 8,773.

HUNTINGTON BEACH
Three incumbents running for the city council apparently were re-elected Tuesday, along with a newcomer.

Incumbents Ted W. Bartlett, Alvin M. Coen and Norma B. Gibbs retained their seats. Harriet M. Wieder, an environmental advisor, won the seat vacated by Councilman Jack Green, who did not seek re-election. Alicia Wentworth recaptured her post as city clerk, beating three challengers. City Attorney Donald Bonfa was unopposed.

Guns Blaze Across Golan Heights Area

By United Press International
Artillery and tank fire slammed across the Golan Heights-truce line Tuesday for the 29th day and Syria said its troops had resumed the battle with Israeli forces for positions on strategic Mt. Hermon.

In Damascus, government sources said a Syrian delegation departed for Washington to discuss troop disengagement on the heights with U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. Arab press reports said three hills overlooking the occupied town of Quneitra may hold the key to the success or failure of the U.S.-sponsored indirect talks with Israel.

Neither side reported any casualties in the fighting Tuesday.

A Syrian military communiqué said the skirmishing on the slopes of 9,000-foot Mt. Hermon resumed at dawn while the exchanges of artillery and tank fire began a short time later. It said the artillery duels started "when the enemy tried to strengthen its forward positions."

Jordan's King Hussein held a day of talks with President Hafez Assad of Syria in Damascus to coordinate policy in the drive for a Middle East peace settlement, officials sources reported. The meeting followed two days of similar talks Hussein held with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Alexandria last week. No details of the talks were disclosed as Hussein flew back to Amman.

PLACENTIA
L. Jack Gomez, incumbent councilman for 12 years, shared his victory Tuesday night with George DeJesus, a city planning commissioner for more than six years.

Less than 25 per cent of the city's registered voters cast their ballots.

(Council, Two Seats)
Unofficial final results—George DeJesus 1,701; L. Jack Gomez 1,643; Joshua White 906; Donald Holt 832; Walter Plegel 801; Robert Davis 750; and Jack Harrington 93.
Unopposed for city clerk—Edmund Ponce.

NEWPORT BEACH
Two incumbents, a woman and a real estate broker, were elected Tuesday in city council balloting which drew only 27 per cent of the registered voters.
Returned to office in District One was two-term incumbent Howard Rogers, while Milan Dostal won a second term in District Four. J. Peter Barrett, former president of the Newport Harbor-Costa Mesa Board of Realtors, was chosen to represent District Three, and personnel analyst Lucille Kuehn beat three other candidates in District Six.

(Council, Four Seats)
Unofficial final results—District One: Howard Rogers 5,032 and Teg Forgit 3,997. District Three: J. Peter Barrett 4,288; Ellis R. Glazier 2,849; and John J. McKeen 2,051. District Four: Milan M. Dostal 5,706 and Lyn C. Geronimi 3,238. District Six: Bill Agee 3,145; John Baker 877; Lucille Kuehn 4,531.

Proposition One—Yes 6,791; No 1,223. Proposition Two—Yes 4,963; No 2,394. Proposition Three—Yes 2,614; No 4,477. Proposition Four—Yes 5,319; No 2,419. Proposition Five—Yes 3,011; No 5,653.

Nixon Vows To Trim Red Tape To Aid Xenia Tornado Victims

XENIA, Ohio (UPI)—President Nixon Tuesday toured this shattered southern Ohio city where a tornado killed 35 persons last week, calling the destruction the worst he has seen, but predicting the area "will come back."

He promised to trim red tape and put the full weight of the government into an effort to rebuild and to aid victims.

Nixon May Put 2 Towns On Map

BAD AXE, Mich. (UPI)—President Nixon may put two Michigan towns on the map today when he visits this generally overlooked region.

On his motorcade itinerary are Ivanhoe and Popple, two villages not even included on official state maps.

Also along the 50-mile motorcade route are six other villages so small they do not even have either local governments. Most of them consist of a single gas station or general store.

But in the three towns Nixon will visit during his first people-to-people foray since Watergate broke, citizens are excitedly preparing for one of the biggest events of their lifetimes.

"It's going to be the greatest holiday we'll ever see," said farmer Al Hordos in Bad Axe.

great," Nixon told tornado victims lined up in a school gymnasium applying for aid. "It will come back."

"This is the worst devastation I've seen in a small area and I've seen the earthquake in Anchorage (Alaska), the devastation of Hurricane Camille and Hurricane Agnes in Pennsylvania," said the President.

A tornado killed 35 persons, injured about 1,000, destroying 1,095 homes in this city of 25,000 last week, cutting a 15-mile long path of destruction. Authorities say up to 30 persons are still unaccounted for.

Nixon flew here with top aides and disaster officials for a personal inspection, he said he hoped would emphasize to federal agencies involved in disaster relief of the need to cut out paperwork and speed aid for the victims.

Nixon's helicopter touched down about 1:45 p.m. at Shawnee Elementary School after an aerial inspection of the damage. Inside the school, Nixon talked to victims standing in line at tables where relief agencies were taking applications for unemployment benefits, food stamps and other relief.

The President was driven in a motorcade through areas of destruction, concentrating on schools, Nixon often stopped to shake hands with people and ask about their situation.

"I can assure you in Xenia that it gives us, coming from Washington, all encouragement," he said. "The spirit of Xenia is magnificent. It will come back. It is on its feet spiritually."

Police 'Misbehavior' Charged In Irvine

IRVINE—An angry group of homeowners faced the city council Tuesday night to protest the alleged misbehavior of police in the March 27 drug bust here.

James Spring, attorney, told the council he represented a group of citizens who want the council to investigate allegations that two undercover officers solicited minors to use drugs prior to the arrests.

In the raid police from Costa Mesa, Tustin, Fountain Valley, and the Drug Enforcement Administration arrested 96 persons on warrants.

Of the total, 70 were juveniles and 26 were adults.

Allegations by Spring included one that undercover officers also furnished narcotics and alcoholic beverages to minors, and another that a female officer organized a party which later was raided by police.

Irvine contracts with the Costa Mesa police for law enforcement.

Spring also told the council "it is a continuing policy of the police to stop and harass Irvine probable causes."

The raid was planned and designed to obtain maximum publicity for the police "without regard to the prejudicial effect such publicity might have in later court actions," Spring said.

Several residents Tuesday night complimented the police and the city council "for the courage to face up to the juvenile problems and for making Irvine the wonderful place it is."

MITCHELL-STANS DEFENSE

Objections Halt Stone Testimony

NEW YORK (UPI)—Federal Court Judge Lee P. Gagliardi Tuesday altered the course of defense testimony in the Mitchell-Stans conspiracy trial by excluding the appearance of one scheduled witness and threatening the exclusion of several others who were big contributors to the 1972 Nixon Re-Election Campaign.

Prosecution objections, sustained by Gagliardi, to questions asked W. Clement Stone, a Chicago insurance tycoon who gave a record $2 million contribution, confined specific testimony about his gift to the answer of only one question. He was not even allowed to tell the size of his donation.

A defense attorney, Robert W. Barker, asked for a brief dismissal of the jury while he explained to the judge:

"If Stone is allowed to answer, he will state that he considered it a once-in-a-lifetime chance to support a president he admired and that he never requested or expected anything in return but good government."

"It's important for the jury to know that people are willing to make substantial contributions, and it was in this atmosphere that (Maurice H.) Stans was working. It's been made to appear in this courtroom that $200,000 could buy the country."

Former U.S. Attorney General John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Stans, who headed the 1972 re-election campaign, are being tried on charges of conspiring to block a Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) investigation of financial manipulator, Robert L. Vesco, in return for a secret $200,000 cash contribution.

Another defense lawyer, Walter Bonner, informed Gagliardi that he intended to call other big givers—John Mulcahy of New York who gave $600,000, Richard Mellon Scaife of Pittsburgh, $1 million, and Max Fisher of Detroit, $250,000—but that it seemed "futile" in the light of the judge's rulings in regard to Stone's testimony.

"They will testify they never asked for or received any reward for their contributions," Bonner said. "Because of this, Maurice Stans' state of mind was such that he didn't expect Vesco expected anything from him. It is very important to establish this."

been aware sooner of the one-candidate election and limitations on eligibility to run for the office of mayor, "we could have beaten this thing into the ground."

During a telephone barrage against the amendment that began Thursday, Baca said, "the people we telephoned were overwhelmingly against it when we got through explaining what the amendment entailed. They all had thought it a free election in which they could vote for whomever they wanted. I think the 'no' figure would have been much lower if we hadn't telephoned."

Under the amendment, candidates for mayor are limited to councilmen who have held that office for two years prior to the election.

City attorney Alan Watts, whose office drafted the amendment, told the council he could argue its constitutionality "either way."

Gagliardi replied that the state of mind of other contributors will not be admissible.

Earlier, one-time Nixon Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Robert Finch, testified that in reconsidering policy on anonymous campaign gifts, Stans had mentioned that fund raisers for campaigns of candidates for the Democratic nomination were following the same policy as the Finance Committee for the Re-election of the President, which Stans headed.

Bonner told Gagliardi that he intended to call the former campaign manager of one of the Democrats, Sen. Edmund Muskie, to establish that Stans followed "accepted practices, not fraudulent practices" in not disclosing Vesco's gift. Gagliardi excluded the witness on grounds his testimony would not be relevant.

Yablonski Was Close Friend, Boyle Testifies

MEDIA, Pa. (UPI)—Former United Mine Workers union president W. A. (Tony) Boyle, describing slain union reformer Joseph A. Yablonski as his "close friend," took the witness stand in his own defense Tuesday and denied he ordered Yablonski's killing.

Boyle flatly denied through a stiff cross-examination that he arranged for Yablonski's killing in 1969 after Yablonski challenged him in the union elections.

The 72-year-old former UMW president is accused of masterminding the plot to kill Yablonski and of arranging to pay three hired killers with union funds.

Asked by defense attorney Charles F. Moses if he had anything to do with the killings, Boyle replied, "absolutely not." Asked if he knew Yablonski, Boyle said he did, and added: "As the years went by he and I became very close friends."

Boyle also said he "certainly did not" discuss killing Yablonski with district union officials Albert Pass or William J. Turnblazer.

Turnblazer testified Monday he met with Boyle and Pass in the hallway outside the UMW board room after a board meeting on June 23, 1969 and Boyle said: "We're in a fight. We've got to kill Yablonski or take care of him."

Boyle denied the meeting ever took place.

MEIR'S GOVERNMENT 'COULD TOPPLE'

Cabinet Crisis Centers On Dayan Ouster

TEL AVIV (UPI)—Leaders of the ruling Labor party met Tuesday in urgent efforts to resolve a cabinet crisis centering on demands for the ouster of Defense minister Moshe Dayan that could topple Prime Minister Golda Meir's government, political leaders said.

"If I were Moshe Dayan, I think the best thing for me to do would be for me to resign," Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir said at a meeting of the party's Mapai faction, its biggest.

"This has to come to a head by Thursday," said Aryeh Eliav, another Mapai member.

The calls for Dayan's resignation to accept blame for Israel's lack of readiness for the October war came amid calls by other Mapai cabinet ministers for the government to resign and new elections held.

"The government should announce on Thursday its resignation and new elections," the national radio quoted Police Minister Shlomo Hillel as saying at the meeting.

"The only route is for the government to resign," Agricultural Minister Haim Givati said.

Sapir disagreed, the radio said.

"I think the government doesn't need to resign because if it were to do this it would not be able to reconstitute itself," he said.

The majority of Mapai members agreed with Sapir and said the cabinet should be reshuffled, without Dayan.

The Knesset parliament was scheduled to convene Thursday when the government faces an opposition no-confidence motion on the report of a special commission blaming top army commanders for Israel's lack of preparedness for the October war.

Release of the report April 2 sparked the crisis because it cleared Mrs. Meir and Dayan. The issue centers on whether the entire cabinet or only Dayan should design to take political responsibility for failing to anticipate the Arab surprise attack Oct. 6.

Eliav, a superdove and former Labor party secretary general who long has been at odds with Dayan, said in a radio interview, he favored ousting the defense minister, the resignation of the government and new elections. But the majority of Mapai members want only a cabinet reshuffle.

Egypt Seeks Soviet Thaw

CAIRO (UPI)—Egyptian officials Tuesday discounted reports of an Egyptian-Soviet summit meeting in the near future but said Egypt is seeking a thaw in bilateral relations severely strained in recent months.

They said the designation of a high caliber Egyptian diplomat as ambassador to Moscow, and projected talks in New York between Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko were part of Cairo's efforts for improved relations.

A report in the Cairo weekly magazine Rose El Youssef Sunday said an Egyptian-Soviet summit was planned in Cairo within the next few weeks.

Ex-Official's $1 Million Damage Claim Denied By LA City Council

LOS ALAMITOS — A $1 million claim for damages by Jesse DeLeon, former director of public works for the city, has been denied in a 3-1 vote by the council.

DeLeon was discharged Nov. 1, 1973 by City Manager Mike Graziano. He had been on sick leave since experiencing chest pains on Aug. 24, 1973.

The claim by DeLeon charges that the city used "discriminatory and unlawful practices" in firing him.

Councilmen Joe Hyde and Charles Heiser joined Mayor Bill William Brown in voting to deny DeLeon's claim with Councilman Ken Miller casting the dissenting vote. Councilman Charles Long abstained.

DeLeon appeared before the council later in the meeting, at a time set aside for the public to inquire why his request for a public hearing on the discharge, which he said was hand delivered in November, had not been acted on. Graziano said he had not received any such request until last Thursday (44) and it was currently being studied by the city attorney.

Requests for such hearings, by law, should be submitted within 10 days of discharge.

DeLeon in a telephone interview the next day said he felt his heart attack in August was a result of the considerable pressure he had been under to resign. He attributed such pressure and the belief by some that he had played a part in the firing in October 1972 of then city manager, Bill Kraus.

DeLeon denied that he played any part in events leading the firing of Kraus.

DeLeon originally lost his position as director of public works during a reorganization last August in which the building, planning and public works departments were combined into the Department of Public Services. Ronald Eggertsen, a Brea city planner, was brought into head up the new department.

Under the reorganization, DeLeon was offered a lower paying job as a street maintenance lead man.

A letter sent by Graziano to the council at the time of the discharge listed three factors which led to the discharge.

According to the letter, DeLeon had not accepted or rejected the new position offered him in less than 45 days and had not furnished adequate reasons for being on sick leave. In addition, attempts to contact him to settle the problem had been to no avail, the letter said.

Though reluctant to discuss the details of the firing, Graziano has denied that the action was motivated by council pressure.

LAFC Meeting Today; Nevil To Test Ruling

CYPRESS—Councilman Robert Harvey has criticized Councilwoman Alice Frankiewicz for not telling the rest of the council about a luncheon she attended two days before the dismissal of a Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFC) member.

City representatives attending the luncheon at a restaurant in Orange have come under fire from Supervisor Ralph Diedrich, who claims the decision to oust La Habra Councilman Robert Nevil from LAFC was made at that "secret meeting" prior to a League of Cities meeting.

The county counsel has ruled that the action last week by the League's selection committee removing Nevil was illegal since there was no 30-day notification as required by state law.

Nevil will retain his seat on the commission this afternoon. Newport Beach Mayor Donald McInnis, the former alternate city member, was elected to replace Louis Reinhardt, who lost his commission seat when defeated for the Fullerton council.

"I was interested that someone from our city did attend and had two days to let the council know the contents of that meeting," Harvey said at this week's council meeting. "I'd like to know why only certain people were invited to the meeting without the rest of us being notified."

"We were meeting for lunch because we are friends," Mrs. Frankiewicz replied. "There was no decision made about who was to run. The discussion was based on LAFC and its shortcomings, of which there are many."

"If these things are knowledgeable to you, Mrs. Frankiewicz, you have an obligation to inform the balance of the council," Harvey said.

"I'm not aware we made a decision," Mrs. Frankiewicz repeated. "We had a discussion and that was the end of it."

Councilwoman Frankiewicz was elected LAFC alternate at the same meeting that replaced Nevil with Tustin Councilman Donald Saltarelli. Both appeared Monday before the clerk of the board of supervisors to be sworn in but were refused.

FTC To Issue Complaint On Milk Slogans

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission Tuesday said it will issue a complaint against the California Milk Producers Advisory Board, charging that its advertising slogans, "Every body needs milk" and "Milk has something for everybody," are misleading.

The advertising campaign has featured such celebrities as Mark Spitz, Vida Blue, Ray Bolger and Abigail Van Buren. Also named in the suit was the board's advertising agency, Cunningham and Walsh, Inc., New York.

The proposed complaint charges that the advertising wrongly states that milk is essential, necessary and needed by all individuals no matter what their state of health; that milk consumption is beneficial to everyone; everyone can consume unlimited quantities of milk with no harmful effects; and milk consumption will prevent or reduce possibilities of contracting colds or arthritis.

'MISUSE' OF REVENUE SHARING

HB Mayor Hits Diedrich Use Of Fiscal Pressure

By KEITH JONES
Register Staff Writer

Supervisor Ralph Diedrich has been accused by the mayor of Huntington Beach of using federal revenue sharing funds as "subtle pressure" to bring city officials in line with his wishes.

Mayor Jerry Matney said Tuesday he will ask for an investigation by the federal government "into the use or misuse of federal revenue sharing to seek favoritism from the cities."

Matney said Diedrich tried to influence his vote with the League of Cities' selection committee last week in electing three new members to the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFC).

Diedrich, the LAFC chairman, was trying to keep the committee, composed of mayors from 26 cities, from removing La Habra Councilman Robert Nevil from the commission.

A spokesman for Diedrich denied the supervisor pressured anyone.

The spokesman said the supervisor "would welcome the grand jury investigation and Friday asked the district attorney to look into any misconduct. A major confrontation was expected today over the seating of two of the newly appointed city members of the LAFC."

Dr. Slocum Denied Review Of Sentence

SANTA ANA—Dr. Wesley Light Missionary Baptist Gardner Slocum, 47, failed Tuesday in a Superior Court effort to have his Medi-Cal fraud sentence of last week reconsidered by the court.

Judge Harmon Scoville denied a motion by Slocum's attorneys Clement Jacomini and Cora Lee Briggs for a stay of sentencing subject to a three-month diagnostic study of their client.

They argued that Slocum is entitled to the study under the state Penal Code and that no sentencing could be final until the study was completed.

The judge also denied the attorneys' moves for probation and bail.

"This not a case for probation, this is a man who robbed the state of more than $200,000," said deputy district attorney Richard Farnell.

Last week Slocum was sentenced to one to 10 years in prison on his conviction of grand theft and 22 counts of padding Medi-Cal bills.

Jacomini and Miss Briggs drew out the sentencing hearing of Slocum for nearly one week while they paraded character witnesses before Judge Scoville in a futile attempt to get probation for their client.

Palm Springs Area Buffeted By Winds

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) — Winds up to 50 miles per hour buffeted the Palm Springs area Tuesday, raising sand and dust. Thousands of Easter week tourists were visiting here.

Power lines were blown down, and tree limbs littered the streets.

Trailers approaching this area were warned off. There were no injuries.

Newport Beach Mayor Donald McInnis, former LAFC alternate, had been elected by the league's selection committee to fill the unexpired term of Louis Reinhardt. Reinhardt lost his LAFC seat when he was defeated for reelection to the Fullerton city council.

The selection committee met last Thursday to replace Reinhardt, but decided instead to "clean the slate" in an effort to stop what they called "erratic decisions" by the LAFC and to "straighten out administrative procedures."

Nevil was replaced by Tustin Councilman Donald Saltarelli, and Cypress Councilwoman Alice Frankiewicz was elected to McInnis' alternate spot. Monday afternoon both appeared before the clerk of the board of supervisors to be sworn in but were turned away.

Diedrich had obtained a decision from County Counsel Adrienne Kuyper calling the league's action illegal, because 30 days notice was not given that Nevil would be replaced.

Huntington Beach Councilman Alvin Coen, chairman of the selection committee, had tried to get advice from the county counsel prior to the league's action but was refused.

Tom Woodruff, Fountain Valley city attorney, interpreted the state code for the committee that it was perfectly legal for them to vote in all new LAFC members. "As I read the California Government Code, they (LAFC members) serve at our pleasure and can be removed with cause. If there is any 30-day clause, it's one that Diedrich made up," Matney said.

Diedrich claims that the decision to oust Nevil actually was made during a secret meeting of the selection committee at a restaurant in Orange.

Matney charged Thursday that Diedrich had called David Rowlands, Huntington Beach city administrator, and asked him to intercede with Matney "to get a vote for Bob Nevil since Diedrich has supported" the commitment of $600,000 in federal revenue sharing funds from the county towards the purchase of Meadowlark Golf Course by Huntington Beach.

This, according to Matney, brought pressure on him from his council to abstain from voting to clear the slate of city delegates to the LAFC.

"There was no conspiracy" to oust Nevil, Matney said. "I have no animosity toward Nevil. He's a real nice fellow, but he can't stand up to the influence from Supervisor Diedrich. Many of us had talked about cleaning the slate and putting in new delegates, but we didn't think we had the votes to do it. And we wouldn't have done it if it hadn't been for Diedrich's pressure. He solidified us."

He is (LAFC) chairman, but he only has one vote. Saltarelli did not want to be the delegate, but we chose him because he is outspoken, independent and is not one to be controlled."

Diedrich's aide, Ray Rhoads, said, "It would be impossible for Ralph to do that. He has never used it (revenue sharing) as any kind of pressure. Matney is ignorant of the entire system concerning revenue sharing."

Rhoads said Orange County is the only county in the state that shares its revenue sharing funds with the cities, and that it was pushed by Diedrich. "He would welcome it (the grand jury investigation). As a matter of fact, he might demand it now," Rhoads said.

Saltarelli said he has received an opinion from Woodruff that he should legally be seated on LAFC today.

Woodruff is a former Tustin city councilman.

Saltarelli said that he too would welcome a grand jury investigation of the selection committee's action. "What the cities do is no business of the board of supervisors, particularly Mr. Diedrich," he said.

Tugboat Sinks Trio Rescued

NEWPORT, Ore. (UPI) — Three crewmen on the tugboat "Western Mariner" were rescued from the Pacific Ocean Tuesday after their vessel sank.

The tug was en route to Portland, Ore., from Richmond, Calif., when a crewmember radioed the cost guard station at Yakuna Bay near here that the tug was taking on water.

An empty life raft was sighted first, then a quarter-mile away the three crewmen were seen in the water and rescued by Coast Guard surface vessel.

Pioneer 10 past Jupiter last December. Gehrels said analysis of photographs and temperature data radioed back by the little probe tends to confirm earlier ideas that the red spot and similar features are actually towering masses of rising clouds generated by heat radiating out from the giant planet.

Temperature variations cause the gases making up the atmosphere to rise in local areas to heights of lower pressure where some unknown material condenses to form clouds, Gehrels said. The condensed material presumably then evaporates and subsides back toward the planet to result in a vertical circulation.

The great oval red spot, stretching some 20 degrees across the 88,900 miles wide planet, has intrigued astronomers since it was first observed in 1665. Gehrels said Pioneer 10 revealed that there is a small red spot, on the order of several hundred miles across, in the planet's northern hemisphere and at least similar sized white ovals in the southern hemisphere. In addition, he said there are numerous smaller cloud cells of apparently similar origin. The flight of the Mariner 10 television probe past Venus in February found a similar cloud feature in the thick Venusian atmosphere. That cloud mass, which also had a general oval shape, is believed caused by solar heating.

Other instruments aboard the Pioneer 10 spacecraft showed that the atmosphere of Jupiter is predominantly hydrogen with about 12 to 15 per cent helium and 1 per cent other gases. The sun has a similar makeup.

OC Organizes $6.6 Million Jobless Training Program

By JOE CORDERO
Register Staff Writer

Orange County officials are forming a new arm of county government to implement a new multi-million dollar, tax-financed training and employment program here.

The program, created by the 1973 Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), will cost at least $6.6 million and will be geared to placing unemployed persons into government jobs.

It is scheduled to be initiated July 1, succeeding the federal Public Employment Program (PEP) now in its final days. PEP was instituted here and across the nation in July, 1971, when unemployment rates were well in excess of six per cent.

PEP took many of the unemployed, especially those laid off in the aerospace industry crash, and placed them in tax-paid jobs.

An appointed commission to oversee the CETA program here is being formed, and county government personnel are moving to a suit of 11 county offices at 511 N. Sycamore, Santa Ana, where the program will be administered.

The 11-member commission will hold its organizational meeting 7:30 a.m. Friday in the County administrator's office, 515 N. Sycamore, Santa Ana. The meeting will be open to the public.

Members of the commission will include Edward Thompson, Huntington Beach city personnel director; Manuel Reda, Santa Ana city director of community relations; Bob Davis, Anaheim assistant city manager; Milton Kreiger, Garden Grove city councilman, all representing county cities which will act as lead agencies in the program.

At large city representatives selected by the Orange County League of Cities will be La Habra city manager Lee Risner and either city manager Gifford Miller or councilman Jess Perez of Orange.

Representing the county will be Ted Moraitis, administrative aide to county supervisor Robert Battin appointed by Battin; insurance executive Robert E. Holt, appointed by supervisor Ronald Caspers, and Jerry Keating, vice president of Aerojet Manufacturing Co., Fullerton, appointed by supervisor Ralph Diedrich.

Supervisors Ralph Clark and David Baker have not yet made their appointments.

The commission will direct the three-part CETA program into a training and schooling, public service employment (PSE) and summer youth work segments.

County government and the cities of the county will receive approximately $6 million for the training and education portion and $600,000 for summer youth employment, according to Robert Nelson, county official who will be the acting executive director of CETA here.

The program coordinator will be Del Cross, currently the PEP director for Garden Grove.

The amount the county and cities will receive for the PSE portion is not known yet, reported Nelson. An appropriation bill for that portion of CETA is now before Congress.

Area eligibility for PSE funds will be those census tracts with a combined population of at least 10,000 persons which have an unemployment rate of at least 6.5 per cent, explained Nelson.

Using current unemployment statistics, he identified the entire city of Stanton as qualifying for PSE funds. Also "more than half" of Santa Ana major portions of Anaheim, Fullerton, Huntington Beach and Garden Grove. Also portions of Buena Park, Westminster, Costa Mesa and Newport Beach, plus small sections of La Habra, Brea, Placentia and unincorporated areas of the county.

SAY SUPERVISORS:

State, U.S. 'Shirk Job' In Push For Clean Cars

By SANDI MOSLEY
Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA — Orange County Supervisors Tuesday accused state and federal environmental officials of "shirking their responsibility" to force the major auto manufacturers to come up with a "clean air" car.

They worded the criticism in the form of a resolution to be sent to the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the state Air Resources Board (ARB).

The action came after supervisors decided to bid for further changes in the Air Resources Board's modified plan for controlling emissions from indirect sources.

County Administrative Officer Robert Thomas was instructed to lobby for the changes that would provide more local control at the ARB meeting Thursday in Los Angeles.

Supervisors last January opposed the original ARB regulations that would have required the local air pollution control district officers to ban construction of things like stadiums and shopping centers in smoggy areas.

County supervisors and several city officials said such stringent regulations were not needed as long as improvements in air quality continue to be made.

In February, the state board modified the regulation to say construction can be denied when a project would prevent the attainment of national air quality standards.

Additionally, through a pending state senate bill introduced in January, the South Coast Air Basin would have additional rules that would:

—Require the ARB to establish emission limits for each pollutant in this six-county air basin, including Orange County;

—Divide the basin into districts, with limits for each of those areas;

—Make the denial of the local air pollution control office appealable to the air basin coordinating council if there are "overriding social and economic impacts."

Thomas proposed the formation of a county air pollution control commission made up of city, county and public representatives to consider recommendations from the local air pollution officer regarding air quality standards and the social and economic impact of a project. The air pollution control board, which is the board of supervisors here, would then be the appeal board.

Supervisor David Baker called the plan "another backdoor approach attempting to regulate development rather than the automobile, which is the primary source of air pollution."

Picketing Of Douglas Called On Pay Issue

LONG BEACH—An informal picket line protesting McDonnell Douglas Aircraft Company's failure to grant an estimated $3.3 million in cost-of-living back wages to 11,000 union employees here was ordered Tuesday by union leaders.

A spokesman for UAW, Local 148, said non-working members or their families would man all entrances to the massive aerospace company at 7 a.m.

"We want to inform our members and the public about the company's refusal to pay a 17-cent-cost-of-living wage increase," the spokesman who estimated half the union members live in Orange County.

"We'll have hundreds of people—even wives and kids—on the lines," the spokesman said. Union and company officials have been negotiating an agreement on how the company will pay the increase since the Cost of Living Council released the industry from the wage freeze Feb. 5.

Charles Chappell, company spokesman, said, "We're fully prepared to pay the increase. We've already reached an agreement with unions at the company's other plants."

He said the company is "seriously concerned with the apparent eagerness of the union (UAW) to prevent eligible employees from receiving approved payments in a timely fashion."

Chappell said, "We want to pay the increase, but we just can't agree on some eligibility portions of the agreement."

The union also announced it plans to file a complaint with the U.S. Labor Department and file damage suits in state and federal courts.

Ex-GI: Slain Sergeant Didn't Like Blacks

FT. LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (UPI) — A top sergeant shot to death by Spec. 4 Melvin Smith in a Vietnam mess hall three years ago harassed Smith and called black soldiers "animals and niggers," a former member of Smith's unit testified Tuesday.

Melvin Taylor, a former specialist fourth class from Washington, said 1st Sgt. Archie D. Carnell continually made Smith pull guard duty throughout the night and into the day. Taylor said that was not a common practice.

"Carnell didn't like black soldiers and passed over them for promotion," Taylor said. "He called blacks animals and niggers."

Taylor testified at the second court-martial for Smith, a Black Muslim from Chicago, who walked into a mess hall where Carnell was eating lunch May 7, 1971, and shot him to death with his M14. Two other noncommissioned officers were wounded.

Smith was convicted by his first court-martial and sentenced to life imprisonment. But a military court of appeals overturned that conviction on appeal.

Taylor testified that he and Carnell were friends and that several other soldiers had warned him to break off relations with the sergeant or he would "go down with him."

Taylor also said that soldiers from other companies were coming into Carnell's unit with intentions of killing him. He said the sergeant had two permanent orderlies guarding him while he slept.

The defense said in its opening statement Smith acted under severe emotional stress and "felt he had to take the life of his first sergeant to save his own."

Before the Army rested its case, Sgt. Moses Dyer, a "head-counter" in the mess hall the day of the shooting, said Smith was "chewing gum and his eyes were sparkling like diamonds" as the soldier walked into the hall.

Sheriff Candidate's Pot Trial Slated For Day Before Election

SANTA ANA — Sheriff's candidate Jerry Lee Lawrence, 32, will stand trial June 3, the day before the election, on charges he possessed marijuana for sale.

Superior Court Judge Everett Dickey ordered the trial Tuesday when Lawrence pleaded innocent here to the charges.

Lawrence, who paid $690.26 in cash earlier this year for his nomination papers, was permitted to remain free on his own recognizance.

The self-described vegetable merchant pleaded innocent to the charges. He is represented by Atty. Russell Parsons who handled the case of Sirhan Sirhan, convicted assassin of Sen. Robert Kennedy.

Arraigned with Lawrence Tuesday was co-defendant Mark Hoffman Armstrong, 20, of 33451 Palo Alto, Dana Point.

Both defendants were arrested Jan. 2 at Lawrence's home, 118 Santa Isabel, Costa Mesa, where police reported seizing several bricks, about 16 pounds of marijuana in a suitcase.

Armstrong, also free on his own recognizance, was ordered to stand trial June 3.

Lawrence also described himself as the founder of the so-called Church of Cannabis Sativa, which purportedly requires prospective members to eat or smoke marijuana before they can join.

As a sheriff's candidate, Lawrence claims he is "an expert on jails." He announced earlier he would campaign on a platform of classifying marijuana as an herb and not a drug—presumably on the basis of his occupation as a vegetable merchant.

Pioneer 10 Shows Jupiter Has Many Red, White Spots

By AL ROSSITER JR.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The

Pioneer 10 space probe found that the great red spot of Jupiter is accompanied by at least one smaller red oval, several white spots and numerous smaller cells in the colorful Jovian atmosphere, a scientist reported Tuesday.

"The red spot is not a unique feature," Dr. Tom Gehrels, of the University of Arizona, said at a news conference summarizing the latest results from the history-making flight of Pioneer 10 past Jupiter last December.

Gehrels said analysis of photographs and temperature data radioed back by the little probe tends to confirm earlier ideas that the red spot and similar features are actually towering masses of rising clouds generated by heat radiating out from the giant planet.

Temperature variations cause the gases making up the atmosphere to rise in local areas to heights of lower pressure where some unknown material condenses to form

A. Simpson of the University of Chicago, said Jupiter generates bursts of radiation that extend nearly 100 million miles out into space. He said this means the sun does not completely dominate all interplanetary space as previously believed.

Pioneer 10 passed Jupiter at a distance of 81,000 miles Dec. 3 and is now cruising out of the solar system, still sending scientific data back to earth. A twin probe is due to reach Jupiter next December and then will whip on and become the first spacecraft to explore Saturn, in 1979.

IRS Case Closed At White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House said it has closed the book on President Nixon's income tax problems.

A White House spokesman refused Monday to say whether the Internal Revenue Service charged Nixon a 5 per cent negligence penalty or exactly when the payment would be made.

Gasoline Availability Continues To Improve

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The availability of gasoline continues to improve across the nation, the American Automobile Association said Tuesday in its 13th weekly report on fuel problems for motorists.

The AAA said this week's spot check on 6,080 stations showed but 3 per cent without fuel to sell, down from 5 per cent last week. The average price per gallon moved up a penny for regular, however, to 54 cents, with the price for premium stable at 57 cents.

The states of Hawaii, Illinois, New York and South Carolina had the highest average price for regular fuel at 56 cents a gallon. Hawaii, Illinois, and New York had the highest average price for premium at 53 cents a gallon.

The report also showed: —80 per cent of the stations were open after noon on Saturday, compared to 73 per cent a week ago.

—Of the stations surveyed, 2 per cent were closing by noon on weekdays, down from 3 per cent last week.

—Fuel is pumped at 39 per cent of the stations after 7 p.m. on weekdays, up from 35 per cent a week earlier.

—There were 30 per cent of the stations open Sunday, an increase from 27 per cent last week.

Fortune Telling Ban OK'd Despite Threat

NEWPORT BEACH—Despite a threat of a suit on constitutional grounds, councilmen Monday unanimously refused the request of a Los Angeles gypsy to overturn the city's ban on fortune telling here.

"If you don't change the ordinance," said Boris Boranowski, an attorney representing Barney Marino of Los Angeles, "I'm going to sue you and I'm going to win."

The council acted after police chief B. James Glavas defended the law as necessary to prevent fraud. City Atty. Dennis O'Neill cited cases which he said showed the city law could be upheld in court.

Councilman Carl Kymala called the threat "vulgar" and a "cheap shot," but Boranowski said after the vote that he would file an action on behalf of Marino in Superior Court within a week.

He repeated his claim that he recently represented a client in to uphold its law, and for Newport Beach to do so, would be getting the San Mateo County Superior Court to overturn a similar prohibition.

The city of Menlo Park, he said, spent $22,000 in an effort to

Boy, 10, Set Forest Fire In New Mexico

CLOUDCROFT, N.M. (UPI) — A 10-year-old boy playing with matches started a forest fire in southeastern New Mexico that charred 14,500 acres of valuable timber and 21 homes, the U.S. Forest Service said Tuesday.

The fire, which was spotted by a lookout Saturday, was contained Tuesday when crews threw a 40-mile line around the blaze.

A Forest Service spokesman, Lou Armijo, said the parents of the boy who started the fire would be billed the $300,000 spent to fight the blaze and that the boy could be subject to federal prosecution.

"The fire was started by a 10-year-old boy who was playing with matches with some friends on private property," Armijo said. "The parents apparently were doing some work nearby and weren't watching."

He said the boy tried unsuccessfully to douse the fire in the dry timber, but he and his parents left the scene. They did not report the "re, Armijo said.

He said the Forest Service learned of the boy through its own investigation.

The fire burned through 14,469 acres of dense pine and juniper in the Lincoln National Forest, home of Smokey the Bear, and on private land. It destroyed 21 homes and buildings and caused the evacuation of the 300 residents of two small towns, Weed and Sacramento.

The Forest Service estimated the loss of the timber at $21 million and over-all losses at $38 million.

130 Possibly Exposed To Radioactivity

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) announced Tuesday that as many as 130 passengers may have been exposed to radiation aboard two Delta Airline flights.

AEC spokesman Mike Butler said initial evaluations indicated only low levels of exposure might have occurred, and that the agency had not decided as yet whether it would be worthwhile contacting the passengers.

"We don't want to alarm anyone unduly," Butler said.

The flights involved were Delta No. 311 between Washington and Atlanta on April 5, and No. 585 between Atlanta and Baton Rouge, La., on April 6.

Butler said the possible exposure resulted from an improperly shielded shipment of solid Iridium 192 that was carried in the cargo compartments of the two planes.

Iridium 192 is used in industrial X-ray work. The fact that it is a ray, the AEC said, made it impossible that there could have been any contamination of luggage as a result of a rubbing off process.

The 32 curies of Iridium 192 was housed in an 8-by-5 inch container, and that container, in turn, was inside of a 10-gallon drum. Improper placing of the Iridium in the smaller container led to the possible exposure, the AEC said.

The material was shipped by Value Engineering of Alexandria, Va., to Gamma Industries of Baton Rouge. Value Engineering was returning the Iridium to Gamma, supplier of the material, for a stronger batch. The old batch had decayed in use and lost some of its power.

The improper shielding was discovered when the shipment arrived back at Gamma Industries, and the AEC was notified. It, in turn, advised the U.S. Department of Transportation and the Georgia and Virginia health departments.

Freight Engine Derailed At SC

SAN CLEMENTE — A Santa Fe freight engine was derailed here early Tuesday after vandals apparently placed rocks on the tracks near Calafia Beach, police reported.

Officers said the engine to the train was knocked off the tracks at 1:45 a.m. However, the train did not over-run, police said.

There were no injuries.

17 Oil Firms Named In 'Monopoly' Suit

HOUSTON (UPI)—A federal lawsuit charges 17 of the world's largest oil companies with conspiring to monopolize the importation and distribution of foreign crude and asks $12 million in damages for violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Pan-Islamic Trade Corp. of Houston also said the oil companies conspired to restrain trade and refused to do business with Pan-Islamic.

All three allegations, if proven, are violations of federal antitrust laws.

Defendants in the suit on file Tuesday include Exxon Corp., Standard Oil of New Jersey, Atlantic Richfield, Texaco, Gulf, Amerada, Hess Corp.,

Pan-Islamic claims the defendants conspired not to buy oil imported from Algeria, which partially nationalized ownership and forced cancellation of its contract with Sonatrach.

Pan-Islamic alleges the companies refused to buy 40 million barrels of oil annually which it had agreed to purchase from the Algerian government to sell in the United States.

According to court documents filed in U.S. District Court, Pan-Islamic entered into a contract with Sonatrach, the national oil company of Algeria, in May, 1972, to buy 80 million barrels of oil in 1971-72 with an option to purchase 40 million barrels of oil annually for the succeeding four years.

Boys Club Fund Problem Aired

SAN CLEMENTE—The Boys Club of the South Coast Area needs $4,000 to keep its doors open, said Dan Philippbar, of the board of directors, at a chamber of commerce luncheon Tuesday.

"We do have a problem," he said. The Anderson Trust which has been contributing $7,900 annually, paid only $4,200 in the past year. It costs $2,000 monthly to operate the boys club which is attended by some 80 to 100 boys every day and is financed by individuals and organizations. Boys pay $2 membership a year.

The chamber declared April "Boys Club Month" and urged members to contribute to the club's fund.

$2.4 Million Proposed For Regional Trains

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—County supervisors were asked Tuesday to underwrite a $2.4 million tab to operate commuter trains linking Los Angeles, San Diego, and San Bernardino.

The board will study the proposal by Supervisor Baxter Ward for two weeks before taking any action.

Both routes would involve trackage of the Santa Fe Railroad. Ward estimated cost of running the San Diego-Los Angeles line at $939,000 per year and the San Bernardino-Los Angeles line via Pasadena would require $1,095,000.

THIS SUMMER, IF YOU DON'T SEE EUROPE WITH TWA, YOU'RE NOT GETTING YOUR MONEY'S WORTH.

TWA has put together 43 special tour packages, for 2 weeks, 17 days or 3 weeks, both escorted and unescorted.

They contain things you won't find in many other packages. And in many cases, the prices are lower than those of our competition.

As an added bonus, you get TWA's Little Black Book. Free.

Thanks to special deals we've made with local proprietors, it contains discounts on things like dinners, theater tickets, drinks, aperitifs, perfumes and gifts.

If you want to rent a Ford from Hertz, or one of their other fine cars, it also has a coupon that gives you the first day's time charges free. You can get your Little Black Book in most cities by presenting your ticket or boarding

CHARGE IT ALL.

And if you don't want to lay out the money now, but still want to go, you can charge your whole trip on TWA's Getaway Card.

To take advantage of all this, there are a few things you should know first.

Packages must be booked no later than 15 days before departure. Airfares are based on 14-21 day Group Inclusive Tour prices, where we form the group and set the departure dates. If the minimum group size of 15 is not attained, alternate departure dates will be arranged if possible.

The lowest prices for each tour are only available on one or two departures. So the earlier you book, the better.

Packages are based on double occupancy. Prices do not include the $3.00 International Departure Tax. And airfares are subject to change.

For reservations, call your Travel Agent or TWA. Get your money's worth this summer.

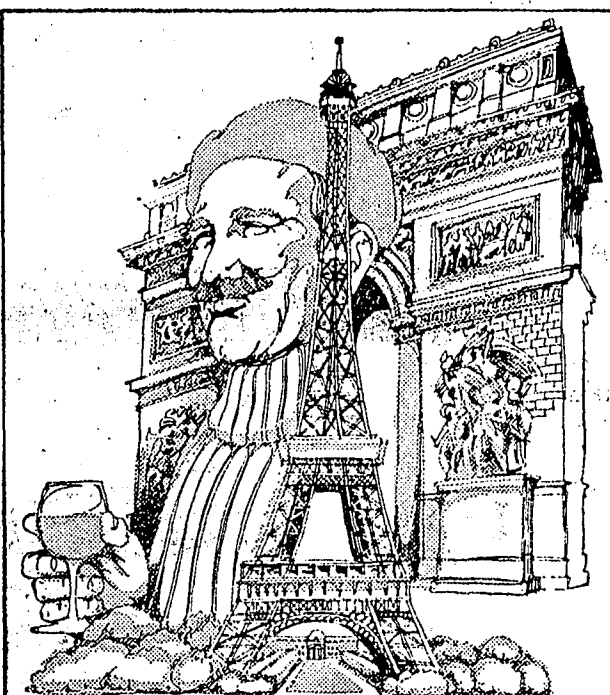

TWA's Tour Warranty

If any tour element or service is not delivered as described in the TWA brochure, TWA certifies that an appropriate refund will be made of that portion of the tour price covering the undelivered tour element as outlined in the brochure.

MISSOURI TOWN HOPES TO SAVE HOUSE OF THE JAMES BROTHERS

KEARNEY, Mo. (UPI) — The people of Kearney, which was home to Jesse and Frank James, have been divided for nearly a century in their feelings about the fabled outlaw brothers.

Some folks of Southern background regarded the James boys as Robin Hood benefactors of the poor, particularly Confederate sympathizers. Others, especially bankers and railroad men, saw them as border ruffians.

Historians said the bankers and railroad men were right. But now, 92 years after Jesse James was killed on April 3, 1882 by a "dirty little coward," the community appears united in a desire to preserve what is left of the James heritage—the crumbling "James House" and the land it stands on.

Tustin Reports Building Slump

TUSTIN—Building valuation here for March was recorded at $73,640, a drop of nearly 100 per cent from the same month last year, according to city building department records.

Total valuation for the 1973-74 fiscal year, however, is $18.9 million to date, an increase of 50 per cent over the same period.

But Jesse's grandchildren, Lawrence, Forrester and Chester Barr, want to keep it in the family.

Roof and floors are sagging and visitors no longer are permitted to enter the big main room where Jesse's young brother was killed by a bomb, presumably thrown by private detectives hired by railroads in an attempt to stop the James boys from robbing trains.

After Jesse was killed at St. Joseph, Mo., his mother had the body packed in ice and brought home to the family farm for burial in the front yard. Years later it was transferred to the Kearney cemetery but tourists by the thousands, paying 75 cents each, flocked to the house to walk through its musty rooms and pick up pebbles in the yard where the Jameses once robbed a bank. "It's been declared a national landmark. But something's got to be done to brace it. Since the gasoline crisis not many people leave the main highway to look at the place, or the bank museum either. It's running not more than 50 per cent of what it did."

John Monroe, president of the Clay County Park Board, says the county is ready to provide funds to do the necessary work to restore and strengthen the house.

Harbors Panel Backs Park At Crescent Bay

NEWPORT BEACH—The County Harbors, Beaches and Parks Commission Tuesday endorsed the concept of a view park at Crescent Bay in Laguna Beach.

Commissioners agreed that the proposed park would be of countywide significance, but deferred action on a request that county federal revenue-sharing funds be used for the park.

The request, made by a group of Laguna Beach residents, will be considered in June along with other requests for revenue-sharing funds, the commission decided.

Commissioners also approved recommending that county supervisors support a bill by Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-NB, to fund the park.

The proposed park would consist of two or more of eight lots owned by Margaret McKnight Russell, overlooking Seal Rock. Value of the lots is estimated at $200,000 each.

Preservation of the lots for a park has been endorsed by the Laguna Beach City Council, which has agreed to devote an, as yet, undetermined amount of city taxpayer's money to the project.

The council has also asked for county, state and private contributions.

Heden Ringer, a member of the committee seeking funds for the park, has maintained that the site deserves to be preserved because of its scenic value and as its value as a setting for photographers and artists.

He also said that the park would provide both a means of access to beaches and a marine wildlife preserve which the lots overlook, and, at the same time, facilitate protection of the area's wildlife.

Black Culture Week Program Ends Saturday

IRVINE—Panel discussions, lectures and exhibits are part of Black Culture Week at UCI.

The week will close Saturday with a potluck picnic in Campus Park and sports competition.

Sponsored by the UCI Black Students Union, activities are planned around a different theme for each day.

Other events feature political and economic lectures, two black artists, a panel discussion on the history of black women and a play.

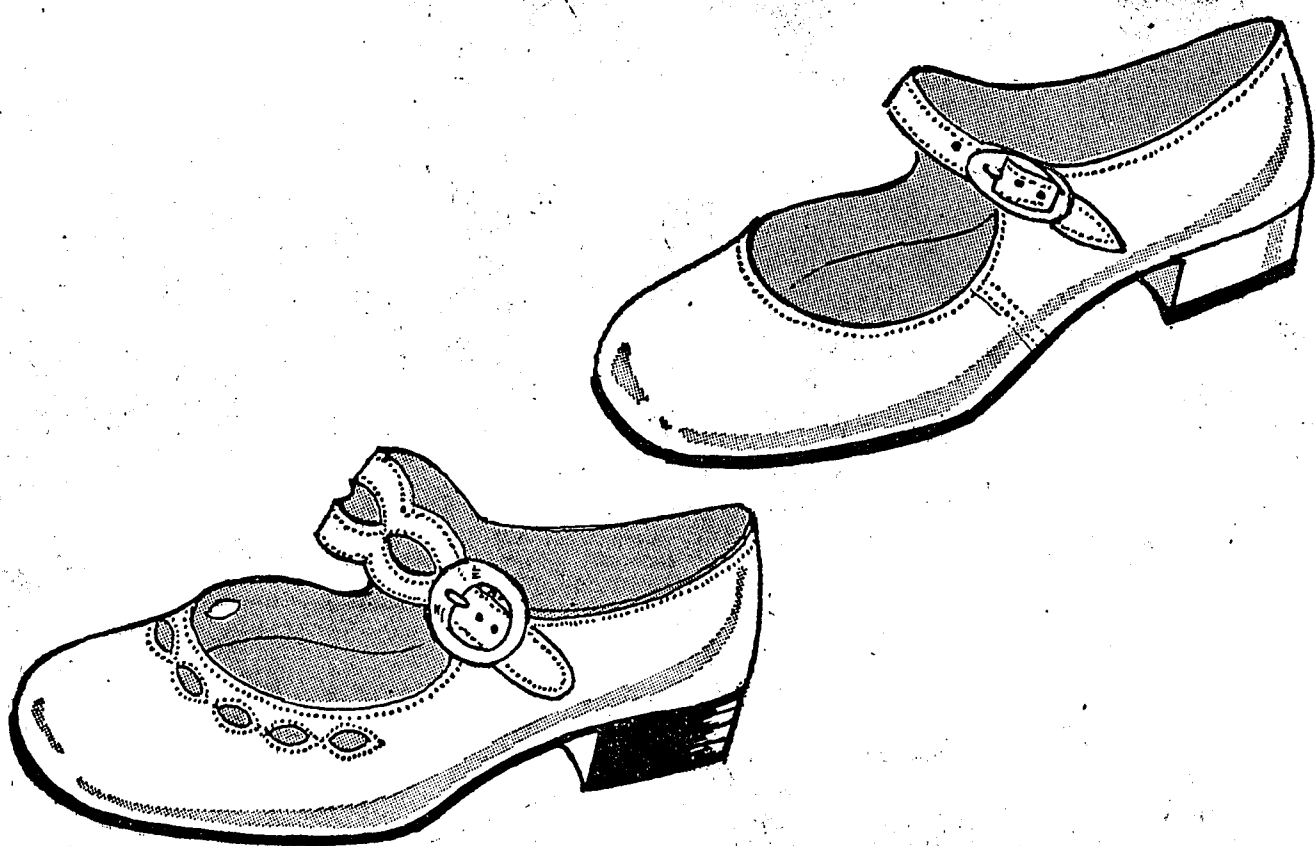

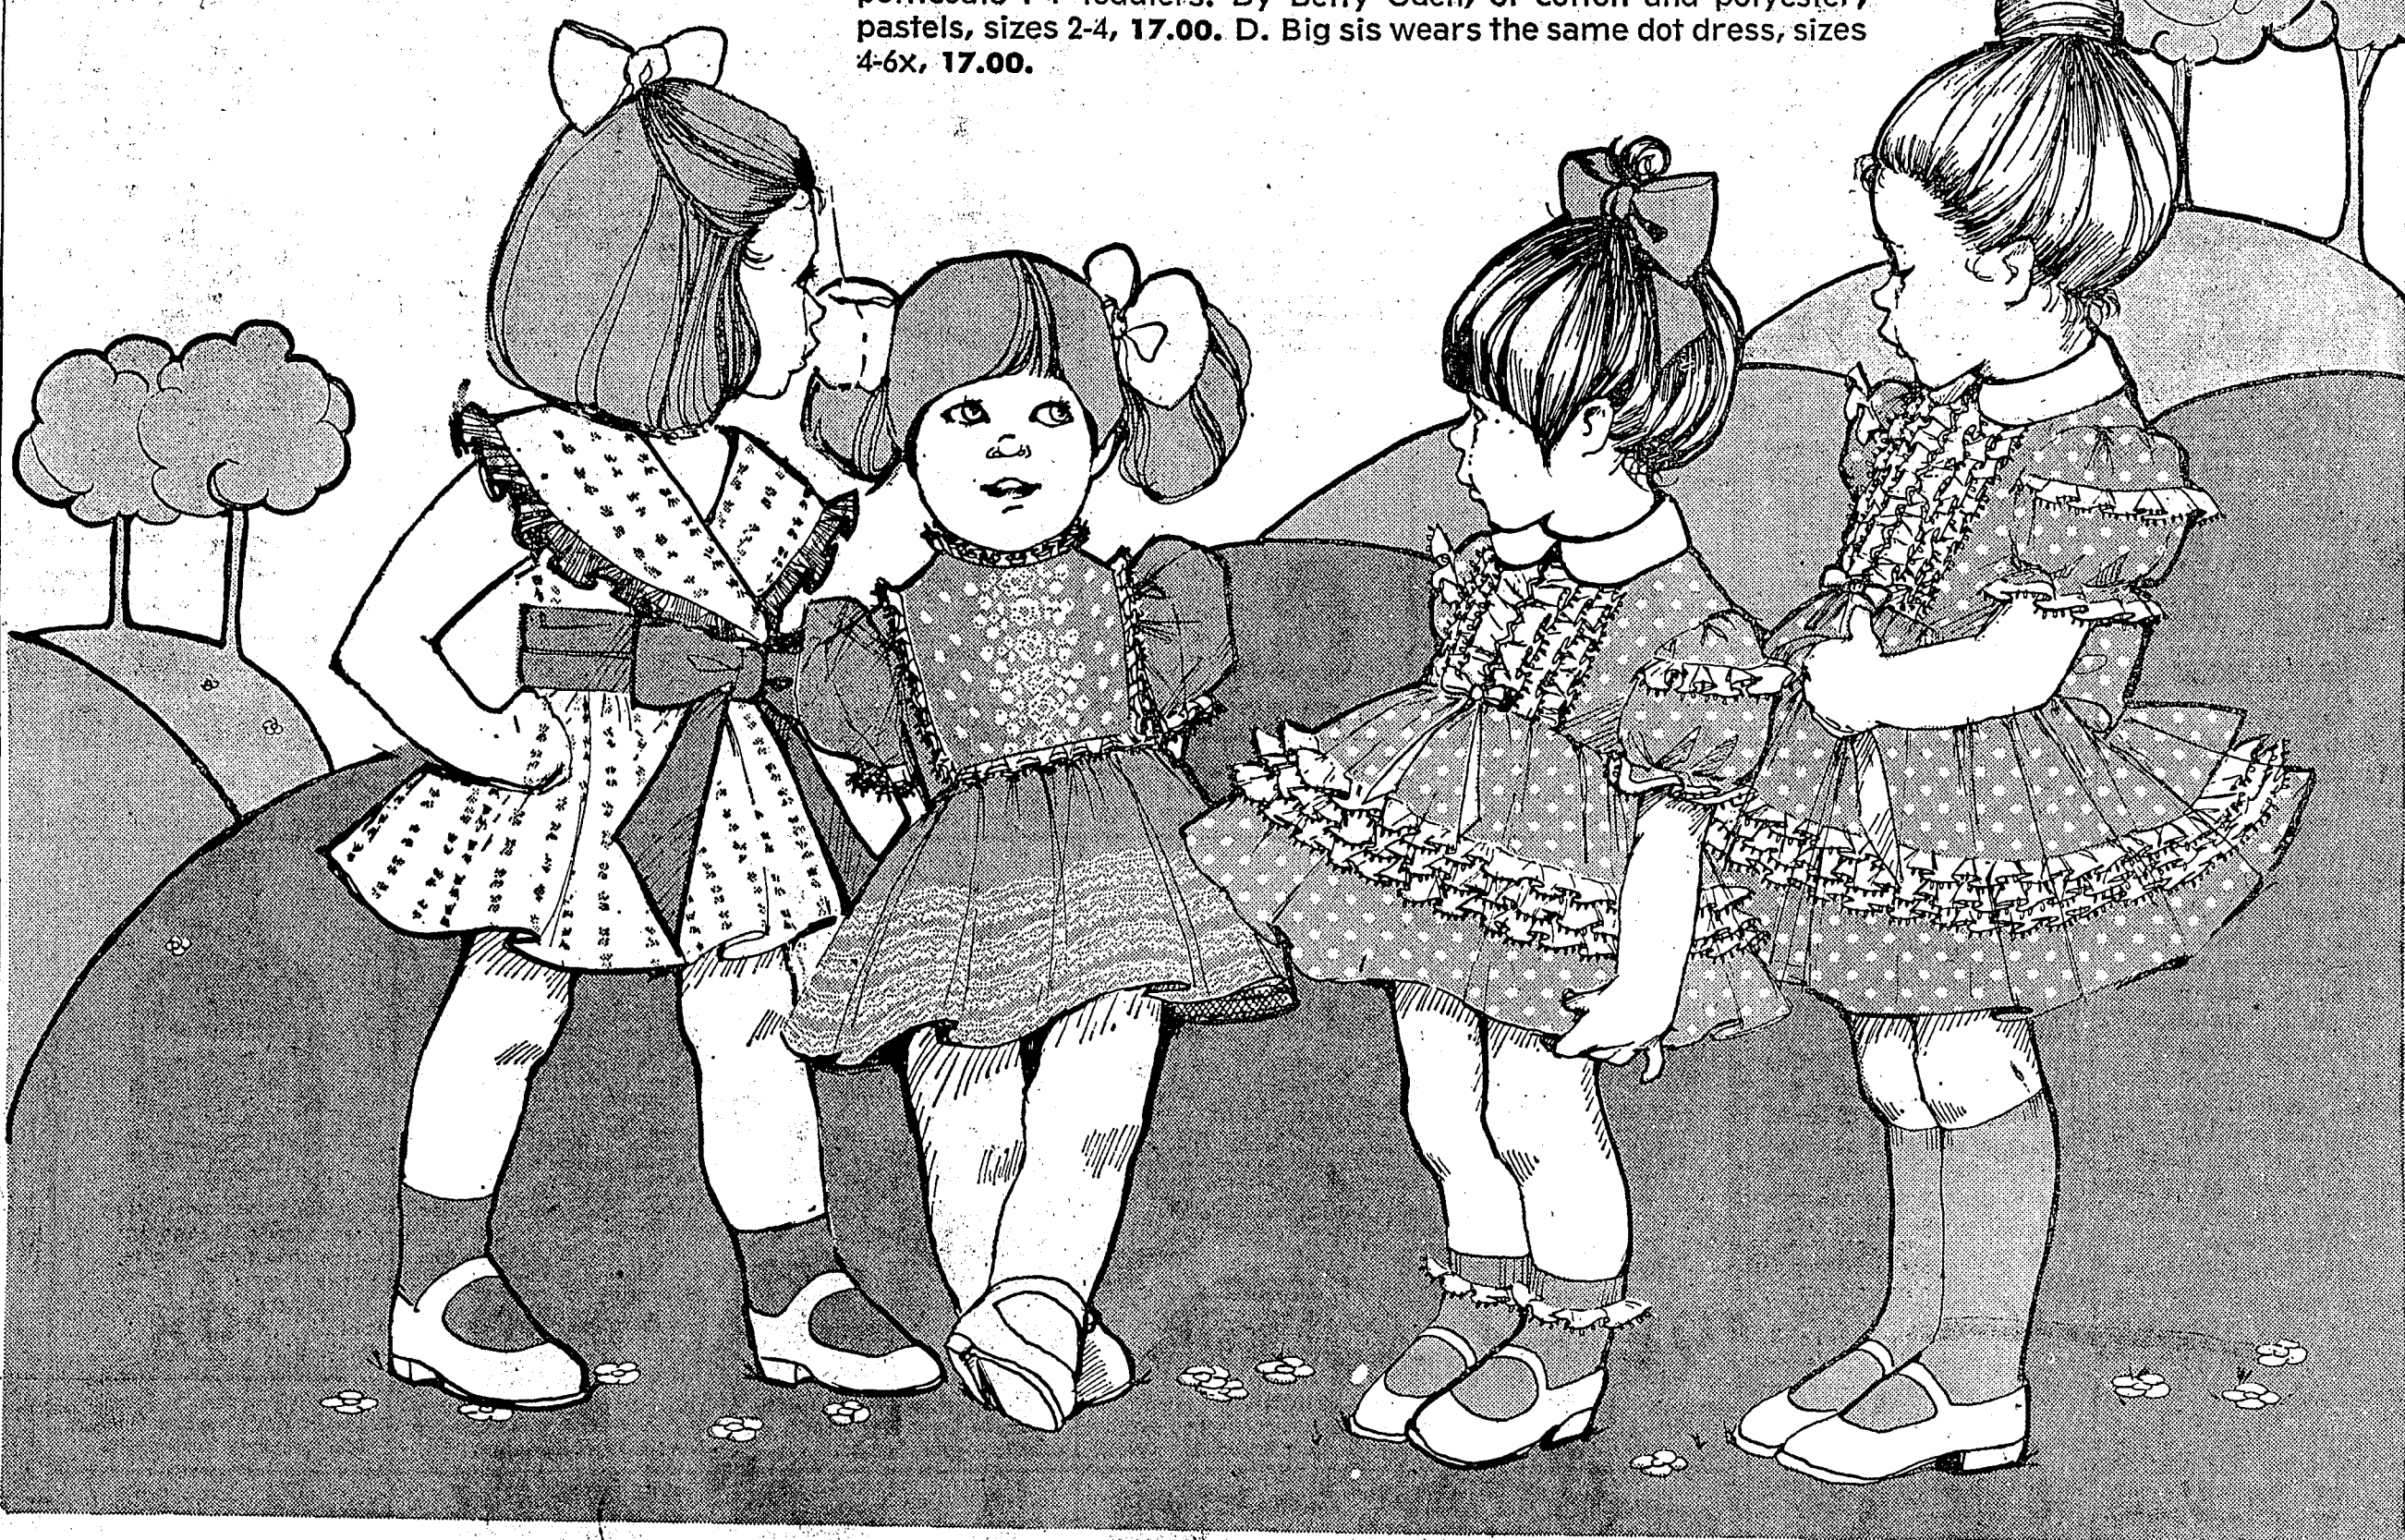

Center Funding Eyed By Cypress

CYPRESS—City councilmen have submitted an application for county revenue sharing funds for the community center building at Oak Knoll Park, development of Cypress-Arnold Park and an athletic building at Cypress High School.

If the projects are approved by the county, it and the city will share equally in the funding. Total cost of the community center is $700,000, cost of the park development is $110,000 and cost of the athletic building is $120,000.

Billy Graham Denies 'Protection On Taxes

Evangelist Billy Graham said Tuesday he had never sought or received White House aid in tax matters, though his taxes had been audited and the White House was probably aware of it. "I suppose any time a well-known person has their books audited it is brought to the attention of the White House," he said. Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., has said Graham, a long-time friend of President Nixon, had been protected by the White House in IRS audits.

BILLY GRAHAM

Jacques Chaban-Delmas, officials Gaullist party candidate for the presidency of France, Tuesday rejected an appeal from Premier Pierre Messmer to withdraw from the race and said he would fight on a platform which includes friendship with the United States. After promising to build a "new society" said: "We must safeguard the European unity already achieved, relaunch construction of a Europe faithful to the Atlantic Alliance, be faithful to the United States but retain our freedom of decision." Chaban-Delmas, 59, a sports-loving World War II Resistance hero, was the first candidate openly to declare in favor of close ties with the U.S.

From the Vatican, Pope Paul VI asked the world's rich nations Tuesday to stop wasting money on artificially created needs or face the danger of a revolt of the poor. In a message to the U.N. General Assembly's special session on raw materials in New York, the Pope said, "If this is not done, despair will ensue on the part of the poor and powerless; a despair that will spur them to aggressive search of methods other than international cooperation to gain what they consider to be their economic rights."

Former Nazi leader Rudolph Hess says Adolph Hitler never told him to fly to Scotland in 1940 to try to end World War II but he instinctively felt that was what Hitler wanted. In an interview filmed in Spandau Prison where Hess has been held since 1946 and shown over British television, Hess said, "I knew that the Fuehrer wanted to stop the fighting by understanding. I took the opportunity." Hess, now 79, was Hitler's deputy when he parachuted out of a German fighter over Scotland in an attempt to open peace talks. He was imprisoned in Britain until the end of the war and then sentenced to life in prison.

Pavel Litvinov, exiled grandson of Joseph Stalin's foreign minister, said Tuesday in New York City that he was far from converted to the Cold War into a "cold peace" because Russia remains a country where "any free voice is persecuted." The 34-year-old physicist, who was imprisoned and exiled to Siberia before being allowed to leave Russia, flew to the U.S. with his family Monday night and said he hoped to become an American citizen.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at the Vallejo Drive Seventh Day Adventist Church in Glendale, for Dr. Braulio Perez Marcio, founder of the Spanish language radio broadcast, "The Voice of Hope." Marcio died Monday of an apparent heart attack. Principal speaker at the service will be Gaston Clouzet, of Buenos Aires, editor of the Association Case Editora Sudamericana. Speaking at the graveside ceremony will be Dr. Harold M.S. Richards, founder of the international "Voice of Prophecy" radio broadcast.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford arrived in Detroit Tuesday to raise the curtain on the biggest Republican road show in the state since the 1972 presidential election. President Nixon follows up today for his first people-to-people foray since Watergate. Ford, a long-time resident of Grand Rapids, campaigned on behalf of Rep. Robert J. Huber, a conservative Republican facing a tough re-election battle in the 18th Congressional District.

MUHAMMAD ALI

Fortune teller Ngombe Francis Tuesday in Nairobi advised Muhammad Ali not to fight world heavyweight champion George Foreman in Africa. "I don't support Foreman at all," Francis said. "In fact Muhammad Ali has been my man and I am sure black Africa is proud of him. But I want to tell him this fight will be in Foreman's favor." The fight is tentatively scheduled in Zaire next September.

Newport Dunes Gets Restaurant Permit

SANTA ANA—Operators of Newport Dunes got permission Tuesday to open another restaurant at the tax-supported parklands.

They were told last October to open the old Ocean Toad Restaurant and comply with other requirements of their 50-year lease on the county tidelands or face eviction.

County supervisors, who served the notice of default over the lease, Tuesday agreed to let Newport Dunes Inc. begin correcting lease problems.

Although Supervisor David Baker objected to a proposed third-party sublease offered by the firm, supervisors voted to allow the restaurant to be owned and run by Richard Drury, manager of Airport Inn.

Terms of the sublease give him one year to open the restaurant.

The firm tried to remodel the Ocean Toad last year but was stopped by Newport Beach in a jurisdictional dispute with the county over who issues building permits on the tidelands.

"It's hard to understand how that can be considered a default," a spokesman for the firm then said.

The county receives a minimum $10,000-a-month rental from the lease, which runs through 2008. A notice of default was issued in January of 1970 because previous operators failed to keep the restaurant open. The Ocean Toad stayed open for 15 months after that but has been closed the past two years.

Stanley Krause, county real property services director, said his staff is negotiating with Dunes operators on the other default issues.

The firm has plans for constructing the service station on the site and has issued eviction notices for recreational vehicles illegally parked at the site, he said.

A survey team is to be flown over the park this month to determine what portion of the boat slips are illegally on land not included in the lease.

Baker had objected that approving the plans for the restaurant without requiring the rest of the problems to be corrected "appeared to be giving our blessing to the default."

Patrol Forces Bed Pushers To Alter Route

LOS BANOS (UPI) — A group of 12 students, attempting to raise money for Orthopedic Hospital in Los Angeles by pushing a hospital bed from Norwalk to San Francisco, have encountered an obstacle in Los Banos in the form of the California Highway Patrol.

The students, all from Cerritos College, left Norwalk on Friday and were due to arrive in San Francisco Tuesday.

The highway patrol, however, will not let them cross San Luis Dam on Highway 152 because, they say, it is too heavily traveled.

Therefore, the students have changed their destination and are heading north on Highway 33 to Stockton and then to Sacramento.

The group, which is also seeking a new world record for "pushing an ordinarily stationary object a given distance," are being followed by a camper. Two or three push the bed at a time, so they have been going for 24 hours a day.

Injunction Hits Tidelands Oil Royalties Rule

A preliminary injunction preventing the Federal Energy Office (FEO) from enforcing an edict which could cost Newport Beach almost $90,000 annually has been issued by Judge Jesse W. Curtis in Federal District Court, Los Angeles.

The state and the cities which receive offshore oil royalties filed suit last month asking the court to overturn a February FEO administrative directive which removed their exemption from oil price controls set by the Cost of Living Council (CLC).

Prior to the directive, the state and cities charged the market price for tidelands oil rather than the CLC regulated price. The market price is approximately 50 per cent higher.

Speed Limit Set

NEWPORT BEACH — A 30 mile-per-hour speed limit on Westminster Boulevard between old Newport Boulevard and 15th Street has been approved by the city council.

School Fire Set

ANAHEIM — Juveniles who entered an unlocked classroom door at Cerritos Elementary School, 3731 W. Cerritos Ave., Monday night set a fire, which caused $1,500 damage, firemen said.

Ellsberg Blasts Nixon Administration For Secrecy

By JOHN HARDY
Register Staff Writer

IRVINE—Daniel Ellsberg, the man who revealed what five presidents allegedly concealed about U.S. war policy, Monday blasted the Nixon administration for its secrecy.

Speaking before more than 1,000 persons at UCI, Ellsberg for nearly two hours quoted extensively from Watergate testimony to bolster his contention that the administration is too secretive about foreign and domestic policies.

"I hope the president will fail in keeping what he calls the 'strength of the presidency,'" Ellsberg said. "The American people have been fooled. There is still a war going on in Indochina."

Ellsberg said Nixon has given a number of reasons why he's keeping secrets, mainly because of national defense and to "preserve the strength of the presidency."

"The President has been properly sensitive about lies coming from the White House because he was the lie," Ellsberg said at one point.

Ellsberg, a former Marine who admitted he had been called a "traitor" for releasing the top secret Pentagon Papers to the New York Times for publication in 1971 quipped that "after my association with the Marines, my contacts with the 'new left' are not as rich as they could be."

Ellsberg said he turned the Pentagon Papers over to the Times after having access to them in his job at the Rand Corp. in Santa Monica.

"Going back through them, starting in 1969, my perspective changed as I reviewed a quarter century of policies," Ellsberg said. "I found the same kind of deception of the American people had been going on for years. Even though I voted for Nixon, I found out he was going to carry out the same air war actions as President Johnson." "While the votes were being counted on election day in 1964 and Sen. Barry Goldwater was being defeated, we in the Pentagon sat down to carry out Goldwater's strategy," Ellsberg said. Goldwater had advocated "total victory" in Vietnam while Johnson was pleading for peace.

"President Johnson's landslide victory over Goldwater was based on a hoax," Ellsberg said. "Goldwater, a general in the reserves, knew the election was being stolen from him by a false representation of what strategy awaited this country."

"We must conclude that Goldwater was thinking, 'who would believe me against the president?' I'm only a United States senator and a major general." After exposing the Pentagon Papers, Ellsberg quickly ended

Prize Makes Mr. Kurt A Fat Cat

By MICHAEL O. WESTER
LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Newly bankrolled Mr. Kurt, a giant Siamese cat, returned to the hospital Tuesday for his second operation.

There are no villains in this tale. The owner of the cat, Debra Cranford, 37, feels pretty happy about the whole thing.

A court Monday declared her the legal winner of a clothing store contest, in which she had entered Mr. Kurt's name, and the proprietors were perfectly willing to pay the prize.

The store wanted a legal ruling, however, before handing over the $750 first place check.

"We always intended to pay, but we wanted the court to say that the cat's owner was the legal winner—just so in the future the second or third place winner would not be able to file a suit claiming they had won the first place prize," said Jim Mock, assistant store manager.

The cat has an illness similar to gallstone infection in humans. He had an operation earlier this month, was brought to the court Monday and reentered the animal clinic Tuesday for another operation, probably next week.

"I'm happy we got the money," Debbie said. "We'll use it for medical expenses."

When Judge Deniz Bevers of Lubbock County Court declared Miss Cranford the legal winner, Mock immediately presented the $750 winner's check.

Attorneys for both sides said they could find no precedent in court records where an animal had been declared legal winner of a contest.

COURT TO REVIEW VERDICT

Lip-Reader May Have Swayed Jury

DETROIT (UPI) — An appeals court said it will consider reports a lip-reading juror swayed a verdict after deciphering whispered conversations between a defendant and his wife.

The case involves the conviction last autumn of State Sen.

Charles R. Youngblood Jr. and Frank Szymanski, a Wayne County (Detroit) probate court judge. The two were convicted on charges of conspiring to bribe a member of the State Liquor Control Commission.

The appeals court said Monday it would try to determine if the juror, Pat Miller, influenced the verdicts by telling fellow jurors what she learned by reading the lips of Szymanski and his wife when they spoke in the courtroom.

In one of the alleged conversations, Mrs. Szymanski reportedly described Miss Miller as a "dumb blonde."

Szymanski said Monday that after the conviction he heard of the lip-reading from an attorney, who lives next door to another member of the jury that heard the case.

A private detective said in an affidavit submitted to the court that the second juror, Margaret Eady, told him she discussed the lip-reading with Miss Miller.

Miss Miller reportedly said she learned to read lips as a child when she suffered a hearing problem and spent one year studying lip-reading.

Szymanski was sentenced to 30 days in jail and Youngblood to 60, while a third defendant, beverage salesman Louis Papas, was sentenced to 90 days. Youngblood resigned from the senate and Szymanski withdrew from the bench pending appeal of the verdict.

The three men were convicted of conspiracy to bribe in a case involving a liquor license for a supermarket chain.

2 'Passengers' Pull Stalled Elephant Truck

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — They pulled the old do-it-yourself elephant truck on Hollywood Boulevard Tuesday.

A circus truck carrying four pachyderms broke down on the Hollywood Freeway and coasted to an intersection of the famed street of the stars where the brakes locked.

Traffic began backing up for nearly a mile so, instead of waiting for a tow truck, the driver got two of the elephants out of the trailer and pulled the rig out of the way. After the engine and brakes were repaired, the elephants were reloaded and truck drove away.

HONG KONG FIRM GONE

Investors Wonder Where Money Went

HONG KONG (UPI) — An investment program that netted its four organizers — three Americans and a Canadian — more than $1 million has left up to 200 Hong Kong commodity speculators wondering where their money went.

The men who set up the Pacific Commodity Exchange Ltd. have disappeared, according to the police, and so have most of the company's records.

"At this stage there is no evidence of any criminal offense," John Grieve, senior superintendent of the Hong Kong police commercial crime office, said.

Even so, the police have asked law enforcement officials in the United States to help in the investigation of the four, identified as Americans Jerome Goosen and Fred Carew of Encino, Calif., and Jack Higgins of Dallas, and Canadian Orest Evasuk, who had been living in Sherman Oaks, Calif.

The four opened the Pacific Commodity Exchange Ltd. in October to handle highly sophisticated and frequently risky investments in coffee, silver, cocoa and other commodities.

I.H. Fredricks, sales and managing director of the company, said that in slightly more than five months, the four collected more than $1 million from 200 investors.

By March 22, all four had left Hong Kong and still haven't been heard from.

"They didn't even tell me they were leaving," said Fredricks. "They left a message that they would be back but, needless to say, I haven't seen them since."

Fredricks said the four never showed him company records and took many records with them so he and the police still are trying to determine if the money collected actually ever was invested "or if they just took it. It's still impossible to piece all the records together."

He said some of the investors did make money on the funds they gave Pacific Commodity Exchange but after the four men left Hong Kong "the checks (to investors) started bouncing and money (from investments) didn't come in."

Because of the missing records, Fredricks said he and the police have not been able to determine how much money is owed to investors.

Police in Los Angeles said the four men established a business in Encino in 1972-73 and allegedly fleeced 4,400 investors and 15 companies of some $18 million. An investigation into the operation still is under way, and no criminal complaints have been filed.

The business was known as Puts and Calls Inc.

Judge Refuses To Move Trial Of SLA Members

MARTINEZ (UPI) — Contra Costa Superior Court Judge Samuel Hall Tuesday denied a change of venue in the attempted murder trial of alleged Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) members Russell Little and Joseph Remiro.

The pair were charged in connection with a Jan. 10 incident in which they allegedly fired at a Concord policeman after he stopped their van in a residential area. The van contained SLA material, police said later.

Ex-Footballer Faces Murder, Holdup Charges

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Former collegiate football star Tommy Boutwell was released Tuesday in the custody of Las Vegas police for his return to Nevada to face charges of murder and armed robbery.

Boutwell, 27, former quarterback for the University of Southern Mississippi, turned himself in last week to Jackson authorities. He was sought in Nevada in connection with the murder of the wife of a Las Vegas casino slot manager.

Officers said he waived extradition and left Jackson Tuesday in the custody of Las Vegas police.

Boutwell was wanted in connection with the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Marvin Krause, 64, in an alleged robbery Jan. 14 at the Krause residence in a Las Vegas suburb. The victim's husband worked as slot manager of Caesar's Palace hotel-casino.

Investigators said the woman was killed and her husband injured when two men wearing ski masks entered their home.

Las Vegas police said another suspect, identified as Jerry Weakland of Las Vegas, was arrested last month in the case.

Boutwell, who still holds a school record at southern Mississippi for most passes thrown and completed in a single game, played briefly for the Miami Dolphins following graduation. He also played in the Canadian Football League and with a semi-pro team in Las Vegas.

NO POLLUTANTS

Coastal Region Taboos Proposed

By LARRY WELBORN
Register Staff Writer

LONG BEACH — No fossil fuel, generating plants or freeways will be allowed in the coastal region if the south coast regional control commission staff has its way.

The staff is recommending against electric generating plants or freeways because of their potential air pollutants. The recommendation came in the form of a policy guideline incorporated in a preliminary draft of the coastal land environment of the south coast master coastal plan.

The staff also recommends that all air pollution sources which are not coastal related must be removed from the coastal area and that all coastal related pollution sources be required to use the latest technology to minimize pollution to the greatest possible extent.

The recommendations, and many others, will be considered by the commission April 29 at 3 p.m. at the Harbor Administration Building in Long Beach. Public input is invited at that time.

The coastal commission was given regulatory authority over all development within 1,000 yards of the coastline with the approval of Prop. 20 in 1972.

It also was charged with developing a land use plan for the coastal region, inland to the nearest mountain range or a distance of five miles, whichever is closer to the ocean.

The coastal land environment element is one of nine being considered by the six regional commissions. As each element is completed, it will be sent to the state coastal commission, which will then adopt a preliminary statewide plan.

The regional commissions will be asked to make modifications to the state plan. The state panel will then adopt a final plan, which will include all elements, to be delivered to the legislature by Jan. 1, 1976, when the coastal commission system ends its existence.

The other eight elements of the final plan will be marine environment, geology, appearance, and design, recreation, energy, transportation, intensity of development and powers, funding and government.

The south coast commission's staff also is recommending that new residential developments "remote" from existing employment and commercial centers not be permitted because such developments encourage heavy use of individual private vehicles, aggravating the air pollution problems.

The staff also is recommending:

- Encouraging alternative transportation models, possibly by requiring an annual financial contribution to transit services in lieu of parking spaces.
- Requiring duplexes to be consolidated to provide more open space on small lots.
- Requiring service stations to install devices to minimize evaporative losses during fueling operations.
- Preserving all agricultural land or any land capable of being utilized for coastal-related specialty crops.

- That all future planning and development must provide for the conservation and restoration of natural habitat areas.
- That seven watershed areas in Orange County must be protected from intensive development by preventing growth-inducing roads, sewers and storm drains. The watersheds are San Joaquin Hills Canyon, Upper Laguna Canyon, Aliso Creek, Sulfer Canyon, Salt Creek, San Juan Canyon and Boat Canyon.
- That all coastal mining be discouraged.

The report prepared by the staff to substantiate the recommendations said that air pollution problems in the area are "sufficiently severe to damage life and threaten coastal resources."

Substantial amounts of prime agricultural land has been lost to urbanization in recent years, the report said, and there is a distinct threat that more land will be lost to development because of high land values and accompanying high tax bills.

OC To Finish Two Stories Of Courthouse

SANTA ANA—County supervisors Tuesday agreed to complete half the remaining unfinished stories of the new courthouse.

The Superior Court judges had asked that all four top floors of the 5-year-old courthouse be completed, at a cost of $3.4 million.

Supervisors, who went along with them once but decided later to reconsider, said Tuesday only 10 courtrooms on two floors will be needed through 1976. By that time, conditions may change that will eliminate the need for additional space.

Tom and Trusker, Huntington Beach architects, were selected to design the new facilities, expected to cost $1.7 million.

Supervisor Robert Battin voted against the architects proposed by Supervisor David Baker. Battin had suggested the Santa Ana firm of Grillias and Alves get the job.

County Administrative Officer Robert Thomas estimated that delaying the other two floors two years from now would add $310,000 to the original cost figured for doing all four floors at once.

Supervisor Ralph Diehrich argued for the reduction in new court space, claiming the current county growth rate probably will slack off.

Bills are pending before the state legislature, he added, that could combine the municipal and superior courts.

"Let's respond to the need now," he said, "and leave the question marks to the future."

Supervisors Tuesday also:

- Hired Fong, Jung, Nakaba Associates at a cost of $45,000 to design a master plan for an estimated $600,000 redevelopment of O'Neill Park.

The plan, due in 60 days, is to show how the park can be designed to avoid the existing overuse of some areas, repair damage remaining from the 1969 floods and incorporate the adjacent 271 acres being acquired for park expansion.

—Agreed to charge a property owner for removing any abandoned vehicle from his land. The fee, to be changed annually to reflect county costs of employee time and overhead, was set at $40.91.

—Approved an agreement with the new Lake Placentia Park Authority in which the county is to pay $500,000 for acquisition of the north county park.

The county is to share the $991,000 estimated purchase price for the 38-acre lake park with Brea, Fullerton and Placentia. The park would be located near Golden Avenue and Kraemer Boulevard.

First Transit Panel Meeting Set For Today

IRVINE—First meeting of the newly formed Transportation Commission, a citizens' group established to assist the public works department, will be held at 7:30 p.m. today in city council chambers.

The commission will consider traffic safety, transportation planning, school and pedestrian safety, and bike trail improvements.

The commission will recommend policies for acquiring, developing and improving land and facilities, and advise planning of equestrian, bicycling and highway networks in the city.

Commissioners will also meet with existing citizen information groups such as the Commuter Committee and the Citizens Bicycle Trail Committee.

Members of the commission, who will serve one-year terms, are: Mary Ann Gaido, Lowell Johnson, Carol Morris, Carl Morrison and Robert Ruth.

Health Chief Urges Full Inoculations

SANTA ANA—Orange County's chief health official recommended Tuesday that residents be inoculated against diphtheria.

The disease was responsible for the death of a 20-month-old boy here April 3.

While Dr. John R. Philp, county health director, said the recommendation was not being made as the result of the death, he said inoculation was a good idea now because one other person has been hospitalized with the disease and two others have been hospitalized as possible carriers.

Inoculation now is a routine practice in pediatrics and is required before a child can enter school, he said.

The usual immunization is a "three-in-one" shot which guards against diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus, Dr. Philp said. It usually is started at two months of age, with three subsequent shots two months apart, a booster shot a year later and another booster just prior to entering school, he said.

While the final booster shot is good for 7 to 10 years, it is a good idea to obtain subsequent boosters, the county health official said.

He said 29 county clinics offer the inoculations. Information as to the location and times of the clinics can be obtained by calling the Orange County health department, he said.

Harbor Board Changes Times Of Meetings

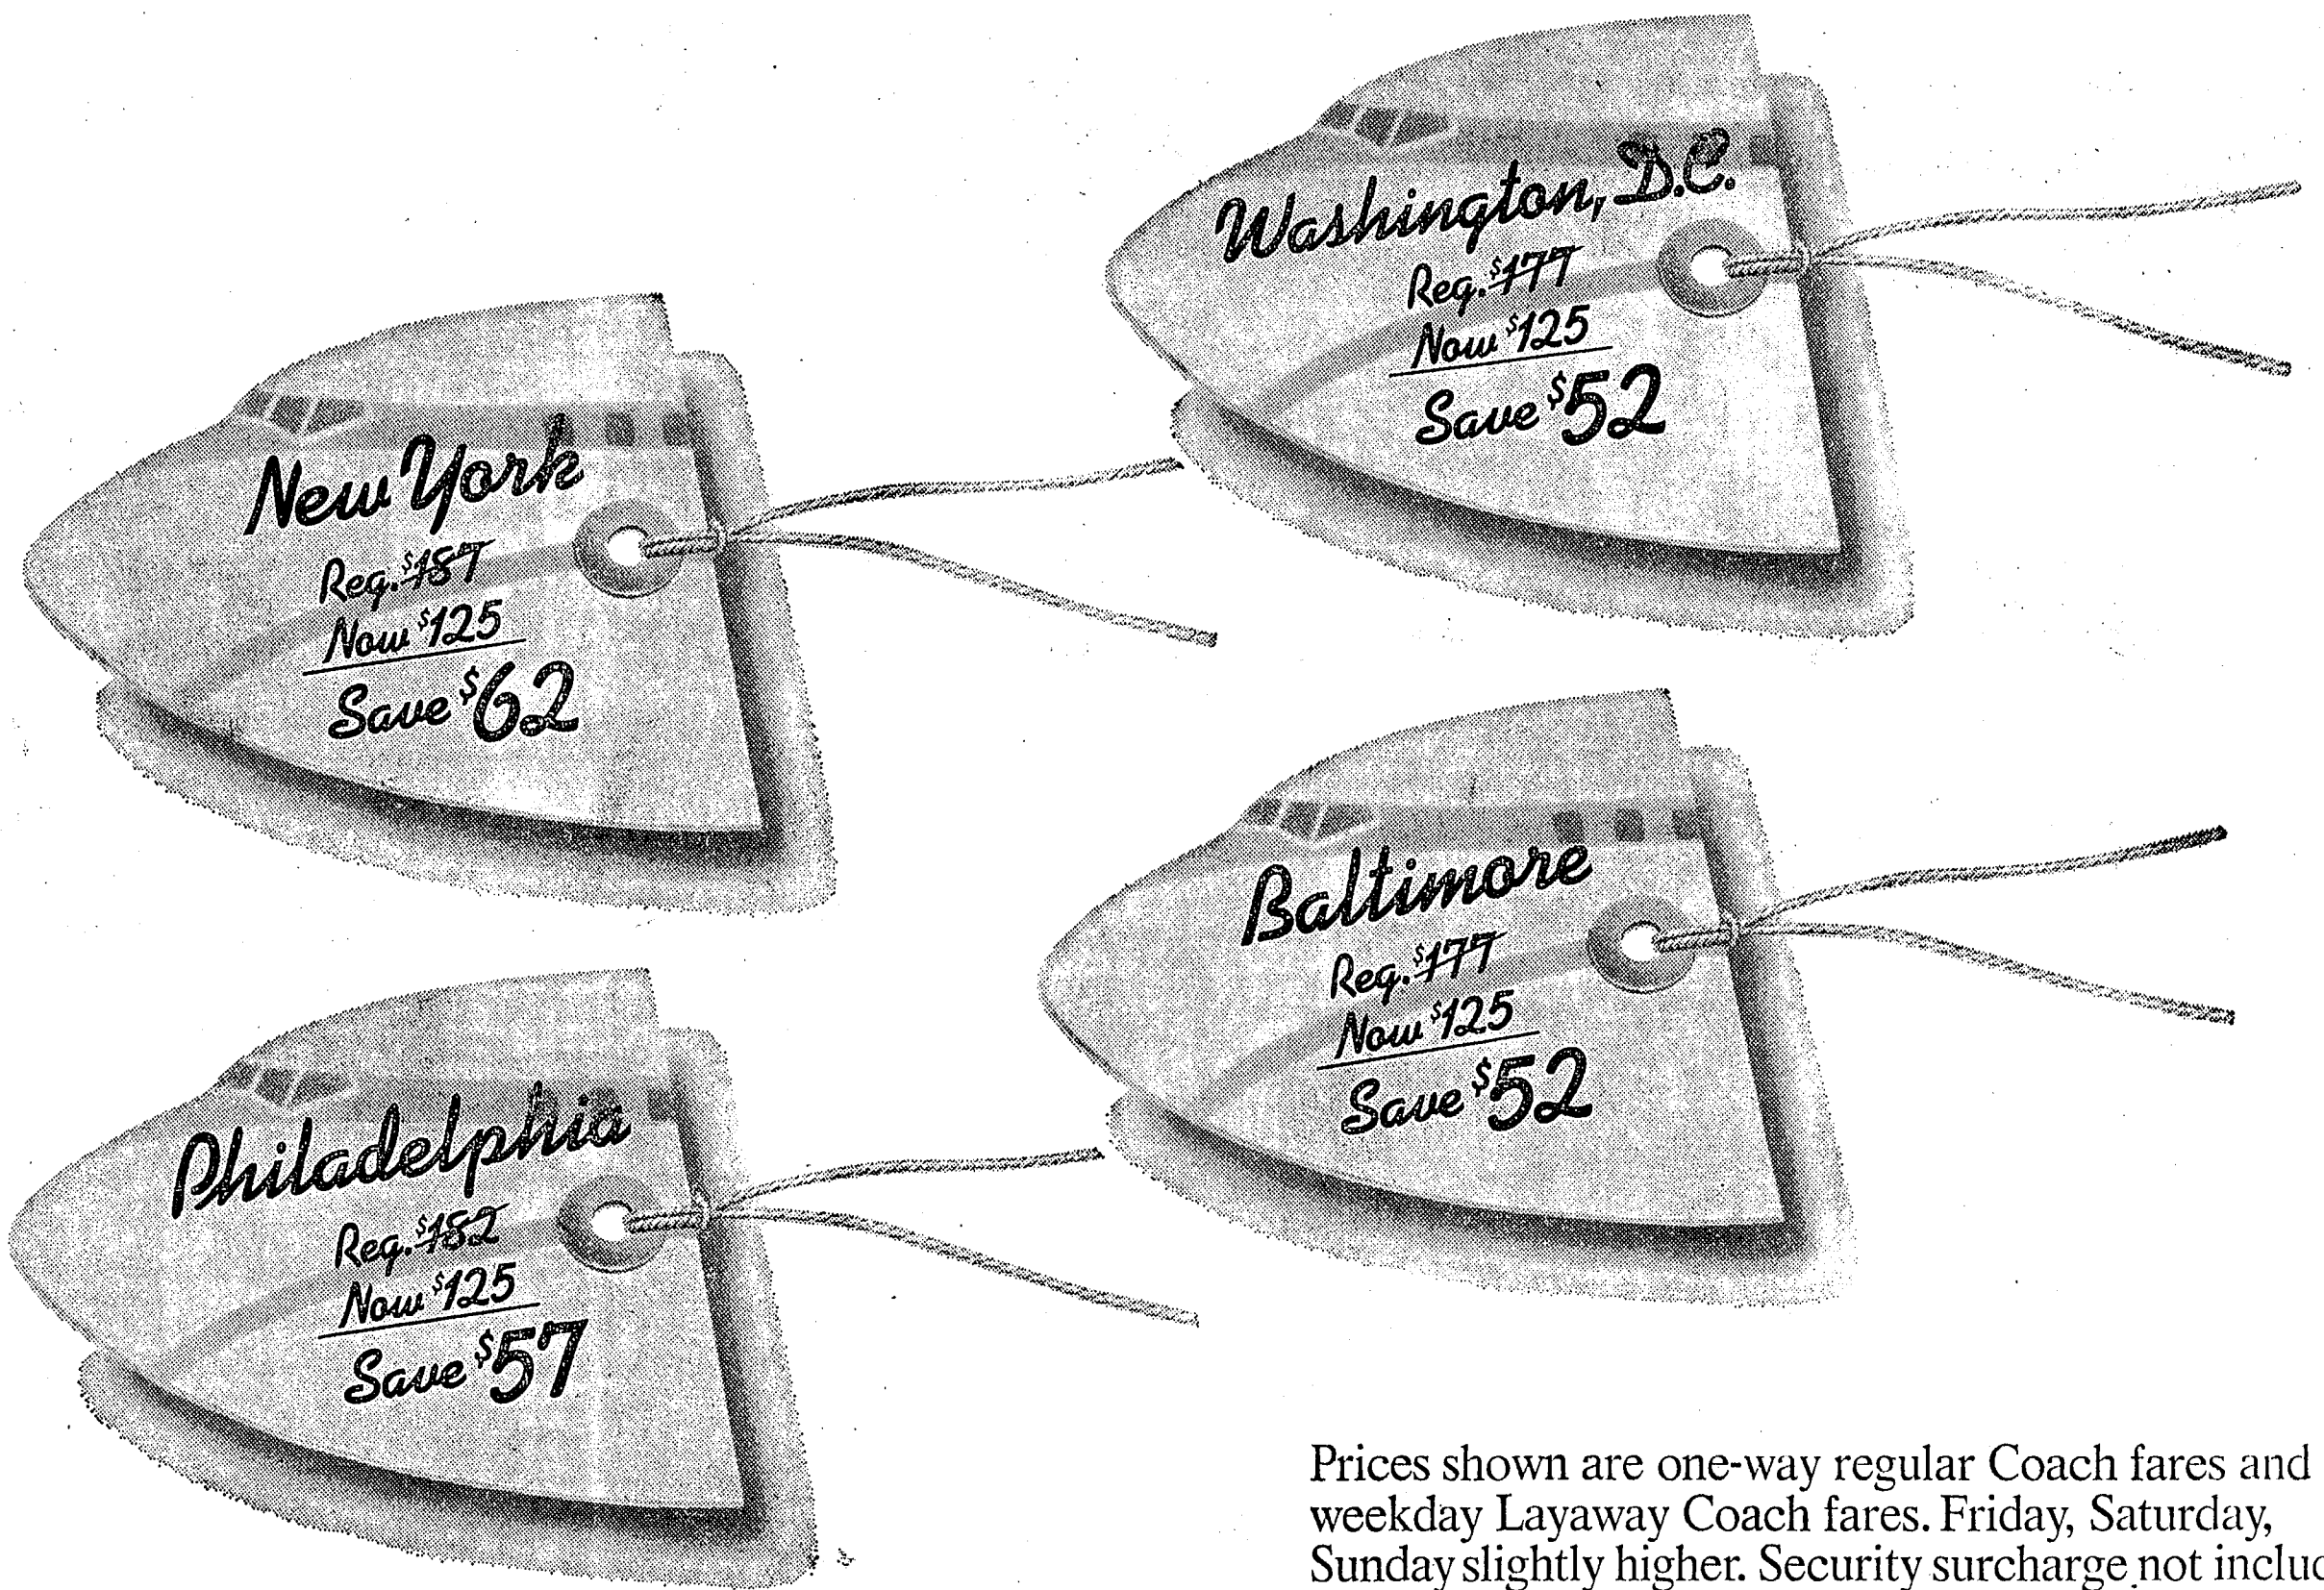

NEWPORT BEACH—The county Harbors, Beaches and Parks Commission has changed the times of its May, June and July meetings from 2 to 7 p.m.

The Orange County-Newport Beach joint harbor committee, which is advisory to the commission and to the Newport Beach city council, also agreed to shift its meeting time from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. for the same period.

Both groups will continue to meet on the second Tuesday of each month at the harbors, beaches and parks district headquarters, 1901 Bayside Drive here.

Commissioner Frank Robinson said the changes were made to encourage more public attendance at meetings of the two groups.

United announces "The Layaway Fare." $20 down holds you these bargains.

Prices shown are one-way regular Coach fares and weekday Layaway Coach fares. Friday, Saturday, Sunday slightly higher. Security surcharge not included. Tickets valid only on United Air Lines. All fares subject to CAB approvals.

Think of it as a 90-day layaway. By planning ahead you can save 20 to 33% over regular Coach fares to the East Coast.

United's "Layaway Fare" can do more than just save you money. You can take care of all of your travel arrangements well in advance of your trip. And there's no minimum or maximum time you have to stay.

"Layaway Fare," one-way to the above cities, is only $125 Monday through Thursday and $140 Friday, Saturday and Sunday. And you can make round-trip arrangements, and save twice as much.

Here's how it works.

By making a $20 non-refundable deposit for each flight at least 90 days in advance of when you want to leave, we'll confirm your date of departure.

Then you have to pay the balance of your fare at least 45 days prior to departure. We'll tell you your exact flight and departure time within 30 to 45 days before you leave. Whenever possible, we'll fly you nonstop. Otherwise, it will be a convenient one-stop or connecting flight.

That's all there is to it. And if you want to, you can use your United Air Lines Travel Card to charge it.

"Layaway Fare" seats available on any given day are limited. Fares quoted are high season, effective July 8 through September 30, 1974; even lower October 1st through March 31, 1975 with certain dates unavailable during this period, subject to CAB approval.

So don't delay. Contact your Travel Agent today. Or call United at 537-7521. Plan ahead and take advantage of United's "Layaway Fares" to the East Coast.

Motorcyclist 'Outlaws' Open Campaign To Improve Image

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A hand out when they do a boy scout-like good deed. One method of improving their image, Ettien said, is to help stranded motorists. And some motorists who have had car problems on a Delaware County road reported that they have been helped by members of the club, who left them a business-sized calling card reading: "Warlock's M. C. you have just been helped by an outlaw motorcyclist. When we do right no one remembers. When we do wrong no one forgets."

Robber Shoots Restaurateur

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Restaurant owner Joseph Tong, 50, was fatally shot Monday night when he grappled with a gunman during a robbery attempt. Police said Tong and his brother, Stephen, were ordered to hand over receipts from the cash register when Joseph struggled with the thief and was shot in the chest. The suspect fled and Tong, though wounded, pursued him. The gunman shot a second time and Tong collapsed.

One motorist who was helped was Judi Gattone, 20, Linwood, Delaware County, Pa. She said the Warlock who offered to help her looked like a mechanic on his way home from work and offered to give her a ride on his bike. She refused, so he helped push her car more than a block to a spot where she could get it off the road. "I said 'Thank you' and he handed me this card," Miss Gattone said. "He was very polite. "I thought like most people do that they (members of "outlaw" motorcycle clubs) were rough and tough," she said. "But afterwards I felt maybe they're not as mean as people think they are."

Big Entourage

An entourage of 24,000—noblemen with their families, servants, plus household goods—accompanied the Empress Elizabeth of Imperial Russia whenever she moved the 400 miles between her palaces at St. Petersburg and Moscow. At her death in 1918, Elizabeth's closets contained 15,000 dresses.

SOCIALIST PLAN

British Columbia Tax Perils Mines

TORONTO (UPI)—New taxes imposed on mining by the new Democratic (Socialist) Government of British Columbia threaten to halt all mining exploration and development of new mines in the mineral-rich Canadian west coast province, according to mining companies. The companies claim the taxes are so heavy that opening up a new mine simply will not be worthwhile. The NDP government, elected in 1972, announced the taxes in February as an attempt to "give the people a fairer share of the natural resources they own."

Starting in 1975, the province will take an annual royalty of 5 per cent of the net value of a mine's production, less smelter and transportation costs. (For 1974, the royalty will be only 2.5 per cent.)

more than 20 per cent above this level, the government will take half what a company sells above this amount.

The companies say the taxes completely overlook mining's basic need for large amounts of money for exploration and putting a new mine into production. Recent world prices for most British Columbia mine products have been extremely high, but the industry claims it needs the high prices because the cost of developing new mines in Canada has almost doubled in the past six years.

The mine companies are particularly alarmed at the way the new taxes are linked to price increases, because, they say, mining needs big profits in its best years to continue costly exploration and development in its leaner years.

The mining industry is warning that the government should not be lulled into thinking all is well by the fact most mines will continue to operate. Some mines making only a marginal profit will close, the industry says. Scholz says he knows three in this position.

Survivors Mark Anniversary Of Bataan March

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Survivors of the Bataan Death March, their numbers smaller than a year ago, Tuesday raised a white flag to commemorate the 32nd anniversary of their 90-mile forced march through the Philippine Jungles.

Jack Aldrich, commander of the Albuquerque chapter of the Bataan Veterans Organization, said about 60 former soldiers who began the march on April 9, 1942, hoisted the flag to symbolize the surrender of American forces to the Japanese on the Bataan Peninsula.

Aldrich said about one-third of the more than 9,000 soldiers that began the march were part of the New Mexico 200th Regiment. He said only one out of every seven men survived the ordeal and that those who lived to return home often died of injuries suffered during the march through tropical jungles.

Move To Hike Impoundment Fees Delayed

NEWPORT BEACH — Final action on a measure increasing fees to owners of impounded animals by 15 to 20 per cent has been delayed by the city council.

City Manager Robert L. Wynn was ordered to present more information after Councilman Richard Croul objected to procedures for claiming animals.

Animals caught by animal control officers in the city are boarded by Dr. Albert Stockton, a Corona del Mar veterinarian, under the terms of a council-approved contract.

Croul complained that Stockton charges what he said is an unreasonably high fee of about $30 to persons seeking a pet and wishing to save an impounded animal unclaimed by its owner from being killed.

The comparable fee at many municipal shelters, he said, is only about $6.

Croul also said that claiming of an animal by its owner or selection of an animal by a pet seeker is hindered by the fact that neither is allowed to see the animals in the pound unless he first describes the animal he is seeking.

In this case, Croul said, the animal is brought from the animal keeping area to the front of Stockton's office.

Wynn said insurance regulations are the main reason the general public is not allowed in the animal keeping area.

In addition to increased boarding fees for Stockton, the new fee schedule would increase the basic impoundment fee from $5 to $6 for dogs and from $2 to $3 for other animals.

Approval of the new fees was recommended by police chief James Glavas, who said his department made a check of charges by other agencies and found that, where a direct comparison was possible, Stockton's fees were reasonable.

Suspected Pill Makers Granted Hearing Delay

NEWPORT BEACH — A preliminary hearing in Harbor Municipal Court here has been continued to Friday for two Corona del Mar men charged with conspiracy to manufacture and sell amphetamines.

The hearing was continued for Richard Lawrence Henson, 22, of 705 1/2 Iris Ave. and Kent Rianda, 27, of 316 Larkspur Ave. They were arrested March 25 and 26, respectively.

Police said a combined effort of the Orange County Narcotics Task Force with the Newport Beach and Glendora police, Federal Drug Enforcement Administration, state Bureau of Narcotics, and San Bernardino County Narcotics Task force led to the arrests.

Officers said Rianda, a chemistry teacher at Glendora High School, and Henson, a local self-employed cement contractor, manufactured the amphetamines, a stimulant known as "speed," at a cabin at Green Valley in San Bernardino County.

Officers said they had purchased one pound of the drug from the pair for $3,000, and had arranged to buy five more pounds for $11,000 at the time of the arrests. The latter, police said, was intended to be sold to narcotics wholesalers and eventually would have had a total street value of about $60,000.

JO'S JOURNAL

By Jo Graham

The Day She Reported To Work Early

"I'll lay you a nice big Easter egg
If you'll show me the nettle-place on your leg."

—A.A. Milne

"The Little Black Hen"
Years ago I worked as night-side typist-receptionist at KOCY in Oklahoma City. I remember making an Easter "egghead" caricature of our farm news announcer. He had just the right kind of bland, full countenance to be translated to the face of an egg.

When I finished, it looked startlingly like him, even to the little rolled-up cigar I had stuck into one corner of his wide grin —after very carefully boring a tiny hole there.

Appropriately, he always led off his farm news with the question: "Who left the henhouse door open?"

That was in 1945. I'll never forget April 12 of that year.

I went to work a little earlier than the usual 5 p.m. It had been a weird day, all around.

I lived in a room "with kitchen privileges" at the home of an Oklahoma City widow and her unmarried daughter. My husband Harry was "somewhere in England."

I tried to sew during the forenoon, but couldn't concentrate. Around noon it got as black as night. Made one think of the biblical account of Christ's death. (I found out later that a tornado had hit a section of Oklahoma City. The dayside receptionist had been kept really busy answering calls from the curious and from worried relatives.) There were only three telephone lines.

I sat down at the reception-ist's desk, not really intending to "go to work" yet. The phone rang. I answered it.

"Let me speak to someone in the news room." I made the connection.

A few minutes later I heard, coming from the speaker in the hallway these words:

"Ladies and gentlemen, we interrupt this program to bring you a news bulletin that has just been handed us. THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES IS DEAD."

The news was unbelievable.
But the aftershock came when

Completely at a loss for the right words—nothing like this had ever happened to him, or probably would, ever again—he nevertheless knew he had to say something. So—in a state of panic—he plunged headlong into the script at the place where he had left off:

"Now, if you'll just send one dollar and a box-top..."

HILLSBOROUGH (UPI) — A gift of the vast but decaying chateau of the late Countess Lillian Remillard Dandini has been rejected unanimously by the city council.

Two major reasons were cited by the council: conflicting ownership and repair costs.

When the countess died at the age of 93 last July she indicated she wanted the city to use the chateau, known as Carolands, as a cultural museum.

However, Carolands was half owned by the Remillard Brick Co., and the 12 residual heirs who inherited the stock of the company indicated they were not willing to give up their interest in the estate.

Mayor Philip Coughlan also told the council that the only way to raise the $500,000 needed to bring the decaying chateau up to standards would be to float a bond issue. He said the cost to retire the bonds over 30 years would be $2 million.

Usually Vacant OC Buses Busy

HUNTINGTON BEACH—Bus stops that normally stand empty were crowded with teenagers
Monday as the school population, free for the Easter vacation, emptied into the beach area, said an Orange County Transit District official.

"We have refurbished five of our old buses and three of them are in service this week," said Nancy Coss, of the district's operations division.

Wallet Lures Two Suspects In Rape Case

MIDWAY CITY—Two of four men suspected of raping a 26-year-old woman here were arrested the next day after they returned to the woman's home to retrieve a lost wallet.

Sheriff's deputies said the four men were burglarizing the woman's home when she returned at 1:30 a.m. Friday. The four then took turns raping the woman and left, deputies said.

According to officers, a wallet belonging to one of the men was found outside the woman's home, but there were no identification papers.

But, the next day, two of the men returned to the home and asked about the wallet. After telling them to wait, the woman notified a neighbor who held the men at gunpoint until deputies arrived, investigators said.

The two men, identified as Thomas Trujillo, 24, of 1702 W. Raymar St., Santa Ana, and Michael Magdaleno, 23, of Los Angeles, remained in Orange County Jail Tuesday on charges of burglary and rape.

Bail for the pair was set at $25,000 each.

FEO Discloses U.S. Will Get More Saudi Oil

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Although stoutly denying the U.S.-Saudi Arabia "expression of cooperation" announced last week was a bilateral oil agreement, U.S. officials disclosed Tuesday more Saudi oil was expected to be imported into the United States soon.

Stephen Wakefield, assistant Administrator of the Federal Energy Office, told a congressional subcommittee "Saudi production levels are now above the pre-embargo levels."

Oil exports from most Arab states were curtailed in October as a result of the Israeli-Arab conflict.

"The big question is how much higher will they go," Wakefield told the Near East and South Asia subcommittee of the House of Representatives.

He said production in Saudi Arabia was now 8.3 million barrels daily and the western oil company consortium, Aramco, had planned to raise production to 20 million barrels daily by 1980 in Saudi Arabia.

Wakefield said production there may reach 11 million barrels daily by 1975.

Wakefield, asked about the U.S. share of Saudi output, said that before the war the United States was getting 700,000 barrels daily and expects soon to get 1 million barrels daily soon.

George M. Benschky, a state department official who testified with Wakefield, told the committee of a new "special relationship" being developed with Saudi Arabia.

"I would like to make clear that this is not a bilateral oil agreement," he said.

He said the relationship grew out of long standing ties and "mutual interest in peace and stability in that part of the world, the significance of American oil companies to the Saudi economy, and our support for Saudi Arabia's efforts to develop its economy and modernize its defense and security forces."

Irvine Branch Library Plans OK'd By County

SANTA ANA—Preliminary plans for a county branch library in Irvine were approved Tuesday by county supervisors.

The 10,000-square-foot facility, to be built at Sandberg Way and Whitewood Way, is estimated to cost $350,000.

Architect George Knowles briefed supervisors on the square-shaped building with a central skylight.

Supervisor Ronald Caspers noted that some area residents wanted the feature in a building but complain now that it blocks the ocean-to-mountain view.

Final working drawings can be ready to go to bid this summer, he added, with construction expected to be completed about 10 months later.

Branch libraries are proposed for the Dana Point and Laguna Niguel areas following completion of the Irvine building.

Trial Opens For Suspect In Theft Ring

NEWPORT BEACH—One of three men accused of participating in a $400,000 six-city burglary ring had all charges against him dismissed Monday at a preliminary hearing in Harbor Municipal Court here.

Court officials said burglary charges were dropped against Pat Moreland Dowell, 23, of 12819 S. Main St., Santa Ana, for lack of adequate evidence. Another defendant, Paul Frederick Fulkerson, 27, of 10442 Lampson St., Garden

Police said the suspects were involved in a total of 250 burglaries committed over the last eight months in Newport Beach, Santa Ana, Garden Grove, Fullerton, Costa Mesa and Buena Park.

Officers said March 26 that five others connected with the ring would be arrested "shortly" but now say that other arrests will be made only after "considerable investigation."

It is still believed that other persons may have been arrested by law enforcement agencies in connection with individual burglaries but not linked to the ring, police said.

S. Laguna Plan OK'd Except For Roads

LAGUNA BEACH—City planners have approved the South Laguna General Plan, but they oppose any roads that would bring more traffic into the city from the county area.

In a presentation of the plan before South Laguna residents last week, mobile home residents of Hobo Canyon voiced opposition to an aspect of the plan which showed a road going from the top of Arch Beach Heights down through the canyon. The residents complained that the road would "wipe us out."

The planning commission recommendation now goes to the city council for approval. A public hearing on the South Laguna plan is set for April 23 before the county planning commission in Santa Ana.

The planning commission recommendation now goes to the city council for approval. A public hearing on the South Laguna plan is set for April 23 before the county planning commission in Santa Ana.

The county planning staff requested city comment on the plan because the land is next to the city.

In other action, the commission:

—Continued to April 22 a hearing on rezoning the "Sycamore Hills" property in upper Laguna Canyon, and decided to discuss details of the case at a special study session at 7:30 p.m. Monday in city council chambers;

—Continued to April 22 the public hearing on amended R-1 zone density standards, and continued to the same date a decision to set hearing dates to consider amending the R-2, R-3 and commercial zone density and development standards;

—Denied the request of Richard Massen to create three single-family lots and street improvements on Bonvue Terrace; —Voted 3-2 not to reconsider parking requirements for the proposed Laguna Lumber Yard relocation.

France's Socialist Party 'Thorn' Rose To Power Against De Gaulle

By United Press International
In 1965, with a presidential election looming and Charles de Gaulle looking unbeatable, the once-mighty Socialist party chiefs were squabbling among themselves, unable to settle on a candidate.

A relatively unknown deputy, Francois Mitterrand, sent a laconic press release to a news agency saying, "I am a candidate."

Personality Spotlight
Within weeks, Mitterrand, using a fine blend of political muscle and cunning, pulled together the feuding Socialists behind his banner. Then, astonishingly, he managed to take enough votes in the first round of the vote to force de Gaulle into an embarrassing run-off, in which Mitterrand polled a losing, but respectable, 45 per cent of votes. From then on, Mitterrand, making a religion of perseverance, became the workhorse of the political left and self-appointed thorn in the ruling Gaullist majority.

Born Oct. 26, 1916, at Jarnac, South-west France, one of eight children of a provincial station-master, Mitterrand says his upbringing was "Catholic and traditional." Adept at his studies, he soon was sent to Paris to work for a law degree.

His first friend in the capital was Joseph Fontanet, now Gaullist education minister. Mitterrand's own early political leanings were conservative, a fact some critics have harped upon.

"I deem it more honorable to have evolved from right to left than vice versa," Mitterrand replied.

When the war came, Mitterrand, aged 24, exchanged his books for a rifle. But his battle experience was typical of the French defeat: he was wounded near Verdun, captured by the Germans and taken out of France.

On the third attempt, Mitterrand escaped and returned to France where he immediately joined the Free French resistance.

With the war's end, Mitterrand reaped the fruits of his resistance role and took the junior ministry post, in the first de Gaulle cabinet.

But he soon grew critical of Gaullism and severing all ties with the right wing, joined the Socialist party. During the musical chair politics of the Fourth Republic, Mitterrand held 10 different cabinet posts.

At the age of 57, Mitterrand's political acumen is a matter of common knowledge. His acid tongue and sharp wit in parliamentary debate are undisputed.

But Mitterrand nevertheless inspires a feeling of mistrust in many voters. Some speak of him as opportunistic and ambitious. In 1959, he was accused of arranging his own "assassination" attempt during the Algerian crisis in a bid for public sympathy.

A short, swarthy man, Mitterrand, unlike most of his compatriots, takes little interest in gastronomy. He neither smokes nor drinks. Press photographers consider him a difficult subject because he has a nervous tic of batting his eyelids.

He is married to a former schoolteacher and has two sons.

Outlook Grim For Survival Of The Bunny

By FRANK SPENCER
CHICAGO (UPI) —In this season of the Easter Bunny, official notice has been taken of a decline of rabbits.

But shucks, you say, if there is a rabbit shortage all we have to do is wait awhile, such is their reproductive ability.

This biological truth, however, is swiftly being reduced to a theory. Your typical cottontail doe can produce six to nine bunnies every few weeks—the gestation period is 30 days—but she is downright particular about where she produces them.

According to the Illinois Natural History Survey, which this week brought the rabbit decline to public attention, cottontails require "favorable habitat" to multiply in their accustomed style. And in Illinois, as everywhere else, the bulldozers have been closing in on the rabbit warrens.

In Illinois alone, according to the survey experts, there was a decline of almost 5 million acres of "favorable habitat" in one recent four-year period.

During this period, the experts said, the rabbit population dropped 69 per cent. And the trend lines in all parts of the country indicate a continued rise in bulldozing, a steady depletion of rabbits.

Surely, you say, some group will discover the plight of the cottontail and rush to protect these creatures. Don't bet on it.

The ordinary rabbit has few real friends. And practically everything is his enemy. Among predators, rabbit is a favorite food. Coyotes, according to a Nebraska study a few years ago, prefer them to chicken. And whatever his reputation for speed, dogs and cats seem to have no trouble outflanking the average cottontail.

It turns out that of all his enemies, the one most dangerous to the rabbit way of life is the farmer. Nowadays farmers put every square inch into cultivation. This means no patches of brush for the rabbits.

The only people who have expressed much interest in preventing a complete rabbit wipeout are the hunters. They want to keep a few around so they can kill them.

Save Wiggle, Judge Tells Nude Dancer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Melinda Zollicoffer offered to do her thing for Circuit Court Judge F. Emmett Morrissey. He asked her to save it for a younger man.

Miss Zollicoffer's thing is dancing naked in the Upstairs Lounge in suburban Golf Mill.

The 24-year-old brunette was up on a charge of obscenity. She offered to give Morrissey proof there was nothing obscene about her. Morrissey begged off.

He said he was hearing, or watching, the case only because the regular judge, Walter P. Dahl, was away. Morrissey protested he is a bikini man; at most, Dahl is a bit younger, he said, and might have a more judicial view.

The case was postponed until Thursday, when Dahl is scheduled to take it on.

The attorney for the Upstairs Lounge, Julius L. Echeles, a Chicago criminal attorney, argued that dancing naked "is no different from the art in the nude which can be seen in the Art Institute of Chicago."

CRACKER CRUMBS

By HARRY L. GRAHAM

No Joyrides For Cowboys Of Old West

My dad shot my mental picture of the Old West so full of holes when I was a kid that shoot-'em-ups have been hard for me to believe ever since.

It just wasn't all fleeing rustlers and blazing six-guns, Dad told me after taking me to see a Jack Hoxie movie in the 1920s.

I'll never forget how he embarrassed me that day. He laughed so loud at some of the gun battles and fist fights that I hoped the other kids in the audience wouldn't notice we were together.

"Wait until the Buster Keaton comedy to laugh, Dad," I whispered. "This is supposed to be real."

Dad shook his head and grinned.

"Cowboys worked their cowponies," he said. "They didn't just ride them to town to get drunk or to chase runaway stagecoaches."

He said a cowboy's job was to raise cattle. Doctoring a sick calf was a much greater part of his life than practicing the fast draw.

Cowpuncher, Bronco Buster Dad should have known. He had been a cattleman all his life. Born in central Texas in 1883, he began punching cows in northwest Texas when he was in his teens.

He worked as a bronco buster, a horse wrangler and as a general cowpoke before buying his own spread. In later life, he was a cattle buyer, and rode a horse daily in his business.

But somehow I just didn't see him as being anything like Tom Mix or Hoot Gibson. He lacked their glamor.

He still wore cowboy boots and spurs, but I doubted that he had ever packed a revolver.

I brightened when he said he had. "When I was working," he explained.

"Did you ever have a gun-fight?"

"No," he replied, "I never even saw one."

"But there were gunfights, weren't there?" I said hopefully.

"Occasionally," he admitted. "Usually over a woman or a card game, when the liquor had been flowing freely."

"What did you use your six-gun for?"

"To shoot wolves or coyotes or snakes and small game."

Good Marksman

Once, he said, while on a cattle drive in Indian Territory, he had killed a prairie chicken with his pistol from a distance of 125 yards.

Dad also told about felling a wolf more than 300 yards away with a single shot from a rifle.

"I was pretty good," he said, "but luck had a lot to do with those two shots."

Cattle drives in the movies may look romantic, but Dad said they were just plain hard work. He had made two into Indian Territory and one to Dodge City, Kan.

In the movies, a cattle drive seems to be over in a few days or weeks. But Dad said the ones to the Indian Territory lasted two months, and the one to Kansas took all summer.

The drives from Texas to Wyoming or Montana took two years, he noted. "They would winter in Colorado."

Dad said rustlers or Indians were no bother on the drives he made, nor were any cattle lost in Red River floods or quicksands.

Flying Banned Near Pageant

International Food Sharing Needed, 2 Economists Claim

By BERNARD BRENNER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the world facing years of skimpy food reserves and periodic hunger threats, the time has come to develop an international system of sharing access to food in times of scarcity, an Overseas Development Council report said Tuesday.

The report said such a system would mean the United States, as a primary source of world food exports, would be limiting its right to keep supplies at home during periods of short supply and high food prices. But in return, the pattern of cooperation set by such agreements might help Americans get more oil and other scarce foreign materials, it said.

Food-sharing arrangements "would set a precedent of great potential value to the U.S. and the world in dealing with nonfood resources where similar questions of access to supplies are emerging," said economists Lester R. Brown and Erik P. Eckholm, authors of the report.

The study also called for strong U.S. support for efforts to create an international food reserve system in which the stockpiles would be built up during occasional years in which production outruns demand. The economists said such reserves would stabilize prices and would also help prevent mass starvation when crops are poor in heavily-populated developing nations like India.

"High food prices and shortages are an inconvenience for both national and international individuals," the report said. "For the sizeable segment of mankind that spends 80 per cent of its income on food, however, a doubling in the price of wheat or rice cannot possibly be offset by increased expenditures. It can only drive a subsistence diet below the subsistence or survival level," Brown and Eckholm warned.

The report, titled "The United States and the Developing World: Agenda for Action, 1974," is scheduled for publication this month. It was to be previewed at a news conference scheduled by the Overseas Development Council here.

Brown and Eckholm said shortages and soaring prices for grain and other farm products last year reflected "important long term trends" as well as droughts in the Soviet Union and parts of Asia and Africa.

"We appear to be entering an extended period in which global grain reserves, which provide a crucial measure of safety when crop failures occur, will generally remain on the low side ... food prices are likely to remain considerably higher than they are during the last decade," the report said.

It said the world has become overwhelmingly dependent on North America for exportable food supplies, and is likely to be in a vulnerable situation on the food front in the years ahead.

As a result, the report contended, "it has now become essential to devise policies...

U.S. Vegetable Crop Off 5%, Bureau Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer supplies of fresh vegetables from April through June will be about 5 per cent smaller than in the same period last year, an Agriculture Department report showed Tuesday.

The report said potential production for 14 vegetable crops raised for the "fresh market" is currently estimated at 37.2 million hundredweight compared with 39 million hundredweight in the spring quarter of 1973.

The report indicated April-June production of tomatoes would be 3.986 million hundredweight compared with 4.567 million hundredweight last year. Sweet corn production was expected to drop from 4.143 million hundredweight last spring to 3.137 million hundredweight this year.

Declines were also expected for cabbage, celery, cucumbers, eggplant, escarole, lettuce and green peppers. Partly offsetting those drops will be increases for snap beans, carrots, cauliflower and spinach, the report added.

LA 'Amnesty' Ticket Program Called Success

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An "amnesty" program under which motorists holding 680,000 traffic citation warrants can clear themselves by paying just their fines has been successful in its first week.

A traffic court spokesman said motorists in Los Angeles County, offered amnesty for the full month of April, were turning in warrants at the rate of nearly 1,000 a day. Some motorists have more than one citation in their possession.

New Insight Claimed Into Amnesiac's Life

MOSCOW (UPI) — Lev Zasetsky was an army officer in 1943 when an enemy bullet blew away part of his brain.

A total amnesiac since, he has nevertheless struggled to produce a 3,000-page diary that Soviet scientists say has given new insight into treatment of amnesia and other psychoneurological problems.

"All who know Zasetsky... cannot but admire his personality, his strong will, and his thirst for intellectual life," said Prov. Alexander Luria, who treated him and made him the subject of his widely translated book, "A World Lost and Regained."

Luria told the Tass news agency that Zasetsky originally lost all ability to speak, write, count and express thoughts and was piecing together the diary from "fragments or reminiscences which come to mind and disappear right away."

"Very often he cannot even read what he has written himself because he sees only separate syllables and not whole words, and reading for him is an agonizing process," Luria said.

He said doctors first started trying to restore Zasetsky's mind by teaching him the most basic knowledge.

"This knowledge remains uncertain and unstable," he went on. "There is no memory, and thoughts and notions of things disappear... fall into an abyss, mindlessness."

Luria said the diary was the main thing keeping Zasetsky alive.

He said it demonstrated the "importance of an exertion of will" in battling cases of brain damage.

Good Grades Help Sales Of Ice Cream

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Making the grade when you're a high school student working for one of the city's ice cream parlors means more than knowing the difference between chocolate swirl and neapolitan.

It also means keeping at least a B average in your studies or taking a leave of absence from your job to work them up to that level.

The shop is one of a chain of Farrell's Ice Cream Parlor restaurants around the country operated by Bob Farrell who believes his grade works.

Farrell said that all high school students hired for parttime work must have a B average to begin with. If the grades drop, the employee is given a leave of absence in which to bring them up.

Farrell said the grade policy produces better employees but added he's not against hiring a dropout.

"If a dropout comes to us we will hire him," Farrell said. "However, if a kid is going to school and wants to drop out and continue working for us, we won't keep him."

Farrell, who teaches Sunday School and works with youth camp programs, also believes participants in sports such as tennis, track and baseball provide a youngster a chance to become a top worker.

"The combination of an athlete with good grades is hard to beat," he said. "He can discipline himself."

"We teach him we are here to make people happy. If we do that, we will make money automatically."

257 Civil War Widows Still Draw Pensions

NEW YORK (UPI) — The last veteran of the War Between the States died in 1959, but 257 Civil War widows still alive, according to the Veterans Administration (VA).

Seventeen of the 274 widows still alive last October have passed away in the last four months, according to statistics just released. The VA observed, "The widows are dying fast."

The oldest survivor is Mrs. Angela Davalos Moran, 117, who now lives in Polance, a suburb of Mexico City.

Inquirer Pair Win Award For Series On Oil

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two Philadelphia Inquirer reporters have won a special George Polk Memorial award for three articles in mid-1973 warning of an oil shortage several months before the Arab oil embargo.

The special award to Donald L. Bartlett and James B. Steele was among 12 for outstanding journalistic achievement announced by Long Island University-Brooklyn Center whose journalism department sponsors the awards. The announcement said the Inquirer series explained "the causes, full seriousness and presumed consequences of oil shortage in the United States well before the Arab oil embargo, and pinning their ideas down through hard, persuasive and alarming facts."

The George Polk Memorial Awards were established in 1949 to honor CBS correspondent George Polk who was killed in Greece in 1948 while trying to reach insurgent leaders for an interview.

'Street Drug' Called Killer

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (UPI) — A drug used by veterinarians to put animals to death that is so powerful less than a drop of it could kill a person is being sold on the streets by local pushers, police claim.

A 19-year-old girl has already died before they got the needle out of their arm.

"The drug is called sodium pentobarbital and is blamed for the recent death of Marilyn Shortell, 19. Police Capt. Donald Jackson said an analyst showed Miss Shortell's body contained "a huge dose" of pentobarbital as did the body of her companion, Mary Ann Treemont, 17, hospitalized in critical condition.

Engineering Society Lists Top 10 Projects For 1973

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport headed the list Tuesday of the top 10 outstanding engineering achievements in the United States in 1973 and the state also placed another enterprise ninth on the list.

The list, compiled by the National Society of Professional Engineers, said that DFW Airport, with an area bigger than the island of Manhattan, is currently the world's largest.

The society listed these nine other major engineering works:

- The Earth Resources Satellite Program (ERTS), controlled by a ground data handling system facility at the House Kills Motion To Air Mideast Alert

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Tuesday killed a resolution demanding information on President Nixon's controversial military alert order during the Middle East war last October.

On a voice vote, the House tabled the resolution introduced by Reps. Michael Harrington, D-Mass., and Fortney H. "Pete" Stark, D-Calif., after Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger failed to provide Congress with the information.

The resolution would have required Kissinger to turn over the text of all the messages between Nixon and Soviet officials and a list and chronology of all the orders and actions taken during the crisis last Oct. 24-25.

The House agreed with the Foreign Affairs Committee, which disapproved the measure 26 to 2, that most of the information was sensitive and in the national interest should not be released now.

In his response to the committee, Kissinger said he did not believe public airing of the information "would contribute toward the goal of peace which we all seek."

"Despite the considerable progress made in the Middle East since November, the situation there remains delicate."

"In our view, resurrecting the October episode now might well impair the progress achieved thus far."

In an unclassified summary of what happened during the crisis, Kissinger said an "unusually tough" letter from Soviet Party chief Leonid Brezhnev which followed movement of Soviet ships into the Mediterranean led to Nixon's decision to put U.S. forces on full alert.

"It was essential to clear up any doubt about U.S. determination in this situation and prepare to cope with the quickly unfolding events," he said.

Kissinger promised shortly after the incident last fall to provide Congress with the material, much of it classified, but had not done so by March 25 when Harrington and Stark introduced their resolution.

Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, who voted to table the resolution both in committee and in the House, nevertheless put the President and the State Department "on notice" that Congress was entitled to such information more quickly in the future.

"Never again should members of Congress permit themselves, for lack of reliable information, to be sucked into a war as we were in Southeast Asia," Gross said.

"Additionally, members of Congress are entitled to know why information concerning the alert of last October, which was denied to them, was leaked to a Washington newspaper."

County Forum Scheduled On Transportation

A countywide public forum on transportation problems will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 18 at Smedley Junior High School, 2120 W. Edinger, Santa Ana. The session will be co-sponsored by the Santa Ana Jaycees and the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG).

SCAG representatives will explain the agency's regional transportation planning and how it will affect county residents.

—The Brookfield-La Grange rock tunnel developed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago. It is one of the first elements in a master Chicago Tunnel and reservoir to collect, store and treat approximately 20 billion gallons of rainwater and wastewater mixture. The Rock Tunnel was designed to minimize flooding and pollution caused by combined sewers in Cook County.

—The Neuromuscular Assist device, presently being tested at the Rancho Los Amigos Hospital at Downey, Calif. It is an electronic device, part worn externally and part implanted, to stimulate paralyzed leg muscles in stroke patients. The Society said the device "could significantly improve the chances of normal walking conditions in thousands of stroke victims...."

—The Dworshak Dam and Reservoir, named after the late Idaho Sen. Henry C. Dworshak, which provides flood control and electric power generation to the Pacific northwest power pool. The project includes many recreational sites, water activities and fishing sites along 175 miles of shoreline.

—The Atchafalaya floodway crossing Swamp Expressway, an 18-mile section of Interstate 10 between Lafayette and Baton Rouge, La. It was opened to traffic in the spring of 1973 across the nation's second largest swampland.

—The Louisville Gas and Electric Company's Sulfur dioxide removal system, a major environmental engineering achievement which removes sulfur dioxide from pulverized coal boiler flue gas.

—The Philadelphia Electric Company's new automatic monitoring and control system which provides maximum service for its rapidly expanding power system for the Delaware Valley.

—The Sims Bayou sludge disposal plant, a $6 million program which provides water pollution abatement and total recycling of a waste product.

—The Inland Steel Company's number 1 Slab Caster and water pollution control facility at East Chicago, Ind., which permits new technological innovations to be utilized in steelmaking without polluting the environment.

Bold Coyotes Steal Golf Balls, Attack People

LOS ALAMOS, N.M.—The local coyotes steal golf balls, raid grocery sacks and watch cats and dogs "with a gleam in their eyes." But they also have attacked children.

A state official said the coyotes, normally shy and secretive, have become domesticated and aren't afraid to come into town.

And Mrs. Marie Conn is mad. "This has been going on for some time," she said. "Last September a slumber party of girls was attacked in the middle of the night. I know of several other cases of people being attacked by the coyotes."

The latest attacks were on Mrs. Conn's 12-year-old daughter, Chris, and a friend, Marie Stringer, also 12, as they lay in sleeping bags in their front yard.

"After our daughter was attacked Saturday, we reported it to the police, but I think they wanted to hush the whole thing up," Mrs. Conn said.

She said coyotes have snatched golf balls from the fairways of the local golf course, and "I talked with a lady who said a coyote jumped on her as she was getting out of her car and tore open her shopping bag."

"You can see them sitting on the street corners, eyeing your dogs and cats with a gleam in their eyes," Mrs. Conn said.

Walt Snyder, chief of the New Mexico Game and Fish Department's game management division, said it all started because some coyotes were raised as pets.

"We think that some of these coyotes that were hand-raised have been seen pretty commonly around there," he said. "And there's a possibility that the wild coyotes in the area are running with these pets and are losing fear of coming into town."

Rancher's Pet Buffalo Not Housebroken

LACROSSE, Kan. (UPI)—Rancher Harrison Honderick is sure of only two things about the shaggy brown pet he bought two and a half years ago and named Charlie.

The 1,200-pound buffalo will never be a lap pet and he'll never have the run of the house.

"Charlie's gentler, most days, than a wild buffalo and I can hand feed him," Honderick said. "Sometimes he'll follow me around. But I keep an eye on him every minute."

But sometimes he misjudges Charlie's mood and goes into the corral to feed him at a bad moment. When that happens, he fends off the beast with a feed bucket and his fist until he can get out.

"Actually I bought Charlie just to play with," said Honderick, who raises wheat and cattle on the flat plains of his 640-acre western Kansas spread. "Now I'm getting some potent home cure costs driver fine.

MRS. STANLEY BACON, arrested for drunken driving, told Judge Frances Allen she had been drinking "asafetida camphor," a home remedy for diarrhea.

Under questioning, she told the judge the remedy was part gin. "Well, how much asafetida camphor and how much gin?" pressed Allen.

plan to breed Charlie to them—probably in June.

"That should give me some 'cattaloos,'"

Charlie peacefully shares a corral with two other bulls, an Angus and a Hereford, and he will weigh close to a ton when fully grown.

"Charlie's a lot more dangerous than the other two," Honderick said. "He's a wild animal basically and always will be although he's gentled down some."

The rancher said his pet never has tried to escape.

"That buffalo is no fence crawler. That's because I got him young. At six months you can teach them quite a bit," Honderick said he had no idea how much it costs to feed Charlie in this era of soaring grain prices.

"He just eats with the other animals and I never even tried to figure out how much it costs," he said. "He's a plaything, not a business proposition, anyway."

"Actually, I'm not sure that Charlie knows his name. I doubt it. For one thing, we don't call him that all the time. A lot of the time we call him other things—nasty names."

Mule-Power Losing To Higher Prices

By MARGARET P. RICHARDS
FAYETTE, Mo. (UPI) — Howard Sartain's mules won a walkaway victory over the machine age years ago. Now they're on a collision course with inflation—a fight Sartain says they already have won.

"Sure, I'm keeping my mules," he said. "They do everything a tractor can do and sometimes more and you sure don't have much feeling for a tractor. I'm fond of my mules."

Sartain and his four nameless mules farm 250 acres of mid-Missouri land, mostly in hay because "We're going more into livestock."

"Those mules plow, they disk, they do all there is to except once in a while I hire a tractor for some extra heavy work."

Sartain said that so far as he knows "I'm the only farmer — anyway the only one around here—who still works mules for what a Missouri mule's intended."

The cost of mule upkeep, like everything else is zooming.

"A horse collar used to cost maybe $5," Sartain said. "Now it's $20 when you can find one —which is only one place over in California, Mo., so far as I know. And I keep my mules in good sound harness."

"You take shoes—they used to be a dollar a foot. Now they're $9 per foot."

Sartain said his mules eat mostly hay which "we raise" —a phrase that gives you the feel that "we" means him and the mules—"But I give each one of 'em a couple of gallons of corn a day. Corn costs about $3 a bushel—my price."

But Sartain has no problems with fuel shortages and doesn't worry about the price of diesel nor what the Arabs do.

"No," he said, "the energy crisis has nothing to do with me keeping my mules. I've been driving mules since I was 10 —when my father took me out and let me drive. And I've been breaking 'em since I was 18. But I don't break mules for anybody else any more—just myself."

"I'm 76 years old."

In the 66 years since Sartain first drove a mule he has owned so many that he ran out of ideas for names "and I just don't name 'em any more."

Sartain works his mules in two pairs, or as a single team of four "when the work's awful heavy." He said he has a standing offer of $1,800 for one of the matched pairs and $2,000 for the other.

"But they aren't for sale, period. I'm keeping 'em. Besides a good young mule costs $750 these days, and you got to train it."

His help in handling the animals, which he sees as patient, intelligent and dependable, is slowly diminishing.

"My dog, Fido—I guess he's kind of a collie—is getting old," Sartain said. "He still goes everywhere I go but he shows his age some. When he was young he could put them mules in a barn faster than any man you ever saw. They still move when that dog says 'git', but not so fast any more."

Sawmill Ringing Success In Economic Struggle Of Navajos

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Copley News Service

NAVAJO, N.M.—This northwestern New Mexico "company town" is the site of a ringing success story in Indian free enterprise. It is the location of Navajo Forest Products Industries, a sawmill that represents the first major step in what tribal leaders of the 132,000-member Navajo Indians hope will eliminate poverty conditions on the 16 million acre Navajo reservation.

Four hundred fifty Navajos work this sawmill, and they produce 54 million board feet of Ponderosa, blue spruce, Douglas fir and Alpine fir a year—with a $2 million profit to the Navajo Nation headquartered in Window Rock, Ariz., 18 miles south of here. More important, there are only 14 Anglos (white men) in the 540-man work force.

All the rest are Navajos, men and women of many skills in logging and wood finishing.

The company town shows neat rows of small bungalows and apartments. Some roofs sport television antennas. Life is good here. However, less than two miles away are the hogans of the poorer pastoral Navajos—no TV antennas, not even electricity; not even running water.

This is the contrast, with 65 per cent unemployment on the reservation and an average family annual income of less than $500 a year, that Tribal Chairman Peter MacDonald hopes to correct. MacDonald thinks Indians everywhere (he calls them the "first Americans") do not get a fair shake from the federal government, but he also personifies the "do it yourself" attitude of several Navajo leaders. "It really is up to the Indians themselves to work out their problems—and we Navajos intend to do just that," he said in an interview.

MacDonald's policy is for the Navajos to run their own businesses, their own industries; rather than leasing land for Anglos to operate on. This sawmill is the best example of what he is talking about.

Opened in 1958 with a $7.5 million investment voted by the Tribal Council, it has grown, is still growing and has big plans for future expansion. "Yes, they will make it, and it won't be long before we won't be needed," were the words of Daniel Soderlind, a Swede from the logging and lumber country of Washington and British Columbia. Soderlind is assistant general manager of the sawmill and he has watched the Navajos develop high skills in this tough business since his arrival here in 1964.

"These Navajos are good people and they are first-rate loggers," Soderlind said during a tour of the vast facility. "Sure, they must hire some skills—14 of us—but there now are only two of us in the logging department (all of the logs brought here for processing come from reservation forests).

"Of course some of it isn't easy. Some of this machinery is rather complicated, but they learn fast; they're great bulldozer operators. They like to learn and they beat any Anglos in cutting timber. They'll take 'cats' where no Anglo would go. And, they take to machinery; some already are top heavy-duty mechanics, and I get great satisfaction in seeing them develop."

Soderlind and the other Anglos here are preparing the Navajos for a new high profit but high risk endeavor in the near future—a wood partiles plant. It will use the residue not now put to generating power and other uses, in a $6 million plant that will produce high quality and high priced finished items. "But, we can't afford to make many mistakes in this venture," he said, "and we're going slow on it. Our first step is very, very important."

With the initial leadership that dedicated men like Soderlind represent and the enthusiasm of the men and women working the mill today, the Navajos would seem to be on the right track here in uplifting their economic plight.

Meet Slated On Setting Up School Program

LA HABRA—El Cerrito School parents are invited to discuss plans for developing an Early Child Education (ECE) program during a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the school.

El Cerrito may start ECE programs in kindergarten through third grades next fall, and officials believe parents may be able to offer helpful ideas, according to Almaretta Williams, ECA coordinator.

Parent volunteers, teachers and staff aides, have studied ECE programs at other schools, she said. But they want to hear comments by other local parents before they set to work drawing up a local plan for approval by the state schools department.

Court Day Set In Slaying Case

BUENA PARK—Victor Michael Johnson has been ordered to appear in Superior Court April 23 to answer a murder charge, following a preliminary hearing this week.

Johnson, 21, is accused of fatally shooting James E. Twyman, also 21, in Buena Park Feb. 18. A grand theft auto charge against Johnson has been continued to May 10, the district attorney's office said.

Save Gas while you see MORE EUROPE

Thoughts while waiting in line half a block from the gas pump: What's vacation going to be like? Will we even make it to San Luis Obispo? Maybe this really is our year for Europe, like the KUONI ads say. Why not try it out on the Better Half?

Back at the ranch, Better Half responds with characteristic enthusiasm: "Huh? Europe? Aren't there gas shortages there, too? And inflation? And fluctuating dollars?" Explain firmly to Better Half that KUONI answers absolutely every tour problem.

"KUONI WHO?" asks Better Half. That's our identity crisis. We're mistaken for everything from a Japanese theater group to an extinct volcano. Actually, KUONI is a Swiss-based tour company—a very active one—founded in 1906. We've been providing comfort, pleasure, and enlightenment for 68 years to more than a million travelers every year. By the way, that name is pronounced Coo-Oh-Knee. Put the stress on the "oh" or you will sound like a Frenchman suggesting a punch in the nose—a serious proposition in Paris.

$479 to $1432—THAT'S GUARANTEED! You know your basic costs in advance! That should reassure Better Half. One reasonable price covers virtually everything: charter air fares on luxurious 747 Jumbo Jets; fine hotels; most of your meals; deluxe motorcoaches; sightseeing; baggage handling; most tips; taxes; and, most important, well-trained, well-informed, multilingual tour escorts. Of course, you will want a few meals on your own—ah, those Parisian sidewalk cafes! And Better Half may want to bring back a Swiss clock for Aunt Agatha. But your basic costs are covered before you leave.

KUONI TAKES CARE OF YOU Shortages? Inflation? Fluctuating dollars? Don't worry about it one minute! Your plane seat is firmly booked! Your hotel rooms are reserved! Your motorcoach gasoline is allocated! So you can garage your four-wheeled problem, wave goodbye to your friendly gas station man, and take off for 16 to 23 days of carefree traveling. Cover the heartland of Europe or concentrate on a particular area: Scandinavia, England, Yugoslavia, Greece, Russia. Or if you're equatorially or orientally oriented, we'll take you to Africa or the Orient.

ARE YOU AN UNTOURIST? Maybe you've taken the escorted tour. Maybe Better Half is fiercely independent. For you, we have the UNTOUR. London, Paris, Rome on your own. Or simply London and England. We get you there and back, furnish hotel accommodations and many meals. Local hosts assist you when needed—and vanish when you want to be alone.

With KUONI's Fly-Drive plan, we fly you to Europe. You pick up your reserved rental car there. The rest is between you and the local gendarmes.

"LET'S GO!" says Better Half Spouses can be downright reasonable at times. The next step is to send for our beautiful brochure on WORLD WIDE MORE EUROPE (Orient or Africa). It gives all the details plus a tantalizing pictorial preview of the tours that offer MORE. Mail this coupon or call today.

HE CAN'T QUITE FILL IT — If the shoe fits, wear it as the saying goes. But for 11-year-old Luciano Fabiani of Bologna, Italy, the shoe poses a bit of a problem. The oversized shoe, weighing 331 pounds, was part of a display at a shoemaker's exhibition in Bologna.

Dream Of Prosperous S. Vietnam Has Died

By ALAN DAWSON
SAIGON (UPI) — The dream is turning into a nightmare.

In the nightmare, shoppers go to market with two baskets of money and go home with one basket of food.

Just before the dreamer awakes in a sweat, people are starving in the midst of plenty. There is street rioting and the government is in retreat. The army is in revolt.

The nightmare still lies in Vietnam's future. But the sweet dreams of a year ago have faded.

There is no peace, of course. Nor is there foreign investment, foreign aid, full employment, security or even a promise of these.

What there is is inflation, unemployment, unending war, rising taxes and an obvious, measurable fall in the standard of living.

In short, the dream of a year ago of a peaceful, viable South Vietnam, besieged by foreigners demanding the right to invest in a nation where labor is literate, hard-working and cheap, has died.

The average Vietnamese is broke. Rent and food eat up all his income and perhaps even more. His government is just behind him on the road to the poorhouse.

Militarily, South Vietnam stands by itself, proud in a perverse way that the U.S. armed forces are gone and South Vietnamese now defend their own country.

But economically the nation lives from day to day, sustained by dwindling—although still large—amounts of U.S. aid and the fading hope that the dream of foreign investment will come true.

South Vietnam continues to live off imports, a holdover from the days of huge aid payments from the United States when the unofficial American slogan was, "A motorcycle in every garage will make this nation an economic giant."

Now neither the Vietnamese people nor their government can afford even gasoline for the 1 million motorcycles U.S. taxpayers bought for them.

Last year, Vietnam imported $740 million worth of goods. It exported $60 million of fish, wood, rubber and war scrap.

South Vietnam has only $200 million in the bank. U.S. aid will fall this year from $385 million to $320 million.

This year, with prices of oil and all other goods rising throughout the world, Vietnam faces belt-tightening. Financial experts say the standard of living fell by 5 per cent last year. It will fall another 5 per cent or more this year.

"The government is making plans to clamp down on imports," said one U.S. aid expert.

But luxury goods continue to flow in—cognac, cosmetics, electronics. "It's a painful decision," said one source. "If they import it, they have to use their foreign exchange. If they don't import it, these goods will just be smuggled in anyway, paid for with gold by the smugglers, and the government will lose the tax."

Food remains plentiful, but essential, basic foods have doubled. Rice is worth twice what it was selling for a year ago, sugar prices have tripled, cooking oil prices have tripled and soap prices are three times what they were one year ago.

The U.S. Congress has refused to insure American businesses in Vietnam. Private investment has been discouraged by the incredible bureaucracy.

A major hotel firm was eager to invest. The government picked out a choice Saigon plot of land for the luxury hotel. One year later, the would-be buyers packed up for Hong Kong, the United States and their homes because in 365 days they had been unable to discover who actually owned the land, although they were willing to pay almost any price.

There is only one solution, economic experts now are agreed.

Unless foreigners are willing to pour dollars into Vietnam soon, "the aim of self-sufficiency will be slower," said one expert.

"Vietnam will have to compress its standard of living, and this will be more and more painful."

Europeans call the situation "stagflation"—rising prices and economic stagnation.

Vietnam's economic survival may decide the fate of the nation before the battlefield war reaches a climax.

'Rural Robber Baron' Arrested In Mexican Crackdown

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Tapachula.

Paco Anton, the last of Mexico's rural robber barons, may have started his spectacular downfall when he tried to fix a federal judge in a narcotics case.

Paco, once the overlord of Tapachula on the Guatemala frontier, is in a military prison. So are Tapachula's mayor and chief of police. So are Paco's three brothers. So far, 26 people have been arrested.

Federal authorities estimate that up to 150 people may have been slain in the past 15 years after crossing Paco Anton one way or another.

Paco was arrested in February, but the case did not attract national attention until this week, after the army occupied the city hall in cattle suddenly get sick and die. Their houses burned down. Their wells were poisoned. State authorities found it impossible to get witnesses to make a case against Paco.

Do-It-Yourself

Homegrown weather prophets predict a hard winter when trees have heavy budding in spring, plentiful summer foliage, brilliant autumn colors, leaves hanging onto branches long after frost and new twigs that turn dark quickly.

Paco had left federal authorities strictly alone until last December, when he asked a federal court judge to release a "friend," jailed in Tapachula for running narcotics from Guatemala. The judge shook his head. Paco began to have troubles he'd never had before.

One afternoon this January, Paco was taking his usual walk around Tapachula's crowded town plaza. He met the army general commanding the local border force. The general was unarmed. He said he had a favor to ask of Paco.

"I'm not trying to take your pistol away from you, Paco," he said. "I'm just asking you, as a friend, to stop wearing it. Take it home and put it away."

"As long as I wear pants I'll wear this pistol," Paco replied.

In February reporter Efrain Villatorio began writing an expose of the Anton gang for a Mexico City newspaper. Villatorio was machinegunned to death at his typewriter.

China Gaslights

Gaslighting may have been used first in China in the 10th century when natural gas was captured in bags or bladders as it escaped from the ground. When they wanted light, the Chinese pricked holes in the bags and ignited the gas as it leaked out.

Then Paco made his final mistake. He paid a visit to the state capital, Tuxtla Gutierrez.

There the army surprised him, disarmed him, jailed him incommunicado. Other arrests followed.

Some of those arrested, many of them wearing the U.S. Army surplus fatigues Paco called the uniform of his "boys," have begun to talk, legal sources said.

In Tuxtla Gutierrez Monday, state attorney general Luis Dominguez Carrascosa promised Anton and his cohorts would meet the full force of the law.

Adhering to no ideology, gangs like the one in Tapachula lived only for private gain. Gunmen sometimes painted a black hand on the corpse of their victim, to inspire fear and respect—a custom dating back hundreds of years in Latin countries.

Authorities here believe that in Tapachula, the black hand may have left its last imprint in Mexico.

'Lost' Painting Authenticated As Caravaggio

DETROIT (UPI) — A painting by the 17th century Italian master Michelangelo Merisi De Caravaggio that the Detroit Institute of Arts bought for $1.1 million in March, 1973, has been determined as authentic by the institute's conservator.

Caravaggio's "Conversion of the Magdalene," which was considered lost by art authorities, was offered for sale in 1965 by a wealthy Argentinian who found it in his family's country house.

The painting went unsold for eight years while authorities questioned its authenticity and minimum sale price of $1.5 million. The painting was shipped to Detroit in December, 1972, and final purchase agreements were made three months later.

Institute Conservator Meryl Johnson began an exhaustive study of the painting involving an examination of stained cross sections of the work under electron microscope.

The examination revealed an unconventional use of mixed media that appears to be peculiar to Caravaggio, who painted first in oil and then added final touches with egg tempera to give flesh tones an inner glow.

The painting depicts Mary Magdalene and her sister, Martha, at the moment when Mary receives divine revelation.

"I have used the staining technique to examine over 500 paintings," Mrs. Johnson said, "And I have never seen anything like Caravaggio's use of tempera over wet oil."

"I never had any doubts about the painting's authenticity. But one doesn't stumble across a lost Caravaggio every day, so the scientific analysis was necessary."

Russia Catching Up In Automobile Age

MOSCOW (UPI) — With an estimated two million passenger cars both private and belonging to public organizations, the Soviet Union still is in the infancy of its automobile age.

But production increased 170 per cent last year to 905,000 passenger vehicles and is planned to increase another 300 per cent by 1975. The Russians are starting to catch up.

Although car prices are high by Western standards, and particularly high for Russians with their lower wages, it is virtually impossible even to get on waiting lists to buy an automobile, such is the unfilled demand.

Would-be buyers must deposit the full purchase price and then wait maybe several years for delivery.

For those who do have cars, driving is delightfully uncrowded and parking easy to come by. The energy crisis hasn't hit home here yet, but because of the shortage of filling stations there are often queues. The lines do not approach American dimensions.

The pleasures of driving in the Soviet Union are offset by the frustrations of getting a car serviced and the lack of roadside facilities. Most car owners service their own vehicles, often using ramps specially built for that purpose.

Soviet automobiles range from a tiny, rear-engined Zaporozhets costing $4,500 to the ZIL 117, custom-built by the Moscow Refrigerator Factory for use by politburo members and visiting heads of state. Only about 50 of these have been built and their price is not disclosed.

The most popular car is the Zhiguli, sold in the West under the Lada trademark, which is a slightly less peppy version of the Fiat 124.

The Soviets last year produced their millionth Zhiguli at their new factory in Togliatti, and peak production is scheduled to reach 660,000 cars by 1975, with 250,000 earmarked for export.

Depending on the model, the Zhiguli ranges in price from $7,280 to $8,560.

Also on sale are:

— Chaikas, known as "chrome-plated bulldozers" and much in demand by middle to top echelon government officials, — Volgas, which are about the size of American compact chasers. A Zaporozhets, for export and which are much used as taxis and government vehicles, — Four-cylinder Moskviches, sell for $7,000, and are built with help from the French Renault company.

All the prices are lower for export and hard-currency purchase. A Zaporozhets, for example, goes abroad for $910.

Firm That Insured Guppy Says 'It Can Happen Again'

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — An insurance company that paid $650 to the beneficiary of a dead fish admits it could happen again.

President John N. Singletary of the Globe Accident and Life Insurance Co., said his firm has about 325,000 college student policies recorded in its Oklahoma City computer. Any one of them could be a ringer, he said.

The company issued a $650 check last week to a University of Arizona student who insured his pet guppy, Fred Finn.

Singletary said, with a sigh, "Yes, it can happen again."

technology these things will happen," he said. "Worse things have happened in other places and I imagine other things will happen. The problem is still human, in our case, the girl who programed it was thrown by the metric numbers, and the computer just didn't know any better."

The incident occurred last year after Stan Mazanek received a mailer addressed to "Occupant" that offered a $5,000 life insurance policy for $1 for six months. He took it.

But rather than take out the insurance on himself, Mazanek decided to insure his guppy, which obviously had a shorter life expectancy than he did.

Stan filled in all the blanks on the form:

"Age of insured: 6 months. Weight: 30 centigrams. Height: 3 centimeters."

Where the form asked about the state of health, Stan filled in "Good." Asked if he was a member of the military, Stan said, "No."

But instead of getting back a refund for his $1, Globe sent policy No. 3261057.

So, when the guppy died within the six-month time period, Stan filed a claim, and waited for his $5,000. Instead of a check, however, he got a visit from a sales representative who had taken another look at the policy.

DEAR ABBY

Her Friendship Questionable

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: As my husband and I were preparing to make a trip to Europe by air, one of my so-called dearest friends came to me and asked me if I would please get a $50,000 airplane insurance policy naming her as the beneficiary. She said she would gladly pay for the insurance!

I was shocked to say the least. What do you think of such a suggestion from a supposedly loving friend? I'd really like your opinion. PEACHES

DEAR PEACHES: Let me put it this way: If this "loving friend" invited me to her home for dinner, I'd wonder who she was loving, and I'd also take a food-taster along.

DEAR ABBY: It's a cinch you've never been to Alaska, otherwise you never would have told that 45-year-old woman who was husband hunting to go there.

There are no extra marriageable men here, plus jobs are scarce and prices are double. You should have told her not to go to Alaska unless she had a round-trip ticket and plenty of money. She's too old to be a go-go dancer. ERMA IN ANCHORAGE

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago I was hospitalized for a heart condition, and upon release, my doctor told me I had to take it easy.

My son, his wife and their three very active young children are neighbors to us, and the children are here more than they are at home. They wear me out, but I can't bring myself to send them home.

My husband hired a housekeeper to help me the last few weeks, but my daughter-in-law has begun to "borrow" her, so once again I am alone with those undisciplined children.

My daughter-in-law is a good girl, and I'm sure she doesn't realize the toll the children take on me. She's also very sensitive. My son tried talking to her about letting the children spend so much time at my house unsupervised, but she ended up in tears, all upset, and the next day they were back.

How can I handle this without hurting anyone? I love them all very much. NAMELESS, OF COURSE

DEAR NAMELESS: First, tell your housekeeper that she is not to be "borrowed" by your daughter-in-law. Then tell your daughter-in-law to please quit commandeering your help—that you love her and the kiddies, but you aren't up to having them over unless she is there to discipline them. Don't worry about her ending up in tears. Better that than you ending up in a box—before your time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED AND WAITING IN N.J.: The answer is YES! See a physician at once. And if you can't get an appointment immediately or can't afford one, contact your public health department and tell them what you have told me. And do not wait another day!

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Marsha wonders if the typical June-December romance is based on true love. Or other selfish motives. And she asks why some girls seem turned off by young suitors of their own age but are attracted to men much older.

CASE A-603: Marsha D., aged 18, wonders why some girls prefer to marry much older men.

"Dr. Crane," she said, "didn't Bing Crosby thus pick as his second wife a woman young enough to be his daughter?"

"And I have seen several cases where the college girls married men who were 45 to 50.

"Is it just because they crave the money or fame of such older men?"

"Or do some young women have an instinctive craving for a much older mate?"

JUNE-DECEMBER

The marriage of a coed to a man old enough to be her father is often described as a June-December romance.

Bing Crosby was 53 when he married young Kathryn Lang, and as far as I have heard, they are very happy.

But Bing was youthful in his outlook and activities, while Kathryn was more mature than many girls of her age.

And Bing is a smart psychologist who "leans" upon his wife for help, advice and cooperation, thus making her feel important.

Many a young couple break up because the husband doesn't lean upon his wife enough and make her feel a vital partner in his business or professional success.

Some girls, too, have an ingrained fondness for older men. Why?

Well, most girls have their first romance with a man 25 to 30 years their senior—their daddy!

So if such a little girl is the apple of her father's eye, and receives his love and affection all during childhood, she may subconsciously be "conditioned" to love an older man when she becomes a high school or college coed.

Such girls often find their male classmates unduly juvenile and immature. The same "conditioning" often occurs when a girl like Marsha becomes a secretary, nurse or dental assistant to an older man.

His more mature judgments and executive power resurrect some of her earlier devotion to her daddy.

Moreover, the older employer relies on his assistant and this makes her feel important.

If he happens to invite her to dinner or the theater, his more diplomatic ardor may contrast vividly with the impetuous love of a boy on a motorcycle, who may be her own age.

Older men, too, have usually acquired more understanding of female psychology.

So they can employ the erotic philosophy of Roman Seneca, whose advice to a young fellow on how to win a girl was:

"Go to the archer. See how he handles the bow.

"With one hand he pushes it away but with the other he pulls it back to him."

In modern parlance, that means "Keep 'em guessing!"

Older men thus are likely to be more adroit in their love making.

"A young man," said a recent divorcee, "stresses quantity, so he will kiss me many times."

"An older and experienced man kisses fewer times but prolongs the kiss and embrace till a girl begins to respond to his physical magnetism."

In this age of inflation, many girls also realize that if they wish to marry and have children, they'll need a man with a good income if they are to stay at home with their kiddies.

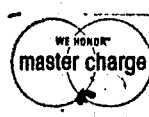

And this often requires that a man have a 10-year head start in the business or professional world.

So send for my "Tests for Husbands and Wives," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

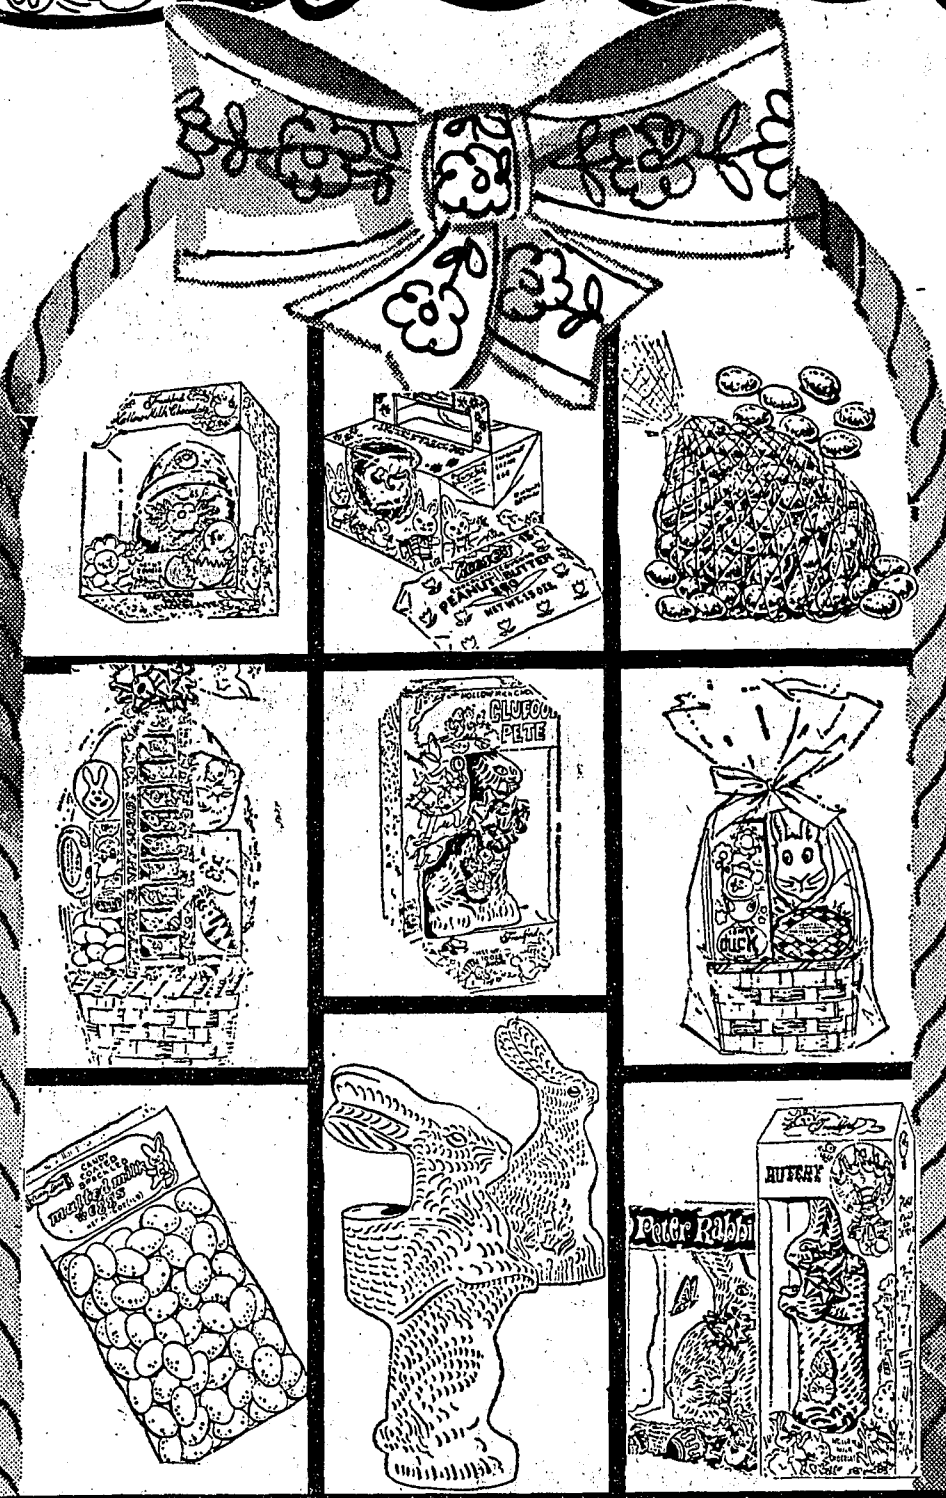

Address: Dr. George W. Crane, care of The Register, Syndicate Bldg., Melilot, Ind.

Fifth-Grader Challenges Teacher In Red China

By CHARLES R. SMITH
UPI Senior Editor
HONG KONG (UPI) — It's "pity the poor schoolmaster" in China these days, and the celebrated case of little Miss Huang Shuai, who is all of 12 years old, tells the story as well as any.

Miss Huang didn't care for the way her 5th grade teacher was doing things and wrote a long letter of complaint that was published prominently by the Communist party newspaper, People's Daily.

One who read the letter, and

The public argument between the commissar and Miss Huang developed when People's Daily published the girl's letter in which she criticized one of her teachers in the Chungkuan Village Primary School. People's Daily at the same time praised her for "daring" to "open fire at the pernicious influence of the revisionist line in education."

Some analysts specializing in Red Chinese affairs suspect that Miss Huang had a ghost writer, possibly from the People's Daily, for this and other letters published in the debate that went on for two months.

Her first letter said relations with her teacher "became strained" when she gave "revolutionary suggestions" to the teacher. "The teacher criticized me for 'harming the prestige of the teacher' and 'maliciously attacking the teacher,'" the letter said. "I thought that the teacher was suppressing democracy."

For this she suffered, the child wrote. "The teacher's main task during lessons was to incite my classmates against me...my classmates have recently constantly jeered and mocked at me, and vociferously attacked me on all sides."

As a result, she complained, "for many days I have lost my appetite for food and cried aloud in my sleep at night. However, I have not been subjugated and have repeatedly raised suggestions."

"What wrong have I done? Are we children of the Mao Tse-tung era to be made to act like slaves under the 'schoolmaster's absolute authority' created by the old educational system?"

All this was too much for Wang, serving as a political commissar in a regiment of the Red Chinese army's production and construction corps in Inner Mongolia.

In a long letter that got hardly none of the attention given Miss Huang's outpourings, he advised the child to "think seriously" about her "erroneous" attitude. He said "naughty children" such as she "have spoiled important matters" and created an "awful mess" in the field of learning.

"Huang Shuai, my suggestions to you are not only directed at your personal ways of doing things, looking at things and talking about them. At present, teachers in many schools have become timorous, punctilious, well-mannered men, while the students are in the habit of putting up wall posters" (criticizing their teachers), Wang wrote. "They (the students) call this 'going against the tide' and want to be trail blazers in the revolution in education. In fact, this is not a very good tide."

Miss Huang replied to this putdown in a long letter published in full in the People's Daily along with an editor's note saying that some people found her action "distasteful" and had come out with criticism.

"Comrade Wang Ya-cho is one of them," the editor's note said. "Huang Shuai has written a letter in reply, refuting his erroneous views one by one in a convincing and forceful way. Her letter is worth reading."

In Red China, when the People's Daily says something is worth reading, it is because what the party organ says comes close to being the law of the land.

"You," Miss Huang said in reply to Wang's criticism,

"have said that those with the spirit of going against the tide alone are not qualified to win the support of the masses."

took strenuous objection to little Miss Huang's views, was no less than a political commissar in the army, Wang Ya-cho.

And in an argument that captured the attention of the country, Wang can only be judged to have come out the loser.

The significance of all this is, of course, the nationwide political campaign going on in Red China, centered around criticism of the ancient sage Confucius.

DOG WATCH—It's a dog's life for these four canines lazing away the day atop an abandoned car in North Dallas County, Texas. The photographer suspected they might be watchdogs, but wasn't sure what they were supposed to be watching.

Dump Closed To Pickers Looking For 'Treasures'

By WARREN TALBOT
SOUTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. (UPI) — Frank Frisella likes dumps. Specifically, he likes to go picking through the rubble in dumps in search of hidden treasures.

So, it is understandable Frisella would become irked when the town closed its dump to all those who enjoy spending a weekend afternoon dump-picking.

Frisella, a 29-year-old letter carrier, is the founder and secretary of the South Kingstown Dump Pickers Association.

The group, which numbers up to 100 members, was organized last October when the town put out. And we are mad that we ban on their pastime. John Connors, town manager, said at that time the ban was put into effect because there were too many fires at the dump, and that the state was pressuring the town to curb the number of fires.

To Frisella and his fellow dump-pickers it sounded as if the town was blaming them for the fires.

"I can tell you that us dump pickers did not start any fires. Why would we want to set fires? We might burn something that we consider valuable," Frisella said Tuesday.

"The way we figure it, we are doing the town a favor. We are keeping the dump cleared someone to drop a cigarette butt on the ground."

can't go into the dump anymore," he said. Frisella and other members of his organization used to visit the dump often on Saturdays and Sundays. According to Frisella, he has been able to salvage a brass bed, a dog house, enough plans to build back stairs to his home, dozens of assorted chairs and gas cans which he says come in handy during the energy crisis.

"Since we put the ban into effect we have not had any fires at the dump," a spokesman for the town manager said. "I'm not saying the dump pickers are setting fires on purpose, but all it takes is for

Major Increase In Fullerton Building Noted

FULLERTON—New construction here during the first three months totaled $20,501,181, more than double the $8,954,347 figure for the same period last year when the city set a record of $66.7 million in a single year.

The city issued 237 building permits for construction valued at $8,623,837 during March, said Richard Morton, director of development services, in his monthly report.

The permits included 51 for single family dwellings valued at $1,588,351; 5 for commercial structures, $3,887,547; 2 for industrial buildings, $1,674,400; and 179 for miscellaneous projects, $1,493,539.

Park fees from the building permits during the first quarter amounted to $162,250 as compared to $42,310 for the same period last year.

2 Countians Held In Bank Robbery

LOS ANGELES — Two South Laguna men are being held in Los Angeles County Jail in connection with bank robberies in Los Angeles and San Diego.

The FBI said that James Hoskins, 24, of 32161 Pacific Coast Highway, Apartment 5, South Laguna, and his roommate, Timothy Coyle, 24, will be arraigned this week in San Diego on charges of robbing a branch of Union Bank there March 4 and a branch of Southern California First National Bank, also in San Diego, on Jan. 25.

Hoskins was arrested on suspicion of robbery while Coyle was being held as his driver-accomplice in the April 1 holdup of a Crocker Bank branch on Wilshire Boulevard. They were arrested April 2 at their residences by FBI agents and Los Angeles detectives.

They are being held on $20,000 bond, the FBI said.

Clothing Drive For Tornado Victims Begins

GARDEN GROVE — The Garden Grove Community Church is collecting warm clothing and blankets for tornado victims between 7:30 a.m. and 9:30 p.m. daily in the tower lobby.

According to coordinator Anne Vogelvang, when a "good" load is collected, the Salvation Army will fly it to the ravaged areas.

THURSDAY, APRIL 11

Your birthday today: Simplicity becomes a goal in your daily living. Unproductive activities and habits run their course, come now to choice or crisis. Regular meditation brings the guidance for making transitions to a better way of life. Relationships are tested so that you know where you stand. Today's natives are active workers of the sort who set particular goals and pursue them consistently.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Recovery from recent stress begins. Be wary of continuing impatience—the basic situation has changed a bit, give everybody a chance to respond.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Reach agreement before joint ventures are launched. If you submit a thriving enterprise, you win a point of encouragement from usually hard-to-reach people.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Pay little attention to words, a great deal to actions. Allow time for patterns to emerge. Your work should stand regardless of unsolicited opinions.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Come directly to terms. See precisely where you are in the scheme of things. Opposition, where you find it, has a real basis you need to know about.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Original ideas pop up, along with new formulations of very old ones. Social activity is clouded by momentary dissension; you needn't involve yourself.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Today's incidents promise drama, crisp memories for future reference. Postpone social events where they conflict with business.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your easiest path today runs to temperament, extremes of demand. Take a more austere approach for better effects, favorable hearings at all levels.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Opportunity for greater earning power is at hand. Do not boast of your backers. Let your reputation rest on the visible result of your own work.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Expect a contrary opinion, prepare to cope with it without animosity. Powerful friends are helping you behind the scenes—don't let them down!

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): There's much to do and little time for the doing, high rewards for good work. Caution with appliances, anything mechanical is indicated.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't get involved in speculative schemes provided by associates as matters of special privilege. Seek new personal and professional contacts where you can find them.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Financial improvement is feasible today. Family and individual projects tend to compete with career; little is achieved by interrupting serious work.

JEAN ADAMS' TEEN FORUM

TWO VERSIONS: (Q) — I called Peggy up and asked her to go out with me. She said yes, but all of her friends tell me that she is going out with another boy, and doing other things with him too.

She tells me this is not so, but I just can't tell if she is telling me the truth. Will you help me, please?—Unsure in Indiana

(A.) You asked Peggy for a date. She accepted. This does not give you the right to cross-examine her. It does not give you any control over her past, present or future.

2,450 Ducks Die Of Pesticides

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Tests have confirmed the deaths of 2,450 ducks in Riverside County March 14 were caused by a pesticide, the state Department of Fish and Game said today.

William Griffith, department coordinator of pesticide investigations, said the substance was identified as Furandian, a carbamate highly toxic to waterfowl.

The dead ducks were discovered in and around a dried-up reservoir near the city of San Jacinto. An adjacent alfalfa field had been sprayed the previous day with Furandian to combat the Egyptian Weevil. The sprayer had a permit.

Apologize to her for what you have done. If she accepts your apology and you remain friends, be honest with her and respectful of her in the future, and hope that she will be the same with you.

DISBELIEF: (Q.) Up until last year I lied a lot. But I saw it was costing me so I stopped. But now when I tell the truth my parents won't believe me.

For instance, my father had a coin collection. Somebody stole all the coins. My dad thinks I did. I didn't touch them, but my parents keep hassling me. How can I make them understand and care about me again instead of hating me?—In Pain in Maine

(A.) It is unprofitable to lie, as you have learned.

But what one has done in the past should not be charged up to him or her forever. Once a child has asked forgiveness and corrected a mistake, whatever it was, the parent should forgive and restore trust.

Have you told your parents you have changed? Have you asked them to forgive you for the lies you told in the past?

(Write to Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Jean Adams cannot send personal answers.)

First Tobacco Spitting Meet 'Open To All'

MONTICELLO, Ark. (UPI) — Good news: The first annual Arkansas State Tobacco Spitting Contest is open to anyone who can compete without getting sick.

"Anybody can enter," said Mrs. Carol Dawson, who is in charge of the event. "We're not discriminating."

"Women will be allowed to spit, cheek by jowl, with the men and may the best spitter prevail."

The great tobacco spitting contest will be held April 23, right there on the square in downtown Monticello. Prizes are three engraved spittoons. Rules are simple. There are two categories—distance and accuracy.

"Actually there'll be three because we have three spittoons," said Mrs. Dawson, but nobody has thought of what it will be yet. Maybe it will be for the best all-around spitter. Friendliest spitter is also being considered.

The rules are simple:

1. Each contestant will be given one package of chewing tobacco and when ready will be allowed three spits from a designated line.
2. Spitters who cross the line with their feet, although not with their chin, will be disqualified.
3. The spit must be the size of a half-dollar when it hits to qualify as legal.
4. Spitoffs will be held to determine the winner in the event of a tie in either category.

Dissident Circulates Booklet Telling Solzhenitsyn's Plight

MOSCOW (UPI) — A manuscript edited by dissident physicist Andrei D. Sakharov, circulating secretly the first known record of the events leading to the arrest and expulsion of author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn.

The "Live Not by Lies," Soviet H-bomb, and mathematician Igor Shafarevich said in a statement accompanying release of the typed manuscript to Western newsmen. Sakharov said there were no plans to publish the document in the West.

"Numerous voices, including those of people completely vulnerable to prosecution, show to what extent the hopes of decreasing the spiritual influence of Solzhenitsyn on the life of the country were illusory," they said.

The manuscript details at length Soviet and Western reaction to "the Gulag Archipelago," the Communist media campaign attempting to discredit Solzhenitsyn as a "traitor" and the writer's own campaign calling on Soviet citizens to stop cooperating with "The Lie."

It includes comments from such dissidents as Vladimir Voinovich, Mikhail Agursky, Lydia Chukovskaya, Roy Medvedev, Vladimir Maximov, Pavel Litvinov, Sakharov and Shafarevich.

"Solzhenitsyn is gone and they are trying to drive out the memory of him," it concludes. "It will not happen."

Cigarette Sales Continue Boom

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With per capita cigarette use increasing for the third straight year, U.S. cigarette consumption rose to a record 591 billion last year and probably will set another record this year, according to Agriculture Department specialists.

Economists said their forecast of a new peak in 1974 was based on prospects that per capita use may increase again while the total smoking age population will also increase.

In 1973, a report said U.S. factories turned out 644 billion cigarettes, 7.5 per cent more than in 1972. Domestic consumption at 591 billion was up 4.6 per cent from the previous year and consumption per adult in 1973 rose 3 per cent to 208 packs.

AUSTRALIAN EXECUTIVE CLAIMS

UFO Was 'Fright Of His Life'

By DAVID BRANCH and ROBERT B. KLINN

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is Part II of a recent exclusive interview with an Australian business executive who has extensively studied unidentified flying objects. Because of his top business position and high-level governmental sources, the executive has requested anonymity. This column refers to him as Herbert Moody.

"During the flap of April rotating like a horseshoe going around the top—globs of lights of every color going around this 'horseshoe.' He said it was sparkling like mad.

"So he took one look, his headlights unbent, and he rocketed off down the road. And he went straight to the police station."

"About how far was the car from the object?" we asked.

Moody sipped tea and then paused before replying. "About killed.

"He estimated it to be about 20 to 25 feet across the bottom," Moody said. "And that's exactly what I estimated the size to be of the one I photographed."

Moody then gave us some details of his own sighting.

"After examining my photograph, the CSIRO (Commonwealth Scientific Industrial Research Organization) confirmed that they thought the object was 20-25 feet in diameter. Following my sighting, they aerially surveyed the whole area. The Department of Civil Aviation supplied the aircraft. And the photographic experts, who came and measured everything in the area, worked out that the UFO was about 400 yards away and 300 feet up, which put it over a near by school. That's where I thought it was, too.

"Scientific and military experts drew all these things out of the photograph. They spent a lot of time and money doing it. There was an air vice marshal involved in the investigation. He was a pretty down-to-earth sort of fellow and very well known in Australia. And he told me that he had seen a UFO some years ago from an aircraft that he had been flying.

"Officials told me that my sighting was unexplained," Moody said. "But publicly the Australian Air Force tries to explain these things away. Or else they ignore them entirely."

(Copyright 1974 by ROBERT B. KLINN and DAVID BRANCH)

The Continuing UFO

1966," Moody said, "a building contractor was driving near Hamilton in Victoria, and he had the fright of his life.

"As he approached one spot on the highway, his car's headlights suddenly bent to the side of the road. His strong inclination was to turn the car in the direction of the headlights beams, following them. But instead he slammed on his brakes.

"He was startled to see, off to the side of the road, a UFO sitting on the ground. He did not stop but, after getting a good look, sped away. He was later interrogated by the Australian Air Force."

Moody had also personally investigated the case. "How many Air Force offices investigated the Hamilton incident?" we asked.

"Two. And according to the witness, the officers had an official book printed in America," Moody said. "The witness said that it appeared to him that there were at least 400 UFO pictures in it, a lot of them in color. He was asked to point out the shape which was similar to the one he saw parked in the field. The shape he pointed out was very similar to the photograph I took the same month. (Moody's picture shows a metallic-looking, half-spherical shaped UFO with a protrusion on its flat side.)

"The thing the witness had seen, though, was glowing with a circle of lights coming out of the top of it. As he said, 'It was

Burglar Shot During Theft Gets Jail Term

SANTA ANA—Jim Lewis Brandon, shot twice by an off-duty sheriff's deputy whose home he attempted to burglarize, has been sentenced to 60 days in jail.

Police said Brandon was shot in the leg by deputy David Allen, 29, after he pried open a door to gain entrance to the Allen residence at 3417 S. Tower St. here on New Year's Eve.

Brandon, 23, of 614 S. Mohawk St., pleaded guilty to first degree burglary.

Superior Court Judge James

Turner pronounced the sentence, which included three years probation.

Jewelry Taken

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A robber wearing a ski mask and carrying a pistol took $80,000 worth of diamonds, cufflinks, rings and rough cast gold from Tony's Jewelry Company on Wilshire Boulevard after tying up the owner, Tony Tanashian, 52, police said.

Jacoby on Bridge

By JACOBY & SON

As we have said many times, "If you want to overbid you should learn to play the dummy well."

South's jump to four spades was a slight overbid. It should have been apparent to him that the ace of clubs would be right in back of his king.

West did open the ace of hearts and continue. South ruffed and indulged in the luxury of playing his ace of spades. Then he led a diamond to dummy's king; a second diamond back to his ace and a third diamond to be ruffed low in dummy. Then he cashed dummy's king of trumps and led a club. East played the nine. South's king lost to the ace and West led back a low club to East's jack. East played a third heart and the hand collapsed.

South had three lines of play to make the hand. The simple one was to leave trumps entirely alone until after three rounds of diamonds. The other two are quite complicated. We will explain them to any reader who sends us a stamped addressed envelope. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

CARD Sense

The bidding has been:

West North East South

1♠ 1♥ 1♠ 1♥

Pass 2♣ Pass ?

Opening lead—♥A

Still south should have made his contract barring a really impossible defense. That impossible defense would start with West leading his eight of hearts. East would win and return a club. West would take two club tricks and lead a third club. East would ruff with the 10 of trumps and there would be no way for South to avoid the loss of a trump.

You, South hold:

♠K 2♥ A J 7 6 5 ♦8 6 4 ♣9 4

What do you do now?

A—Bid three clubs. Again your hand has become worth a second bid.

TODAY'S QUESTION

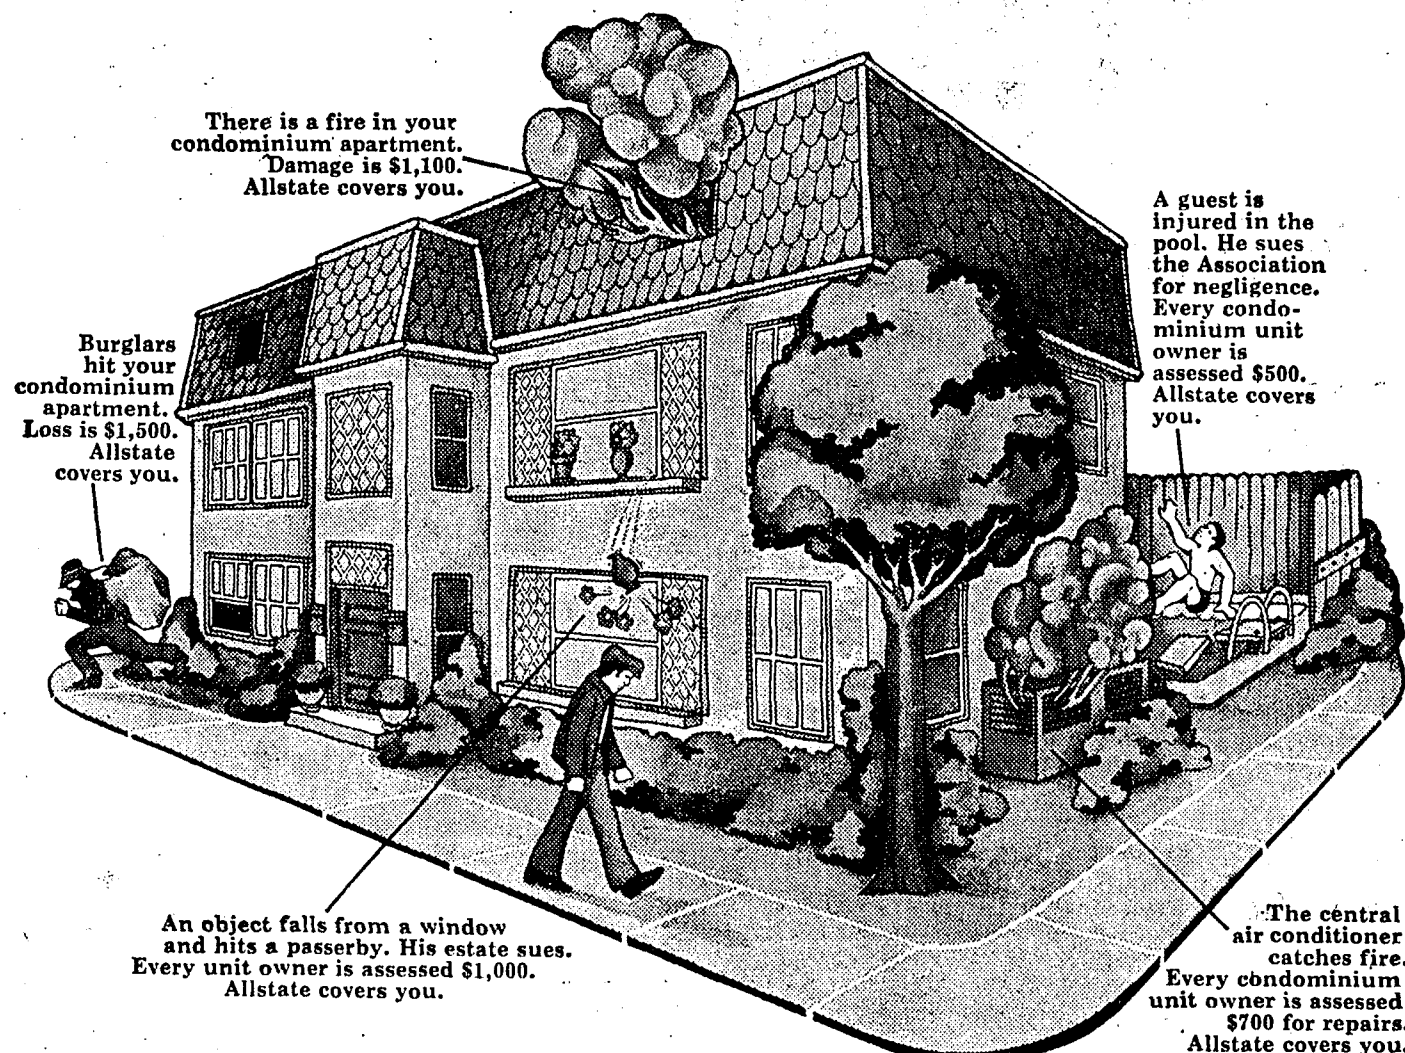

Instead of rebidding two clubs your partner has rebid one spade. What do you do now?

Announcing Allstate's Condominium Owners Policy.

Insurance made exclusively for the condominium dweller.

Condominium unit owners have special insurance needs.

And Allstate's Condominium Owners Policy is designed especially for those needs.

It protects you against loss to the furniture in your apartment, your clothing, and most other personal belongings from hazards such as fire, burglary and vandalism. Gives you personal liability coverage, too.

Allstate's Loss Assessment Coverage protects you against many assessments for damage to property owned by your Condominium Association.

In a condominium, every unit owner is liable for damage. Common property (like parts of your building) is normally protected by the Association's insurance, paid for by all the condominium unit owners.

But this insurance may not be adequate. If not, when an expense hits the Association, all members can be assessed to pay the bill.

Allstate's Loss Assessment Coverage picks up where your Association insurance may leave off. Check with your Allstate Agent for all the details.

Do you rent out your condominium apartment?

For a small additional charge, we'll continue your policy's coverage against loss that happens in your absence.

We have insurance for your Condominium Association, too.

We call it our Condominium Association Package Policy. Together with our Condominium Owner's Policy, Allstate offers a complete circle of protection for condominium dwellers.

See an Allstate Agent for our free booklet:

"What Every Condominium Owner Should Know about Insurance." Whether you're just moving into a condominium, or have lived in one for a while, this booklet is designed to help answer some of the questions about your special insurance needs.

Drop into an Allstate office, or our booth at Sears, and pick one up.

Allstate
You're in good hands.

Naturally all coverage is subject to policy deductibles. *Basic assessment coverage is $1,000, subject to a $250 deductible. This can be increased to $50,000 for a few dollars.

Actress Faces Casting Problems In Every Film

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD—(NEA) — In this era, when black is beautiful, commercial actress Juanita Brown has a problem.
She is one of those stunning creatures who is a product of crazy mixed-up genes. Her father is half-black, half-white. Her mother is half-white, half-Indian. The combination is devastating, esthetically, but where does that leave her, artistically?
She's been turned down for black parts because she looks too white and she's been turned down for white parts because she looks too black.
Still, in the two brief years since she's become an actress, she's come a long way. Her career is booming.
She's progressed from small parts to bigger parts and now she has a starring role in "Rene-gade Women." She's also seen to good advantage in "Foxy Brown," "Willie Dynamite" and "Uptown Saturday Night."

Juanita is a rarity in Hollywood for reasons other than her ethnic background. She is one of the very few actresses Hollywood has ever had who is a Phi Beta Kappa and magna cum laude graduate.
She comes from Michigan originally. Her father worked in Chicago but felt the rural life would be better for his children, so he got a farm in Michigan and commuted. Juanita grew up there but it was a lonely life.
She says her best friend was her dog, Tootsie, and she would read Tootsie poetry and take her for long walks in the woods.
"I was a recluse as child," she says. "I didn't fit into the world so I took refuge in books and was introspective."

She was a brilliant student and had several scholarships offered to her. She accepted the bid from Western Michigan and was in that institution's honors college.
She had been brought up in the Pentecostal Church which is so fundamental that Juanita's mother still refuses to go to the movies. She believes her daughter is "temporarily lost," and prays for her salvation.
Because of that background, "and the need to find out for myself about religion," she majored in the philosophy of religion. In her junior year, she won a fellowship and moved to Hawaii to study at the University of Hawaii.
She was married for a while. Then she "went off" with an architect but that didn't last. She came to Los Angeles to stay with the architect's mother-in-law, an old actress who persuaded her to take up acting.

CAREER IS BOOMING
Juanita Brown

She's doing well at it but she still isn't sure this is what she wants to do with her life.
"I love it now," she says, "but I have loved other things and the other things eventually

Power, Musicianship Mark Webster Recital At GWC

Register Staff Writer
By C. T. ERNEY
HUNTINGTON BEACH—Pianist Beveridge Webster may be regarded by some as a senior citizen of the keyboard but he proved in recital here Friday he plays with youthful zest, power and musicianship.
Truly, Mr. Webster is a pianist of the old school solidly versed in catholic style and technique.
Having studied under Arthur Schnabel and played frequently on the same programs with composer Maurice Ravel, it was surprising to this listener the hall at Golden West College here was only half-full.
Where are all Orange County's serious pianists, piano teachers, piano students, piano listeners?
It was shocking and disappointing that Webster, one of America's acknowledged masters of the keyboard, had such a small audience for such a stimulating program consisting of works by Beethoven, Schubert, Debussy, Ravel and Chopin.
Webster opened and closed the recital in short works by Schubert in crisp, authoritative style, rather than songful restraint.
Beethoven's "Appassionata" was something of a test for the pianist as he wrought a subtly tense and dynamic performance of this work in a state of utter concentration despite the occasional outcries of a fussy child in the theater lobby.
Webster, who slightly resembles (from an angle) conductor Eugene Ormandy, has a shimmering, properly impressionistic outlook in his approach to the music of Debussy and Ravel. But at times he tends to startle as he did Friday with a quasi-frenetic approach to works by these composers.
Disappointing to me was his somewhat biting, perfunctory and staccato-like execution of the familiar "Alborado del gracioso" from Ravel's "Miroirs" for piano, 1905.
The performance of this dreamlike look at Spain through the Pyrenean Mountains was a bit contrary to the gently rolling orchestral treatment accorded the work by the Basque composer after it was written for piano.

Highlight of the evening for this listener was Webster's exquisite, cleanly detailed playing of Chopin's Nocturne, Op. 27, No. 2 and his Berceuse. It was Chopin playing on a grand scale.

Westminster Community Theatre will hold auditions for the first play in the new theater, "Don't Drink The Water," a comedy in two acts by Woody Allen. The production will be directed by Doris Allen.
Auditions will be held on April 15 and 16 from 7:30 p.m. until 9 p.m., at 7272 Maple Avenue, Westminster. The cast calls for 16 persons, including 12 men and four women, in the age range of 18 and over.
The opening is scheduled for the last weekend of May. Rehearsals will begin as soon as casting has been completed.

Beatrix Potter's characters will be brought to life this week when The Scheherazade Players will present "The Tale of Peter Rabbit" tonight and tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. Presented as Story-Theatre and directed by Doris Hayes, the production will feature a garden set for Farmer McGregor, constructed by The Horticulture Department of Rancho Alamitos High School.
Members of the youth workshop include: Brett Bowden as "Peter Rabbit," Carol Ruff as "Farmer McGregor," and Kathryn Boucher as "Mrs. Rabbit" while members of the ensemble ble; Rick Copus, Michelle Copus, and Kelly Dooley will play various roles throughout the story.

Performances are scheduled for Arthur's Barn, located in Heritage Park, 18174 Euclid, Garden Grove. Admission will be a bundle of newspapers.
Gene Casey will open the Ana-Mojdeska Players musical adult acting workshop from 7:30 to 10 p.m. today at the Anaheim Cultural Arts Center, Harbor at La Palma. A fee will be charged for the 10 evening sessions.

A La Mirada Playhouse cast is now in rehearsal with "How The Other Half Loves," which will be shown for three week-ends; May 3, 4, 10, 11, 17 and 18 at Neff Barn, in Neff Park, La Mirada. Current time will be 8:30 p.m. Starring in this comedy, directed by Fred West, is Penelope Hayes as Fiona Foster, Wally Shryock as Frank Foster, Linda Dumont as Teresa Phillips, Jean Naquin as Bob Phillips, Rita Liedags as Mary Detweiler, Bob Goff as William Detweiler.

A new children's theater company will soon be formed at the Muckenthaler Cultural Center, in coordination with the Community College District of North Orange County. An adult education class, the company will present "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" as its first production.
Open auditions for "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" will be April 15 and 16 at 7 p.m. at the center. Any interested person may enroll in the class at the first audition for a fee. Students under 21 and over 60 are not required to pay the fee. High school students may enroll with the consent of their counselor.
To be performed on the outdoor stage of the Muckenthaler center on June 1 and 2, "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" tells the story of a magic musician who is hired to lure rats away from a village. However, this clever scheme fails when the children of the town also become enchanted by the piper's music.
The production will be directed by Deborah Brucher.
The Muckenthaler Cultural Center is located at 1201 W. Malvern in Fullerton.

SANTA ANA—Two films will be shown during the free Family Film Festival at 7:30 p.m., April 15, at the McFadden Branch of the Santa Ana Library, 2627 W. McFadden St.
"Juggernaut" is a film about India and the journey of a modern day juggernaut, the heart of a nuclear reactor. The camera follows its route from the point of debarkation to its destination 600 miles away, viewed through the eyes of the Indian people. Illustrated are India's customs, landmarks, working conditions and poverty.
The second film, "Coral Jungle," is a study of the various coral reef types. The coral jungle is made of minute creatures, living animals called corals, whose skeletons have been cemented together over the ages forming a reef.

500 Inaugural
Ray Harroun won the first Indianapolis 500 auto race with a speed of 74.59 miles per hour in 1911. Mark Donohue set a record of 163.465 m.p.h. in 1972.

Moviegoers Guide

BLAZING SADDLES — (R) — Western spoof turns out to be a very mixed bag of verbal and visual jokes. Harvey Korman, Slim Pickens, Madeline Kahn. In color.
SERPICO — (R) — Film about an honest, likeable New York cop whose revelations to the press of corruption among his colleagues led to the formation of the Knapp Commission. Al Pacino, Jack Kehoe. In color.
MAGNUM FORCE — (R) — Sequel to "Dirty Harry" again stars Clint Eastwood as the fearless and incorruptible San Francisco detective. Hal Holbrook. In color.
THE WAY WE WERE — (PG) — Bittersweet, nostalgic film about a Jewish girl and a WASP. Barbra Streisand, Robert Redford. In color.
POSIEDON ADVENTURE — (PG) — The chaos that occurs when a luxury liner is hit at sea by a giant tidal wave.
WALKING TALL — (R) — One sheriff's fight against crime and what it cost him. Much violence in the action.
AMERICAN GRAFFITI — (PG) — What happened on a summer night in 1962 to a group of youths in a small town. Heavy in nostalgia.
THE THREE MUSKETEERS — (PG) — Alexandre Dumas' hardy, swashbuckling romance is made into a film again with Michael York, Oliver Reed, Raquel Welch, Charlton Heston.
MAME — (PG) — Filmmaking of the musical that was such a hit on Broadway and on the road. Lucille Ball is Mame.
ALICE IN WONDERLAND — (G) — Re-issue of the Lewis Carroll classic for the Easter vacation trade.
SUGARLAND EXPRESS — (PG) — Action film based on a true event that made headlines a few years ago. Stars Goldie Hawn.

Rock Musical Show Added To Program

SAN DIEGO—Bimbo's Cosmic Circus, a contemporary rock musical that uses a circus setting will open at San Diego's Off Broadway Theatre on May 1, reports Off Broadway's Don Wortman and Tom Hartzog.
The show tells the story of Bimbo, a clown who leaves his friends and the relative security of the circus world for the glitter, groupies and gold of "Rock Heaven," only to crash as fast as he rose.
With the introduction of the new twin production format, certain changes in the "Father's Day" curtain times have been necessitated. Tuesday through Friday performances of the Barbara Rush comedy will be one hour earlier, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday shows will now be at 2 and 8 p.m.

Special Pop Music Show Set

LOS ANGELES—The UCLA Department of Music will present its third annual Cavalcade Of American Popular Music at 8:30 p.m. on April 19 and 20, in UCLA's Schoenberg Hall.
The program will feature popular music from the 1920's to the present, chosen from the collection of sheet music presented to UCLA by Meredith Wilson. The performance will honor Harry Warren, veteran composer of songs for many film musicals at Warner Bros. in the 1930's, Twentieth-Century Fox and MGM in the 1940's, and Paramount in the 1950's, and winner of three Academy awards—for "Lullaby Of Broadway," "You'll Never Know," and "On The Acheson, Topeka and Santa Fe," which will be featured in the show.
Performers will be students and faculty of the UCLA Music Department, including Barbara Patton, and guest artists Judy Kaye (recently of the musical "Grease") and Rich Kuller. Also featured will be the UCLA Madrigal Singers and the UCLA Men's Glee Club, under the direction of Donn Weiss.

Harry Caul will go anywhere to bug a private conversation.
His talents are unequalled. They've already been responsible for three murders.

'THE CONVERSATION' MARKED BY QUALITY

By ANDREW SACHAR

Overlook one or two miserable attempts at profundity and "The Conversation" succeeds both as a commercial film and as a work of art. Not fabulously, but it succeeds. It's a mite dull for a commercial film, and a trifle unimaginative for art, but on both levels it certainly has its moments. Let's call it an excellent piece of craft, plagued by a trite beginning, but saved by the final moments.

The movie was written, produced, and directed by Francis Ford Coppola, the same Coppola who brought us "The Godfather." "The Conversation" is by no means an extravaganza, but like "The Godfather" it is technically perfect and the acting is superlative. The film is now showing in Orange County.

Gene Hackman plays Harry Caul, trapped in middle age with repressed emotions and an empty life. He is an expert in electronic surveillance, for hire by anyone who can afford him. Harry has attempted to shut emotion from his world to repress guilt of a previous assignment that resulted in the grisly death of three people. His life is neat and orderly, curiosity and emotion would disrupt it. A strong dependence on Jesus Christ holds it all together; Harry realizes his lack of emotion is wrong and he clings to Jesus as a substitute for living.

His new problem: Harry records a young couple's conversation as they stroll around Union Square in San Francisco, only to suspect they will be murdered if he turns in the tape. His business, however, is not to be curious. "You're not supposed to feel anything, you're just supposed to do it."

His fears are merely speculation; the conversation could mean any number of things. It would take an immense effort for Harry to break his shell and help somebody.

Enter Harry's saxophone. The only pleasure he allows himself that isn't completely intellectual is playing that horn. As Harry's world crumbles around him, he sits in the corner and blows on his sax. Slow and cool. As he becomes more vulnerable, he becomes more complete.

"The Conversation" is quite reminiscent of Ingmar Bergman's "Wild Strawberries." Both feature an aging man grappling with guilt that is cold and emotionless, confronted with the warmth and life of the young.

The similarity is not merely in theme but in technique. The world of Coppola's Harry and Bergman's Isak are gray, contrasted against the bright world of youth. Both Harry and Isak are into "overcoat consciousness," cloaked in dullness. A technique used by Bergman, the soundtrack of "The Conversation" has that "hollow" sound of a played film live. The silence has depth.

One of the most important aspects of any movie is the quality of its second half and ending. If a film ends well, everybody loves it, everyone is left with a good impression. Everyone forgets how shoddy the beginning was.

"The Conversation" is one of those movies that has a great second half. Once it starts moving, it goes; there's a fine development of plot, theme, and characters. The climactic scenes are brilliant, true cinematic art, and the audience leaves feeling it has really seen something worthwhile. If the beginning was as good as its end, "The Conversation" would be a masterpiece.

Debut Orchestra Due In Pasadena

The Young Musicians Foundation Debut Orchestra will present a concert in the Pasadena Civic Auditorium on April 20. Soloist will be 17 year old pianist and student of Rudolf Serkin, Aglaia Koras. A native Californian, Aglaia was awarded a first prize Debut Award in the 1973 YMF Competition, resulting in a cash award and this appearance with the Debut orchestra.

She will perform Mozart's luminous A Major Piano Concerto K. 488.

The performance will mark the first appearance of the Debut Orchestra in Pasadena. Michael Nowak, the 24-year-old conductor of the orchestra, will also conduct Copland's "Tender Land" and Brahms' "Symphony No. 4."

Taut Drama Of Family Life On Irvine Theater Stage

By JAY CONKLIN

Fourth in Irvine Community Theatre's premiere season comes Les Pine's "Monday's Hero," a tense drama of a tormented Chicago family's trials and tribulations after World War II, ably directed by Herman Boorman.

Boorman, a master at the school of method acting, has retained the underlying tensions and frustrations of the post-war forties-period, not by concentrating on Pine's somewhat wordy dialogue, but more importantly upon the aimless puttering about the crowded apartment. Family members, unhappily forced to share living quarters, want to leave, but don't know how. The audience gets the feeling of helplessness, rather than being told about it.

Although the first act had a very slow start and characters seemed to be groping their way in establishing identities, the pace picked up in the second (after the arrival of Harry Ross, ex-husband and father, the hapless villain of the piece, well portrayed by Ray Scott) and tensions burst into conflicts. By far the second act was the most cohesive of the play.

Diana Lincoln believably stars as the suffering mother, Ruth Ross. Her concern for her three boys was apparent, yet she treated each differently, rejecting Stanley who's identified with his father, and protecting both Mel and Robbie from Harry's materialistic influence. Miss Lincoln's confrontations with Scott (who never deviated from trying to get his boys away from her) were very well done.

Greg Feuerborn is capable of showing much more depth of character than he did as Mel, the son desiring to be a writer, but pushed into selling dresses. He never seemed sure of his relationships with various members of his family; he cheated the viewers by not letting them see how he felt. (Did he love his brothers and his wife as he said he did?) Feuerborn's arguments with Sylvia, his wife (adequately done by Patrice Moynihan; these her finest scenes) were good, but his best bits were with Miss Lincoln; when Mel was alerted to her terminal illness, Feuerborn's grief was visibly real.

In their first heavy dramatic roles, Randy Dryer (Robbie), a own feat, and Michael Wilson (Stanley), with wife and child, realizing decisions are most times not one-sided, were well contrasted as the other brothers, and did creditable jobs. Both had a tendency to rush their lines and swallow their words, (as did Miss Moynihan) but their characterizations were true and each gained confidence as the play continued.

Linda Haskell gave a delightful, fully natural portrayal of the pregnant wife, Bernice. Her characterization was exceptional; at no time did she seem to be acting. Viewers groaned with her "heavy-weight" as she shuffled about in the heat, watching and listening to the family fights with occasional perceptive commentary dialogue. She never intruded upon the conversations, yet made her presence and influence known constantly.

Robert Chamberlain as Norman, the doctor, nicely added comic relief, making light of the situation, yet knew the seriousness of Ruth's sick cough. Little Kathy Jackson was cute as the third generation representative, the grandchild Eleanor.

Boorman has created purposeful, complementary stage business. In most instances interaction among a quartet or more on stage at the same time was fine, but one glaring mistake should and can be corrected. Performers on stage when Miss Lincoln grabbed a knife to kill Scott did not react. Mama certainly doesn't do this every day, and should shock everyone by her extreme behavior.

Tom Mix Movie Slated

Jerry Zeitman has been set to produce a film based on the life of the legendary motion picture star Tom Mix. The film, "Tom Mix: The Last Detail," is being produced by Delacourt Publications.

Tom Mix, one of the brightest stars in films during the 20s and 30s, was killed in a car crash in 1940 in Arizona at the height of his career. In preparation for the screenplay, producer Zeitman and writer Ponicsan are doing a thorough research on the life and times of the cowboy star and invite persons knowledgeable about Mix to contact them at 20th Century-Fox. Meanwhile, Zeitman is preparing a science-fiction film, "Damnation Alley" and a comedy, "Cheerleader."

BLUE EYES KNOCKS 'EM COLD

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frank Sinatra played Carnegie Hall Monday night, a landmark performance of his comeback season that will take him on a nationwide tour beginning this week.

Backed by a 50-piece orchestra complete with harp, bathed in hot pink, ultraviolet blue and golden glow spotlights, amplified by two truckloads of equipment, the 56-year-old singer topped his recent network television special. He was more vital, more spontaneous, and exhibited all the best of his vocal style—careful phrasing, controlled emotionalism and big effects that electrified the spinal nerves of his hearers.

It is a $3 million show and Frankie mentioned the tab only because a stool he perched on briefly was shaky and hardly worth the price. He donated his talents for the Carnegie Program, a $100-a-seat benefit for Variety Clubs International, a show business fraternity that has raised $265 million for children's charities in 47 years. Sinatra admitted to the audience that he always has been a soft touch for underprivileged and handicapped kids.

He said he also was a pushover for New York because "I've had some of my best fights here." And masses of New York celebrities, headed by Mayor and Mrs. Abraham Beame, turned out to salute him in his first appearance here since 1970. It was formal attire all the way for "Blue Eyes"—right up to the rafters of the venerable hall.

Sinatra, a little thicker in the midsection but still trim, strutted in a dinner suit that was a good luck gift from Sammy Davis Jr. He was at his best in his old repertoire—"You Will Be My Music," "I've Got You Under My Skin," "My Way," "That's Life"—a stand-out being a saloon singer," he confided before launching into a Get A Kick Out of You." But he medley of torchy songs repeatedly interrupted by applause. In "The Clowns" from the current Broadway hit, "A Little Night Music," he showed a little dryness, "I really pride myself on the sipped a glass of Mouton Cadet wine and wished the audience could join him. But the audience was already high enough on Frankie.

Sinatra, who sang for exactly 37 years, showed a little dryness, marked the rest of the evening.

Strips' Roxy cabaret theater, 9009 Sunset Blvd.

The American debut of the show, voted the Best Musical of 1973 by the London theater critics, was March 21 and the original plan called for a run of 10-to-12 weeks before taking the production to Broadway.

"Rocky" is a satire of B-Hollywood horror movies of yesterday and the sexual confusions of today-cemented together by rock music.

In addition to housing the hit, the Roxy provides Los Angeles with an intimate cabaret theater. Theater patrons are seated at their tables on a first come basis and drinks are sold before and during a performance.

"The Rocky Horror Show" stars its original London star Tim Curry, and a cast recruited from Hollywood and Broadway. On Sunday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights, "Rocky" goes on at 8:30; on Friday and Saturday nights showtimes are at 7:30 and 10:30.

Juilliard Student Wins Prize

HUNTINGTON BEACH—Marion Gaffney, 18, student of Irwin Friedlich at the Juilliard School in New York City, won the first annual Young Pianists Competition at Golden West College, last week.

She will receive a $500 contract to perform a recital at Golden West College in the 1974-75 season.

Her winning program consisted of sonatas by Scarlatti and Haydn, the F major Ballade by Chopin, and the Piano Variations by Aaron Copland.

Thirty-four contestants from throughout the United States 18 years old and younger entered the competition, with eight semifinalists performing before a panel of prominent judges in the college theater the weekend of April 6 and 7.

None of the eight semifinalists was identified to the judges until the winner was announced. All semifinalists, except Miss Gaffney, were from California. They were Henry A. Curtis, 15, Laguna Beach; Altan Gokcen, 16, Palos Verdes Estates; Junggeum Kim, 17, Whittier; Aglaia Koras, 18, Philadelphia and Burlingame Donna Stoering, 18, Fremont; Jon Sutherland, 17, Santa Monica; and Steve K. Warzycki, 18, San Francisco.

Competing in the finals, April 7, were Kim, a student of Daniel Pollack; Koras, student of Rudolph Serkin; Sutherland, student of Bruce Sutherland; and Miss Gaffney.

The judges were Sidney Foster, University of Indiana; Leonid Hambro, California In-

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB MD

DEAR DR. LAMB—My husband vomits all the time. He's got so he can't even hold water, besides food, in his stomach. He's quick tempered, very nervous and upset. He's a heavy drinker, beer by the quarts and whiskey and vodka all in one evening. Could this be why he's upset all the time, because he has too much in his system? He won't go to a doctor. But, he needs help. He yells for no reason. How can one help this person?

DEAR READER—Regular overuse of alcohol can cause inflammation of the stomach, a condition called alcoholic gastritis. This will lead to pain in the upper abdomen and nausea and vomiting. Of course, he could have an ulcer which can also occur. He would need an examination of his stomach to see what the problem really is.

Because of the obvious medical problems you mention, he does need to see a doctor. If you have a family doctor you should talk to him about this. Another source of help is for you to contact Alcoholics Anonymous organization and see if they can talk to your husband, and perhaps he will listen to them. I would expect, though, that they too would want him to receive proper medical attention. My hunch, is from your letter, that he needs medical treatment for his stomach and possibly other medical problems; psychiatric counseling for underlying problems related to his overuse of alcohol, and all the support he can get from you and such sources as Alcoholics Anonymous.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Concerning myself. I had suspected that I had high blood pressure for about a year. I recently had a physical and found my blood pressure at 158 over 108. I am a 56-year-old male.

The doctor put me on a low fat, 1,500-calorie diet. I am five feet and weigh 204 clothed, or about 40 pounds overweight. My cholesterol was 246 and triglycerides were 846. What do these terms mean?

DEAR READER — Your doctor did exactly right in starting you on a weight reducing, low fat diet. Many people with moderately high blood pressure readings can be treated by simply getting rid of the excess fat. Anyone with even moderately high blood pressure should try to get rid of every pound of fat they can.

The cholesterol is a substance made by the liver. It is not strictly fat, but it is the waxy substance that sticks in the arteries and leads to fatty deposits in the arteries. This leads to heart attacks, strokes and many other problems.

For more information on cholesterol send for the booklet I have prepared for readers on this subject. Send 50 cents to "Cholesterol," in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

The triglycerides are the fat. Your reading is really high, if you have quoted it correctly. I suspect that a loss of at least 40 pounds, probably more, will do you a lot of good. You may need to do it gradually. You didn't gain it all at once. I think you should help yourself along with starting a regular walking program. The more you can walk daily, the faster you will get results. You will feel better if you exercise while you are dieting, too.

Dr. Lamb welcomes questions from his readers, but because of the volume of mail he cannot answer personally. Questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns. Write to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

On Commission

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO—The city council Monday reappointed Phil Schwartz and Carol Heim to the planning commission and appointed three new members.

The new commissioners are Kenneth Friess, 32, a teacher in the Huntington Beach Union High School District, who lives at 31506 San Juan Creek Road; George Riley, 47, architect and land planner, 31172 Paseo Arcaia; and Robert Davies, computer programmer-analyst, 25642 Calle Lorenzo.

Mary Decker Sheds Her Pony-Tail

You know Mary Decker . . . sure, that cute little Orange High School freshman with the pig-tails, the sweetheart of America's track team, the one who broke the women's world 1500-meter record. Even the Russians loved her.

Well, little Mary is growing up, says so herself. She's tired of being "that cute little kid with the flying pony-tail." So she jumped on her bicycle, pedaled to an Anaheim stylist and told Gus the pony-tail must go.

"I am tired of pony-tails," Mary declared. "I'm 15 now and going to be 16 in August so give me a fashion hair-do."

Mary Decker's amazing track career is just beginning. Experts believe she'll be the first girl to break 2:00 in the half-mile and that she might be even better at a mile. But from now on just forget that "Little Mary" stuff. She's a big girl now and will run without the flying pony-tails which helped endear her to two continents.

There's another young group making noise in sports this week. The Mission Viejo Nadadores are sending 15 swimmers to the Short Course Nationals, scheduled at Dallas today through Sunday. This AAU competition is open to those who have qualified in high time standards for yard distances. Shirley Babashoff, the Fountain Valley High School senior who brought home three medals from the Munich Olympic Games, heads the girls' team which also includes a couple of other world-class young swimmers — Valerie Lee and Peggy Tisdal. Shirley is entered in the 100, 200, 500, 1650 free-style as well as the relays. Valerie and Peggy are in the 100 and 200 fly, 100 and 200 freestyle and three relays. Contestants are allowed only four individual events.

The other Nadadores at Dallas are Kathy Howe, Laura Hove, Debbie Holt, Joan Price, Barbara Hudson, Kelly Hamill, Diane Lleshout, Brian Goodell, Taylor Howe, Rick Windes, Connie Gaultier and Bob Johnson.

Coach Mark Schubert said he expects the relay to pile up team points, explaining he is entering two girls' teams in the 400 and 800 free-relays, one for the boys at the same distances, and one 400 medley for the girls. Schubert: "In the 400-meter free-style relay, our best individual times add up to being just one second off the American record for women and 7/10ths away from the 800 free record."

What was it Maurice Chevalier used to say . . . "Thank Heaven for little girls."

YOUNG PROS TO MOVE-EARTH

Time was when sports professionals just withered away when they weren't doing their thing, whether baseball or whatever. Not now. The young pros have "smarted up" and are thinking of the future when their basehits have ceased. Meaning what? Meaning that a certificate and agreement of limited partnership has been filed at the Orange County recorder's office by what is called the Great Western Heavy Equipment Rental Co. It is going to buy, rent and sell heavy equipment like cranes and earth movers.

Among the partners you'll recognize are Don Sutton, Alan Bannister, Stan Bahnsen, Tommy John, Ted Simmons, Claude Osteen, Steve Carlton, Maury Wills, Ted Sizemore, Steve Kijie, Bill Buckner, Duke Sims and John A. (for Andy) Messersmith.

Their place of business was listed as 6800 Orangeford Ave., Buena Park. At $3500 a unit, it was indicated the initial capitalization is $70,000.

BLOODMOBILE DAY IS APRIL 19

Members of the Lions Club throughout Orange County are mobilizing for the benefit of fellow member Dick Glover of Anaheim, now confined at St. Joseph Hospital. His condition is such that blood is much needed. The Red Cross bloodmobile will be at St. Boniface Church (corner Lincoln and Harbor, Anaheim) on Friday, April 19, beginning at 3 p.m. Glover retired three years ago after a distinguished career as Anaheim High School football coach and city director of physical education. He had major surgery several weeks ago.

It was bristly weather at Anaheim Stadium last night but this didn't deter the Stewart Family of 12 from making its seventh annual "Opening Night" excursion to watch the Angels begin their home schedule. George James Stewart of 5205 B. Wisteria Place, Santa Ana, led the charge. Among those in the party were son George Allen Stewart, grandson George Robert (four years old) and the Barganski Bunch — Roger and Shirley, Tommy, John, Kathy and Kim . . . Aaron-Ruth Controversy Heats Up

COMMENTARY

By MILTON RICHMAN
ATLANTA (UPI) — Hank Aaron expected there would be controversy, and he was right. There is already.

The luster is still fresh on his new home run record, but that isn't preventing some people from continuously reminding that Hank Aaron has now had 2,900 more official times at bat than Babe Ruth ever did.

That number will grow, not diminish, and so will the argument that Aaron can't really compare with Ruth as a pure home run hitter. Hank Aaron knows he'll keep hearing this more and more down through the years, and he accepts this fact of life.

Likewise, he's aware he hasn't heard the last yet about his poor performance last Sunday in Cincinnati.

Was he really trying to hit No. 715 there, or wasn't he? People are still asking that now and will keep on asking it. Some of them are like a dog with a good, juicy bone. They never let go.

I saw a good deal of Babe Ruth, spent time speaking with him, and was at Memorial Hospital in New York, the place he died, the night he did. I still remember the exact time of his death. It was 8:01 p.m., and I still remember Babe Ruth, the ballplayer.

He and Hank Aaron will wind up with only one thing in common as far as I can see.

The record book will show each hit his last home run for the Braves.

Apart from that, I see no similarity whatsoever.

Babe Ruth batted from the left-handed side; Hank Aaron hits right-handed. Ruth generated most of his power from his arms and shoulders; Aaron gets his from his wrists. Ruth had a compact swing; Aaron's is smoother, more fluid. Ruth usually went for the fences; Aaron doesn't.

The overall result was that his fellow ballplayers thought of Ruth primarily as a home run hitter, which he was, while Aaron's fellow ballplayers think of him as the supreme hitter, which he is.

I know one Hall of Famer who played against Ruth and who, at least, has seen enough of Aaron to come up with some assessment of the two.

He won't, though. He simply laughs when people try to push him into comparing the two. Privately though, when he talks of Aaron, he scoffs "Home run king, my back."

I think he's being a bit unfair to Aaron, but he's getting along in years now, naturally treasuring his memories of Ruth, and I believe I know what he means.

Years from now, players of that era will relate much more to whomever it is challenging Aaron's record, if for no other reason than he will be one of them, that they will to Aaron. And the players around today will keep talking about Aaron the same way the players of yesterday now speak about Ruth.

For the record, Hank Aaron feels Johnny Bench and Tony Perez of the Reds have the best chance of breaking his home run record, provided they stick around long enough.

For the record, Bench has 180 homers and Perez 212.

One more thing for the record: Babe Ruth was far and away the best ballplayer I have ever seen. Closest to him for home run hitting alone, in my book anyway, were Jimmy Fox, Johnny Mize, and Harmon Killebrew.

Hank Aaron would rate in my top half-dozen, along with Joe Dimaggio, Willie Mays, Stan Musial, and Roberto Clemente.

As for the way he played in last Sunday's game with the Reds, only Hank Aaron really knows how hard he tried to hit No. 715. I've seen him have better days, much better ones.

Hank Aaron says he gave his best.

I believe him, I suppose, because I wish to believe him. Hank Aaron is basically a honest individual, but there is always that possibility he could be taking a little off the truth without even realizing he is.

Texas Ruins Angel, Ryan Big A Debut

By JOHN STELLMAN
Neither the 25,241 customers, nor second base umpire Merle Anthony were laughing at Texas manager Billy Martin at the Big A Tuesday night.

Anthony restrained himself from chasing Martin on a night that the Rangers couldn't be restrained by Nolan Ryan, who was charged with a 10-2 loss.

The Rangers never got the opportunity to run on Ryan, but Billy Martin was hardly upset. Seven of the 11 men Nolan faced scored.

Maybe Martin's run and bunt strategy wasn't such a good idea after all. Only Dave Nelson tried to bunt, and Ryan threw him out.

Nollie couldn't get anyone out in the second.

He began the inning by walking the bases loaded. And now for the bad news.

Joe Lovitto, who made some uncomplimentary remarks about the major league's strikeout king, backed them up with his bat, doubling home the Rangers' first two runs.

Dick Billings walked to reload the bases. Nelson and Toby Harrah responded with run-scoring singles, and Bobby Winkles responded with a call to the bullpen.

Skip Lockwood was able to get Alex Johnson on strikes, but Jeff Burroughs got Texas four more runs with his fourth career grand slam home run.

Lockwood immediately reloaded the bases, the third time in the inning, by issuing singles

Lovitto's fielder's choice produced the ninth run of the second inning, seven of which were charged to Ryan. Nollie has now walked 15 men in nine innings.

The Angels got their first hit and first run against Jim Bibby, who no-hit Oakland last year, in the fourth inning.

Bobby Valentine tripled over the head of Lovitto, who lost his footing while retreating, and raced home on a sacrifice fly by Frank Robinson.

Lockwood, who compounded the embarrassment by hitting Harrah with a pitch and then wild pitching him to second, was relieved by Rudy May in the fourth after working two innings.

Grieve greeted May with a single to left, but after Hargrove struck out, Dave Chalk started a double play which Denny Doyle completed with a perfect relay to Mike Epstein.

May breezed through the fifth and sixth innings, retiring all six Rangers he faced.

The Angels, however, were denied after Ellie Rodriguez, who has hit safely in all four games, singled with two away in the fifth.

They were also denied in the sixth after loading the bases with nobody out on walks to Mickey Rivers and Doyle, and Nelson's error on a slow roller hit by Valentine.

Bibby was more than equal to the task. He retired Robinson himself on an "excuse me" tap to the mound, struck out Epstein, and got Bob Oliver to ground to Fregosi.

Fregosi drove in the 10th Texas run in the seventh. Grieve's third hit and first double, was followed by Hargrove's fly to center, and Fregosi's sacrifice fly to right.

Stanton drove his second home run of the year into the leftfield stands in the bottom of the seventh.

Nelson was thrown out twice in the eighth. First he was gunned down by Rodriguez after singling to center, and then he was thrown out by second base umpire Anthony after logging violent protests at the time, and when he took the field.

Martin threw in his two cents worth after Rodriguez threw his third attempt.

HALOS—How would Babe Ruth have fared as a manager? "I think he would have been the first to answer that," said Angel coach Reese, who roomed with the Babe during the springs of 1930 and 1931. "He would have been a good manager, but he would have been a bad one."

Said Frank Robinson: "You just have to forget it's his 21st year. The fact that he's done it is a compliment. You almost feel a part of it yourself. It also knocks you out of your mind. He's got the hit of it. You judge a player on his own merits, not his age. It's a vote for the man."

A shivering Jim Fregosi quipped: "Isn't this delightful? Ryan could hit ninth and play rightfield." Asked how he was getting along with Alex Johnson, Spencer said with a smile: "Fine. I haven't talked to him in four years. A. J. was greeted with a chorus of boos when he walked out to the first base line following his on-field introduction."

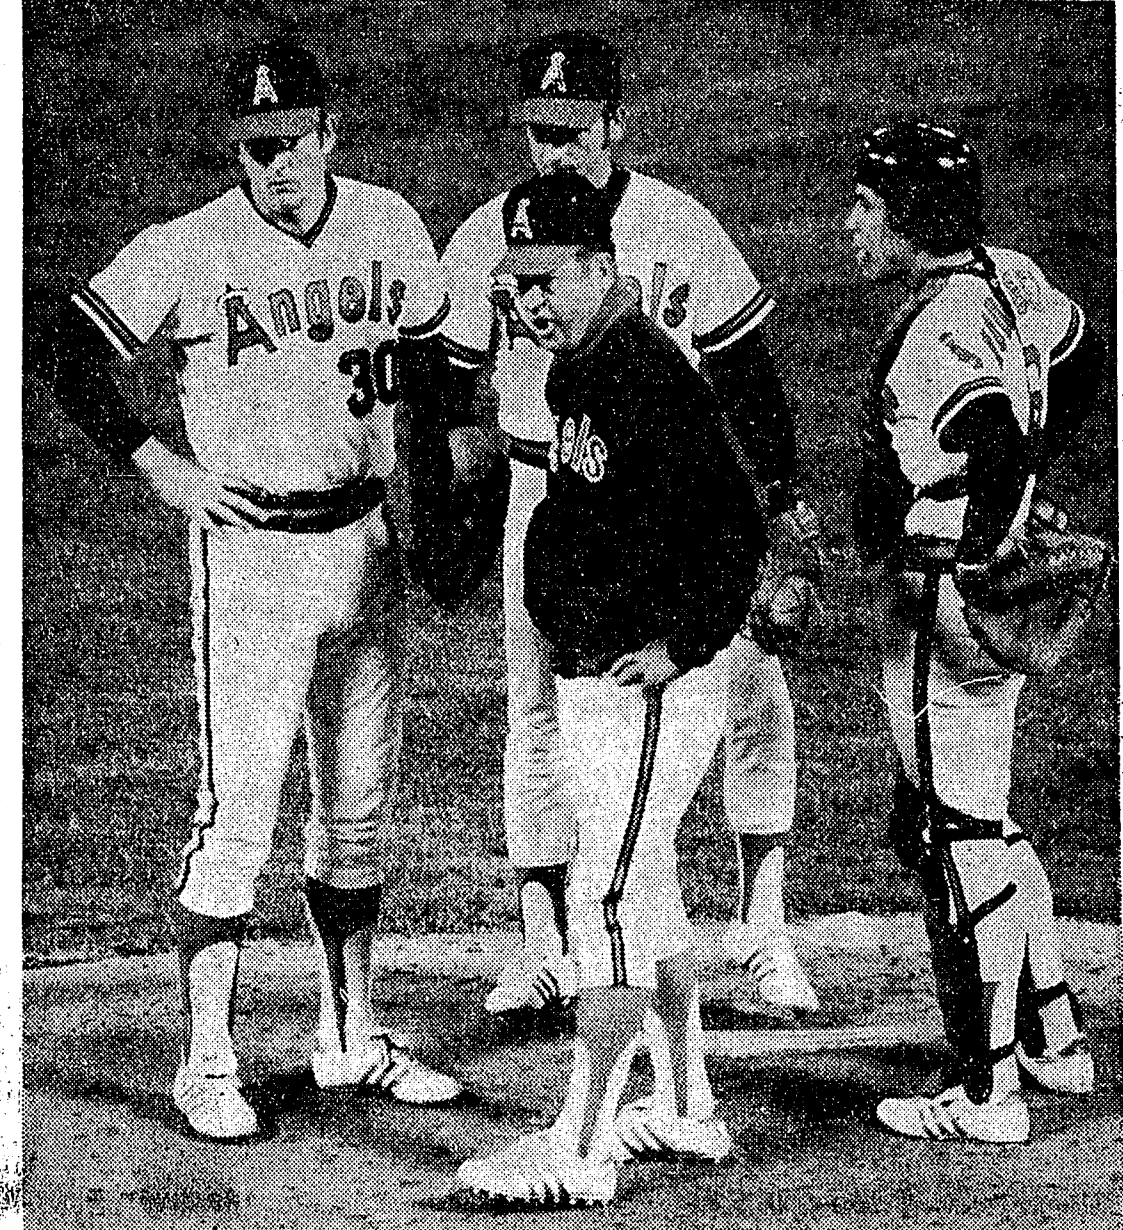

Another former Angel, Steve Barber, threw batting practice for the Rangers. Released by Milwaukee during the spring, Barber is currently unemployed. He said he didn't have a bat in his hand. "I didn't want to hit the A's in his American League debut."

In order to make room for newly acquired Rick Tomeman who was placed on the roster Monday, the Angels returned catcher Rick Stelmazek to Salt Lake City.

Angels' 25 points and a superb defense that held NBA scoring leader Bob McAdoo to only 16 points, defeated the Buffalo Braves, 100-97, to take a 3-2 lead in their Eastern Conference playoff Tuesday night.

The teams return to Buffalo Friday night for the sixth game. A Boston win would end it.

WILD BIG A START—It was an unhappy group at the mound in the second inning as Angel starter Nolan Ryan (left) couldn't find home plate and walked himself into defeat against the Texas Rangers. Manager Bobby Winkles, second baseman Denny Doyle and catcher Ellie Rodriguez (right) waited for relief help after Ryan gave up four runs, three on walks. Things got progressively worse.

Dodgers Bounce Back, Whip Aaron-Less Braves

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers whipped the Atlanta Braves, 9-2, Tuesday night as Don Sutton and Mike Marshall combined to limit the Hank Aaron-less Braves to seven hits.

Aaron, who broke Babe Ruth's home run record with his 715th home run Monday, did not enter the game at all.

The Dodgers' Willie Crawford drove in two runs in the three-

Carl Morton, who walked three consecutive batters before choice.

Sutton, now 2-0, was forced to leave in the eighth after his back stiffened, but Marshall finished off the Braves with little trouble.

Enright Joins Sun's Staff

Dick Enright, former head football coach at the University of Oregon, has joined the Southern California Sun of the New World football League.

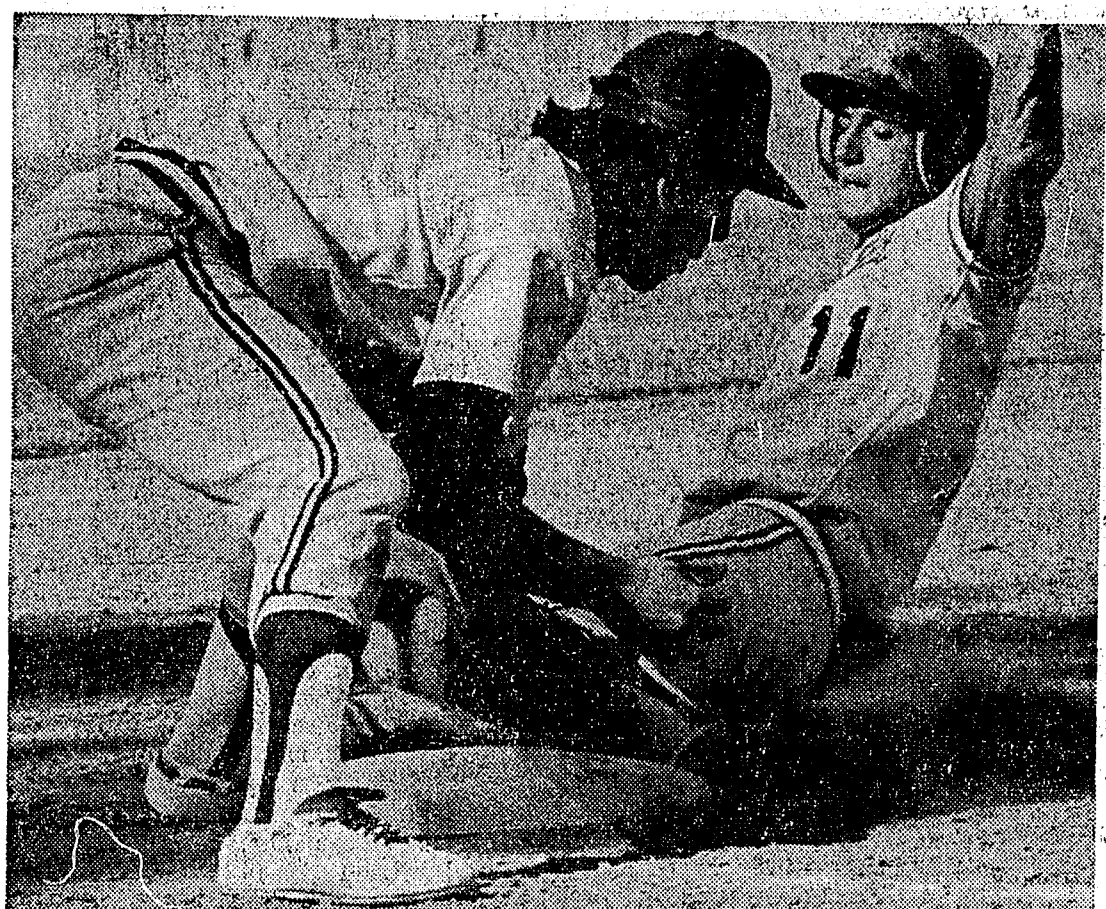

Enright, who was fired after two seasons at Oregon, will be an offensive line coach.

Four former Oregon players will be with him — Tim Guy, Jackie Connors, Mike Bolliger and Keith Davis.

Enright, who was a successful high school coach at Gardena before going to Oregon, said he was "enthusiastic about getting back into coaching."

catcher Jim Enright, who had bobbled the pitch, rifled the throw to nip Linnert. Linnert did score in both the third and seventh as Mater Dei rocked Servite, 6-0 to take over first place.

Spartans Roll To SA Title

Villa Park High scored four times in the first inning and went on to post a 5-2 victory over Mission Viejo to claim the championship of the 10th annual Santa Ana Elks Baseball Tournament.

The Spartans started quickly as Les Fields led off with a triple. He scored after a passed ball as the catcher's relay throw went over the pitcher's head.

Later in the inning, Steve Till singled in two runs and scored on a fielder's choice.

The Diablos came back with two in the second when Scott Lang doubled and scored on Bob Bates' single. Bates then scored when Eric Schmidt reached first on an error.

Mark Bennett hurled the first four innings before Bob Ansari came on to finish up for the Spartans. Ansari allowed only two runners to reach base in his three-inning stint and both were on errors. He fanned four as the Spartans pushed their season record to 12-4.

Los Alamitos captured third place by defeating Katella, 4-2. Santa Ana Valley edged Loara, 3-2 in eight frames for fifth spot and Westminster tallied five runs in the ninth to outscore Foothill 13-8 in a wild game for the consolation crown.

Los Alamitos ran its record to 14-4 on the year by defeating Katella for third place. Pitcher Kirt Hantzsch's sacrifice fly scored Craig Chamberlain with the winning run in the third. Singles by Rick Baird, Chamberlain, Greg Harris and Todd Hewitt made it 4-2 in the fifth.

Santa Ana Valley overcame a 2-1 Loara lead to tie in the seventh when Robert Cavender singled, moved to second on a fielder's choice and scored on Wilbur Haslip's single. Al Trotter led off the eighth with a double, moved to third on a ground out and scored on Cavender's single.

Westminster scored five times in the ninth to outlast Foothill in the consolation game. Tim Funke and Tim Richards each had four hits for the Lions. The winning run actually scored on ground out to first, but the Lions added insult to injury as Darrell Paine tripled in another, Larry Kobacki lashed his second home run of the day and Bob Hale followed with still another round tripper. Hale also tripled in two runs in the sixth. Robert Steel had a two-run home run for Foothill in the fifth.

Morton Jumps To WFL Texans

HOUSTON (UPI) — Dallas Cowboy quarterback Craig Morton, apparently tired of warming the bench behind No. 1 signal caller Roger Staubach, Tuesday night signed with the Houston Texans of the World Football League.

Texans' President Steve Arnold of Memphis, Tenn., signed Morton after obtaining negotiating waivers from the Birmingham, Ala., franchise, radio station KPRC reported.

Morton was in Houston but unavailable for comment. Arnold called a news conference for 3 p.m. today.

There also were reports the Texans offered Coach Hank Stram of the Kansas City Chiefs a $2 million 10-year contract, but Arnold would "neither confirm or deny" the report, the station said.

Mater Dei's Monarchs didn't let the winds bother them Tuesday as they powered their way to a convincing 6-0 decision over Servite to take over sole possession of first place in the Angelus League.

Mater Dei used a home run, two triples and a double plus the strong clutch pitching of Don Catozza to beat the Friars for the second time this season.

With two outs in the third inning Chuck Linnert laced a single to right center and Catozza blasted one through the hole in right center for a triple. Matt Smith poked a double and after a walk by Pat Eccles, Smith tripped to score Smith, who had singled.

In the fifth inning Mater Dei added two more runs when Eccles blasted a 370-foot round-tripper to score Smith, who had singled.

The Monarchs matched the score of the first encounter in the seventh inning. Linnert

Troy, Tribe Coast

By BILL LINDSTROM
Troy and Fullerton High both unloaded their heavy artillery to coast to easy second round victories and into today's semi-finals of the Bolsa Grande Easter Baseball Tournament.

Fullerton bombed Estancia, 11-1, as Dennis Kause slammed a two-run home run and scored four runs with three hits. Troy buried San Bernardino, 11-3, scoring 10 runs or more for the fourth straight game.

Troy will meet Fountain Valley at 10:30 at Bolsa Grande and Fullerton challenges Santa Ana at 1:30 in the two semi-final games.

Fountain Valley received a strong five-hit pitching effort from Bob Pattison to defeat Pacifica, 3-1. Santiago stopped Los Amigos, 5-3, as Scott Warrell drove in three runs for the Cavs.

Dave Enos supplied the big bat for Troy with three hits and two RBIs. John Knox also drove in two runs on a double and fielder's choice as Mark Wulfe-meyer went six innings to gain the victory.

Fullerton staked pitcher Rommie Perez to a 3-0 lead in the first as Kause slammed a two-run home run and Jim Leicht allowed with a solo round trip. Perez spaced two hits through five innings before Janny Hernandez finished up in relief.

Vince Bienek tripled in Rick Vollard in the first for Fountain Valley and the Barons added two more in the fifth when Dennis Tressler doubled in Dan Jackson and pitcher runner Rob Hardman later scored on an error.

Santiago pitcher Leo Sutherland struck out eight and was backed by Warrell's big bat with three RBIs, the big blow a two-run double for the winning runs in the fifth.

In consolation play, Jack Terry belted a three-run home run and triple to power Huntington Beach past Tustin, 13-2. Joe Janton pitched a four-hitter and Mike Stavro cracked a two-run home run as San Clemente blanked Rancho Alamitos, 5-0.

Artesia spotted El Modena a four-run lead in the first, but got five of its own in the first and went on to earn a 10-5 win. Dave Hanks and Doug Jones of La Quinta stopped Bolsa on two hits for an 8-0 win.

Giants Finally Lose, To Reds

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Kingman, a single by Mike Joe Morgan singled home Cesar Phillips and an infield out by Geronimo from third base with two out in the sixth inning Tuesday night to give the Cincinnati Reds a 3-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The defeat was the first of the season for the Giants who had won four in a row.

Geronimo opened the sixth with a triple off loser Tom Bradley. Bradley struck out pinch hitter Terry Crowley and Pete Rose but Morgan singled to left field to break a 3-2 tie.

The victory went to Jack Billingham, who pitched the first six innings for Cincinnati. Pedro Borbon blanked the Giants for the final three innings to gain the save.

Cincinnati took a 2-0 lead in the first on Tony Perez' third homer of the season. The Giants tied the score in their half of the inning on Bobby Bonds' single, a stolen base, Garry Maddox' double and a single by Gary Matthews.

San Francisco went ahead 3-2 in the second on a walk to Dave

Blyleven Gets Relief, But Whips Chisox

BLOOMINGTON (UPI) — Right handed reliever Bill Campbell put down a bases loaded Chicago rally in the top of the ninth inning Tuesday to save a 3-1 home opening victory for Bert Blyleven and the Minnesota Twins over the White Sox.

With the bases full, Campbell struck out Pat Kelly and Ken Henderson after Blyleven, a 20-game winner last year, was pulled following back-to-back singles by Ron Santo and George Orta.

The loss went to Chicago pitcher Wilbur Wood, who went the distance giving up eight hits, including a solo homer to Twins' outfielder Larry Hise in the sixth inning.

Minnesota's other two runs were scored by American League batting champion Rod Carew both times after he singled and stole second. He was driven in in the first inning on a sacrifice fly by Harmon Killebrew and came home in the third on a double by Darwin.

Chicago's other two runs were scored by American League batting champion Rod Carew both times after he singled and stole second. He was driven in in the first inning on a sacrifice fly by Harmon Killebrew and came home in the third on a double by Darwin.

Yanks Spoil Tiger Home Debut, 3-0

DETROIT (UPI) — The New York Yankees touched starter Mickey Lolich for two runs in the first inning on Lou Piniella's two out single and New York went on to spoil the Detroit Tigers home opener 3-0.

The only other run came in the seventh on a two out looped single by former Ranger outfielder Elliott Maddox that chased home Roy White, who had doubled a few minutes earlier.

Lolich gave up eight hits and absorbed his second loss of the season while the Yanks, off to their best season start since 1945, gained their fourth win against no losses.

Starter Steve Kline picked up the win, scattering seven hits until he was lifted for reliever Fred Beene in the eighth.

Aaron After Musial

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hank Aaron has no intention of resting on his laurels now that he has surpassed Babe Ruth's career home run record.

"Now that that's out of the way," said the Atlanta Braves outfielder after hitting major league home run 715, "I'm going to get after Stan Musial's National League record for total hits."

Aaron has 3,511 base hits, fourth highest figure in the history of the game. He's four hits out of third, held by Tris Speaker, and 119 behind Musial. Aaron, in what is expected to be his last season, concedes the top spot — Ty Cobb's 4,191 — could stand forever.

"I suppose it is only natural you seek another," said Aaron. "That's what keeps you going."

"In my earlier days in baseball, my main goal was 3,000 hits. I never figured, then, on going as far past that as I have."

Aaron, who went into Tuesday's game with only two hits (both home runs) in nine at bats, needs a total of 122 hits this season to surpass Musial's National League record of 3,630.

That's .311 for 20 seasons and Aaron would have to hit at least .330 to add just one point.

Cubs' Bonham Blanks Phils

CHICAGO (UPI) — Right-hander Bill Bonham shut out the Philadelphia Phillies on four hits Tuesday, pitching the Chicago Cubs to a 2-0 victory in their home opener.

The Cubs got both of their runs in the first inning, combining three walks, two Phillies' errors, and Rick Monday's double, for both runs.

Vic Harris opened the inning with a walk and reached third on Monday's double. Pitcher Ron Schuler then threw wild to third attempting to pick off Harris and Harris scored on the error while Monday reached third.

After Jerry Morales walked, Monday scored when Willie Montanez bobbled Billy Williams' ground ball for another error.

Bonham held the Phillies hitless for 5 1/3 innings before Schuler beat out a bunt for the first Philadelphia hit. The second hit was a single to left field by Bill Robinson to open the eighth.

Bonham struck out nine and walked only one and saved his own game in the ninth after the Phillies got the bases full with no outs.

Cedeno's Bat Stings Padres

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Cesar Cedeno drove in four runs and Larry Dierker, attempting a comeback after pitching only 27 innings last season, picked up his first win with a strong seven-inning effort Tuesday night as the Houston Astros beat the San Diego Padres 9-5.

The Astros surged to a 6-0 lead after two innings with a pair of three-run bursts to drive out loser Steve Arlin. Dierker checked San Diego on six hits and struck out five. Fred Scherman pitched the final two innings, giving up three of San Diego's runs.

Greg Gross opened the game with his first of three singles and scored on Cedeno's one out double. One out later, Lee May walked and Doug Rader doubled home Cedeno. Tommy Helms' single scored May with the third run of the inning.

Rudi's Double Trips Royals

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Joe Rudi rapped a two-run double with the bases loaded to break a 4-4 tie, and the Oakland Athletics beat the Kansas City Royals, 6-4, Tuesday night.

The winning blow off Lindy McDaniel, the third Kansas City pitcher, was Rudi's third double of the game.

Paul Lindblad came in with two outs in the ninth and the bases loaded to strike out Cookie Rojas and put out a Kansas City rally to save the win for Darold Knowles.

Sal Bando homered in the sixth to give the Athletics the lead for the third time, 4-3, but the Royals bounced back for a 4-4 tie in their half when John Mayberry walked, took second when Bando booted Amos Otis' grounder for an error and scored on Cookie Rojas' double.

Curran's Batting Spree Powers Panthers, 8-4

Pat Curran continued his rampage through the Chapman College baseball record book, but the Panthers absorbed their fourth straight defeat Tuesday as they bowed 8-4 to Pepperdine's Waves.

Curran slammed his 11th homer of the season in the eighth inning, tying his own school record for most homers in a season. The homer also accounted for Curran's 43rd RBI of the campaign, leaving the slugging outfielder only seven short of the record of 50 RBIs set by Tony Spano in 1968.

Chapman melted Pepperdine's lead to 4-3 with three runs in the fifth before Scott Muckey of the Waves connected for a three-run home run in the eighth after a single and a Chapman error put two runners aboard. Carlo Mejia went 2-for-4 and had three RBIs for the Waves.

Titanbabes Fencing Champions

(Special To The Register)
ITHACA, N.Y. — Fullerton State became the first school west of New Jersey to finish on top in the 46-year history of the national collegiate women's fencing championships Tuesday.

The Titanbabes, who were third a year ago, beat out favored host Cornell 81 points to 79 with William Patterson of New Jersey third at 76 among 25 schools in the two-day event.

Les Bleamaster, who brought his team back from fourth place yesterday, was named coach of the year following the competition.

Defending champion Sue McCourt paced Fullerton, which lost only five bouts on the closing day, with a 20-4 record for fifth place. She made All-American as did Debbie Robertson, who was 22-2 for eighth. Kerry Tiberti had a 20-4 record and Bleamaster's wife, Virginia, was 19-5 completing the scoring.

Natadores At Nat. Swim

(Special To The Register)
DALLAS, Texas — Fifteen members of the Mission Viejo Natadores begin team and individual competition today in the shortcourse national swimming championship in Dallas.

Men and women from throughout the United States and one group from Canada will take part in the event that runs through Saturday.

Heading the Mission Viejo delegation are past national standouts Shirley Babashoff, Valerie Lee and Peggy Toldal.

El Toro Bows To Wind Storm

El Toro High, blown off the diamond by Tuesday's wind storm, will try again today at 4 when it meets Colton in the second round of the Apple Valley Tournament.

The wind storm Tuesday postponed all action in the championship bracket, but consolation rounds made it before the high winds hit. Ontario ripped Victor Valley, 8-3 and Apple Valley whipped Gladstone, 5-2.

Canyon Falls To Lee Vining

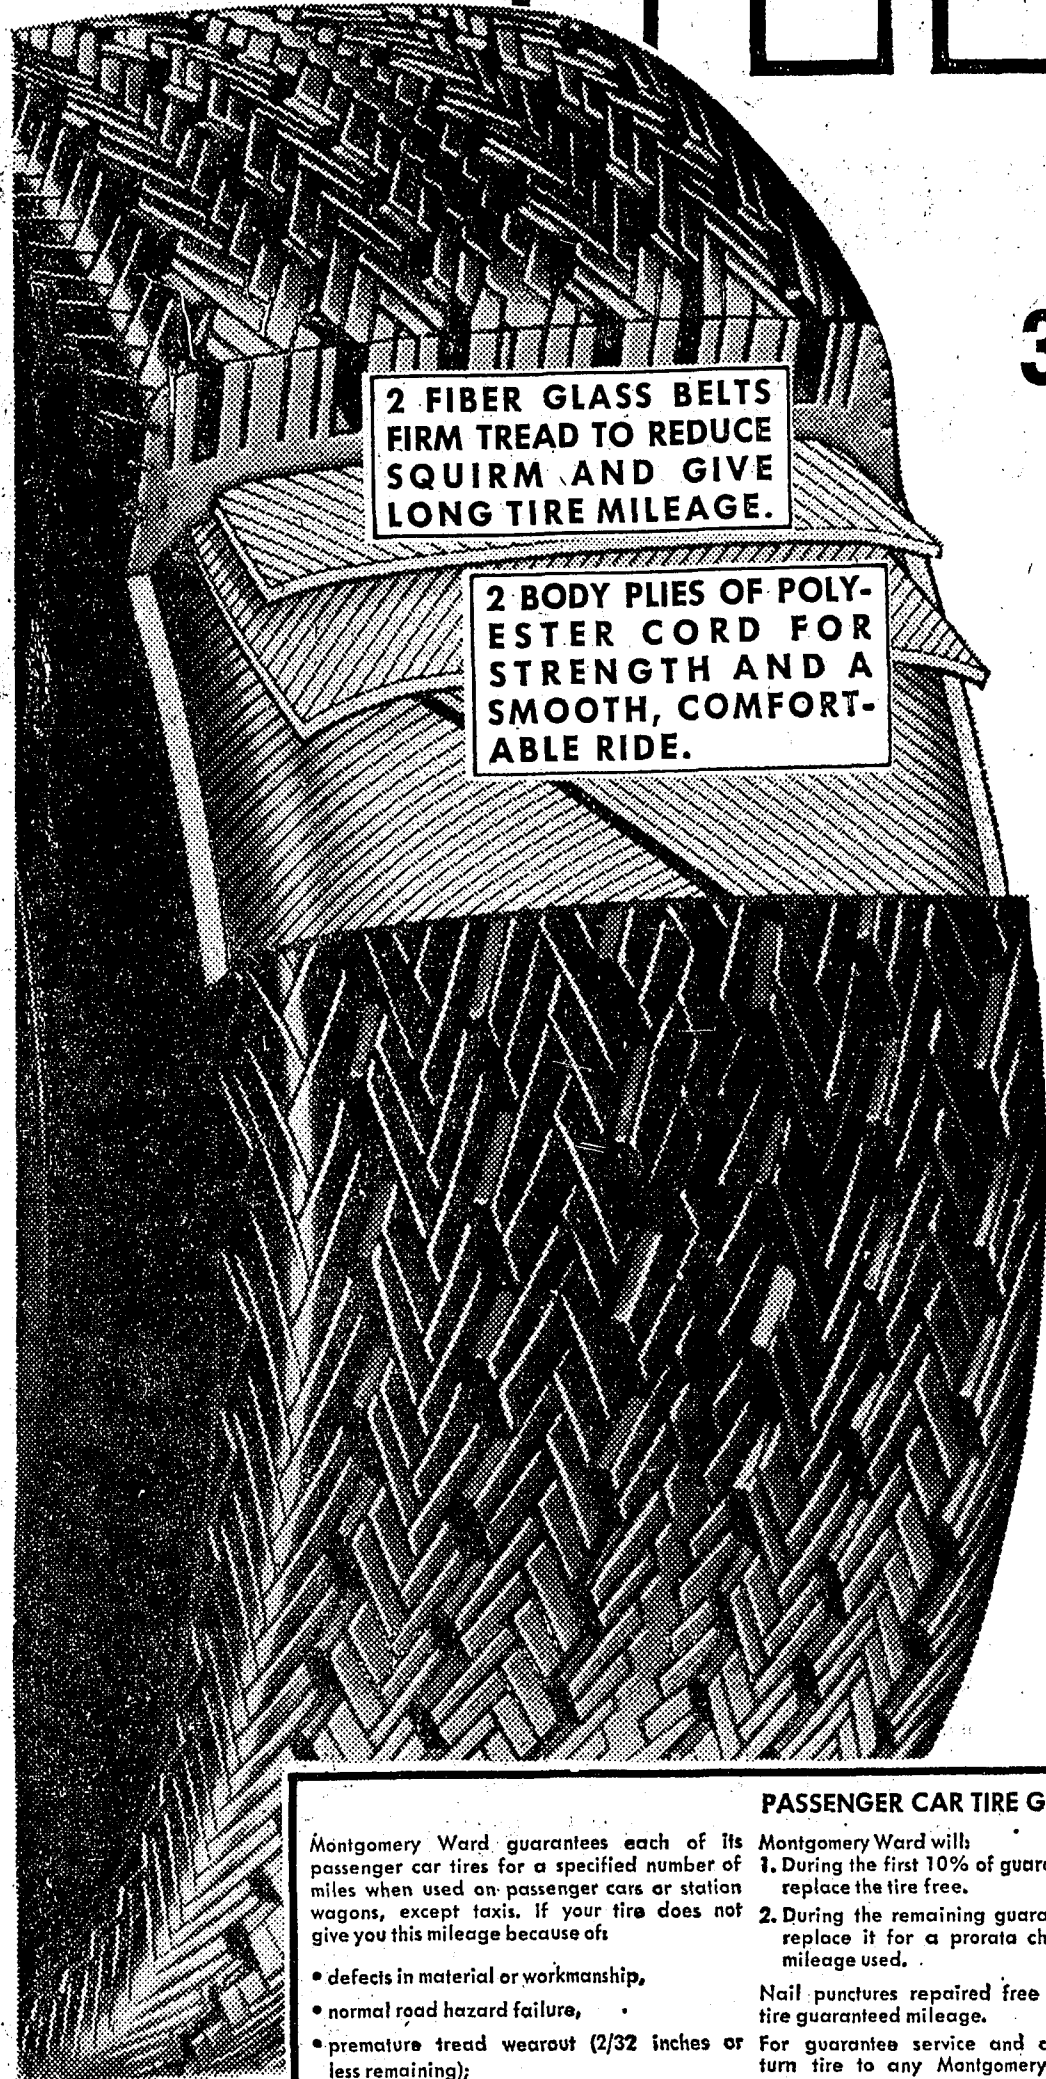

Lee Vining tripped Canyon, 6-5 Tuesday to knock the Comanches out of play in the Perris Baseball Tournament.

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.

For guarantee service and adjustments, return tire to any Montgomery Ward branch with the Guarantee Booklet issued at the time of sale.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

Hollypark Prepares The Fatted Calf

In a move altogether without precedent, Hollywood Park seems embarked in a crusade to fatten up its horse players.

This is a kindness and a need. Heretofore, the playing public, like Gaul, was divided into three parts. There were those who (a) ate only on days the track was dark; (b) those who did not eat at all and (c) those who never gave the matter any thought one way or the other.

Convenience has something to do with taking nourishment during a race meeting.

Breakfast is served at an impossible time of the day. Lunch is prepared at the busiest time of the day which is an hour, or thereabouts, before first post. Dinner is out of the question since one is either gorging on the fluids of triumph or weeping into the liquids of remorse.

Hollywood Park, however, appears intent on changing all this and getting us all ready for market. To say you wouldn't know the place would simply serve to point up the limit of this gourmet's vocabulary, but considerable of the $5 million in improvements over three years seems to be going into dining areas.

International Food

For example, there is a location known as the International Food Fair. Here one dines on menu items peculiar to Germany, France, England, Mexico, the Southern United States and civilized America. The Polynesian restaurant is in an area by itself, no doubt on the theory that once a guy starts on those exotic rum drinks, he should be left alone.

Nor will hours retard the feasting. A deli will prepare take-out items for those on the way out of the premises. If, indeed, any of us will manage to squeeze through the door beyond the middle of May.

To me, age and tradition have always been becoming to a race track but they can only endure for so long. Apparently in total agreement is the lady of the manse, Marjorie Everett, who suggested the program of renovation.

Her favorite colors are red and orange and they are pre-dominant although tastefully diluted with white. In all, 10,000 man hours were squandered sloshing on 1000 gallons of paint. This is not to mention several miles of tile and carpet.

Mrs. Everett deplors green and the color does not appear in the decorating scheme. Do not be alarmed, however. Nothing was done to the grass and fauna and flora of Hollywood Park's famous "lakes and flowers" infield.

Visitors Attracted

This is found particularly attractive to visiting horse players from other tracks who are used to standing around on asphalt and concrete. At Hollywood Park, they are invited to remove their shoes and wriggle their toes in the grass which at least one other track in Southern California, being conservative, frowns upon.

Drama is added in the form of six-foot-square baked enamel plaques which cover the 90 exterior windows of the grandstand. The symbols depict 30 of the most respected stables in American thoroughbred racing, including many victors in the Hollywood Gold Cup.

The coming and going at Hollywood Park is a sight to behold. (Please Turn To Page E8)

Calvin Hill Signed By Hawaiians

HONOLULU (UPI) — Dallas Cowboy running back Calvin Hill jumped from the National Football League to the new World Football League Tuesday, signing a three-year contract with the Hawaiians beginning in 1975.

Hill, a five-year veteran of the NFL and the Cowboys, said he would do "everything in my power to help Dallas win the Super Bowl this year," after he signed the contract to play for the Hawaiians.

Hill told a news conference here that he felt the fact that he was playing out his option and planned to play in the WFL in 1975 would not hamper his play for the Cowboys in the upcoming season.

"I think we have a great chance of winning the Super Bowl this season," Hill said. "I plan to do everything I can to help the Cowboys do just that."

Contract terms were not disclosed, but a spokesman for the WFL team said the money was "substantial."

Hill said money was only part of the reason for jumping to the Hawaiians, but he said it was not the only reason. "It's like being in on the ground floor," he said. "It is a chance to be part of something that is starting from scratch and has a chance to become something big and worthwhile."

Hill, named rookie of the year in his first year with the Cowboys in the NFL and three times an all-pro selection, was the second "name" NFL player to sign a contract with the Hawaiians in the past few days. San Francisco 49er tight end Ted Kwalick also came to terms with the Hawaiians last weekend. His contract also begins in 1975.

Both men indicated they planned to do their best for their NFL teams in the 1974 season while playing out their options and becoming eligible to join the WFL team.

"We'll be teammates a year from now," Kwalick said, "but this year we'll be foes and we'll play like foes."

Hill agreed. The signing was disclosed earlier in a telephone interview from Dallas with Shelley Hill said. "I want whatever team I'm playing for to be the best the Hawaiians."

Fullerton Nine Sets Hot Pace

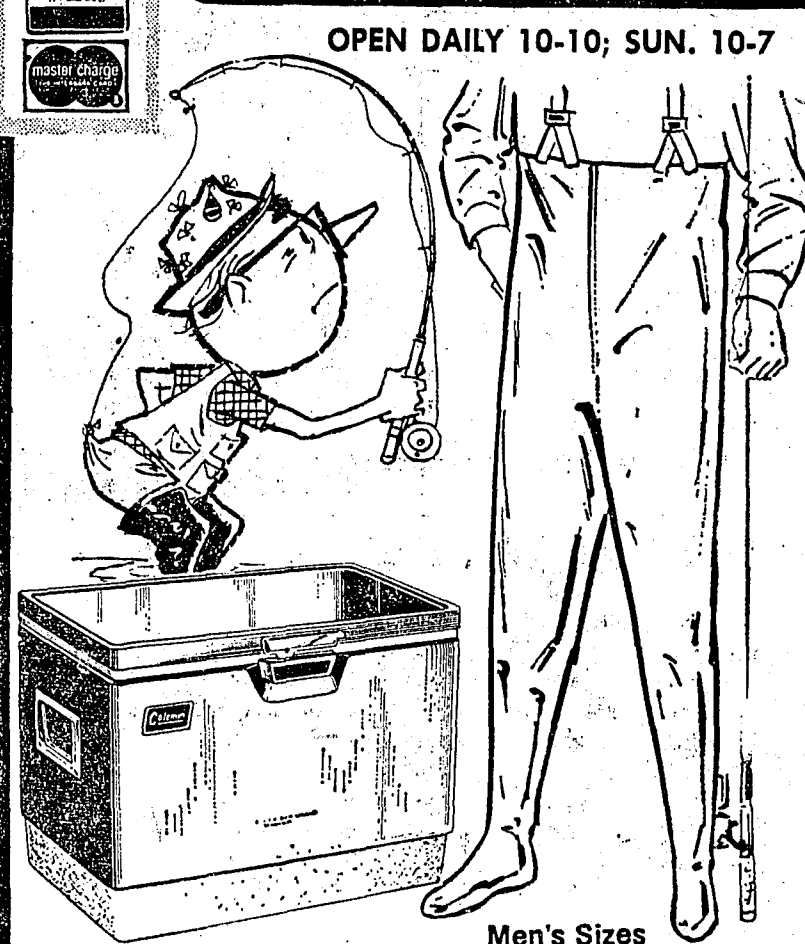

More and more Fullerton State continues to dominate baseball team records and individual statistics in its final season as a CCAA member.

The Titans are ahead in league play by 2½ games with a 8-2 start and for all games at 22-9 counting Monday's triumph.

Dan Everts still leads all pitchers for the season with 7-1 and 1.00 records. Teammate Dave Klungrester has moved into second at 6-3, 1.68.

In batting, Bob Azzarito of Northridge State retained first place going into the week at .386 followed by three Titans — Jim Irvine .367, Len Patterson .354 and Don Sneddon .345. Sixth is Fullerton's Mike Pagnotta at .333. No. 12 is Frank Estes with .307 followed by Jeff Brinkley with .304.

All you got to do is ask

Who draws baseball's top dollar?

By Murray Olderman

The tipoff:

The successor to Walter Kennedy will come from outside the National Basketball Association and not from his current staff as rumored. Or from the NBA's management structure.

Q. Who is the highest paid player in baseball? I would guess it'd have to be Hank Aaron. — Jack Schumacher, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Considering the attention focused on his home run assault, maybe it should be Hank. And he isn't exactly starving at $200,000, plus all the loot he's going to get for breaking Ruth's record, but the big money maker is Richie (call me Dick) Allen at $235,000 for the Chicago White Sox.

Q. I was batboy for the N.Y. Yankees from 1947 to 1950 and in August 1948 on Babe Ruth Day, the very last time he put on a uniform, I had the great job of helping the Babe get dressed. He didn't want anyone else around as he was very sick with cancer. I have the very last baseball he signed in a Yankee uniform and would be interested in selling it. Any offers? — Eddie Gallagher, Huntington Beach, Calif.

I don't know. The market on "special" baseballs has been grabbed by the Aaron ball, for which a Georgia grocer has already offered $15,000. And George Plimpton, who's doing a Sports Illustrated special on the Aaron assault, has already scouted the left field stands in Atlanta and reports that it's going to be a wild scene out there, with fish nets and "shivs" as the complement of weapons by bounty-seeking fans.

Q. What has happened to Pancho Gonzales? I'm interested because I see him around Las Vegas a lot. — Judith Creel, Las Vegas, Nev.

For good reason. Pancho and his wife have moved there full time, since he is the director of tennis at Caesar's Palace and his fulltime job, though he still competes in senior tournaments and maintains his affiliation with Spalding as a tennis consultant. Pancho's graying locks have appropriately grown out, too.

Q. Can you explain for me why major league teams in baseball don't use the safety squeeze more often? I believe it is fairly obvious why they don't employ the suicide squeeze — but why not use the safety squeeze? — W. Stewart, Vermillion, Ohio.

There are too many other ways, in the modern concept of baseball, to get a runner home — like hitting the ball over the fence. Actually, there are some managers such as Gene Mauch of the Montreal Expos who use every strategic device in the game, including the safety squeeze, and you will see it occasionally. It's like the nickel cup of coffee — gone the way of progress.

Q. I would like to know if any Miami Dolphin is to go to the WFL, be traded or retire. I would also like to know if Miami will get Joe Theisman? — James Brown, Friant, Calif.

To the former, the answer is no — in 1974. Fellow like tight end Jim Mandich played out his option but will undoubtedly be back. There's salary discontent in the ranks, as evidenced by the defection of Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield to Toronto come 1975, and as expressed by linebacker Doug Swift after the Super Bowl, but that's normal. Guys like tight end vet Mary Fleming will try to squeeze out another year, though quarterback Earl Morrall won't. Re Theisman, you're behind times — his rights were picked up by the Washington Redskins, and George Allen's grooming him as the quarterback of the future.

Q. Why don't they call foot-faults on all those tennis pros who keep jumping into the air on their serves, almost landing at the net? I thought it was illegal. — Jack Blanchard, Pittsburgh, Pa.

It was — until four years ago. Now the tennis stars, who don't have to be anchored to the surface with at least one foot, have perfected a kick method in the air — tennis version of an entrechat — which gives them extra pace. "They put it in," grumbles Clark Graebner, "for Arthur Ashe."

Parting shot:

The collapse of the Golden State Warriors in the final weeks of the season, throwing them out of the playoffs and the team into the red, jeopardizes some players' job security. E.G. Jeff Mullins — but they should look closer at some player-front office dissension as the big cause for el fold.

Kathy Wonders How Long She'll Reign

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kathy Whitworth, the queen of women's golf, is beginning to wonder how much longer she can wear her crown.

"I've been the leading money-winner eight years, but I can't hold it forever," she said. "It's going to be hard for me to relinquish it. This will be an experimental year to see whether I can let it go gracefully."

Miss Whitworth isn't near retirement yet, but she is "cutting back" on her tournament appearances. She has won more money than any other women golfer and recently passed $500,000.

"I've got to cut back, or I'm not going to be able to play as long as I would like," she said. "At the pace I'm going I couldn't last two or three more years. I think I have at least six more years, then it's going to be downhill."

Last year Miss Whitworth missed only four of the 35 tournaments on the women's tour and "I really got tired." This year she'll miss several more.

"I'll see how it goes," she said. "When I'm getting tired, I'm getting irritated and not looking forward to the next tournament, it's time to back off from the tour and go fishing or visit friends."

Miss Whitworth is 34 and was on the women's tour long before the purses started to grow.

"I started in pro golf right out of high school and I remember the days of the $7,500 tournaments," she said. "When you win a $1,000 check, you thought you were big time."

Now, of course, the payoffs are bigger. Next week the women golfers will be competing in the $200,000 Colgate-Dinah Shore Winners Circle Championship at Mission Hills Country Club in Palm Springs, Calif. The top prize is $32,000 and a new car.

"In the last three years things have really mushroomed," she said. "We were a decade, and many fine golfers have been found wanting in trying to challenge her. If she is about to relinquish her top spot over the next several years, who will succeed her as queen? Who among the newest challengers could be successful?"

"Well, Laura Baugh is going to be a winner and she'll be a big name," Miss Whitworth said. "Pat Bradley, who's going to school in Miami, is another good one."

Jamieson Knows All About The Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Jim Jamieson knows about the Masters. He knows about it because he grew up in Moline, Ill.

And in Illinois, like in most parts of the Midwest and northern United States, the Masters signals the start of the golf season.

"I remember when I was a kid and the Masters came on a TV, I'd take out my clubs and shine 'em up and hope the weather was nice enough to get out and play after the telecast," Jamieson said Monday.

"It usually wasn't, though. My lifelong dream was to see Augusta National. I never thought I'd end up playing it," Jamieson's father saw the first Masters in 1934. He was in the army and just happened to be going through Augusta when the late Bobby Jones staged the first event, which was won by Horton Smith.

"I really like playing here," Jamieson said. "I like the people and I like the tradition."

The 30-year-old Jamieson, one of the longest hitters on the tour, should like Augusta National. He's played well here.

In 1972 he tied for fifth with a 72-hole total of 290, four shots behind Jack Nicklaus, and last year Jamieson rolled in with a three-under-par 285, good for third place two shots behind Tommy Aaron.

Furthermore, Jamieson is playing well now. He finished Augusta National, 11-under-par 273 Sunday in the Greater Greensboro Open, which placed him alone in sixth place for a $7,932 payoff.

Shell Hikes Price Of Heating, Diesel Oils, Kerosene

Shell Oil Co. has raised wholesale prices for heating oil, diesel fuel and kerosene 3.1 cents a gallon.

The company said the April price increase, effective Saturday, is necessary because of the higher cost of raw material purchased in March.

Southern Pacific said it plans a $25 million expenditure to completely rebuild 3,500 freight cars in 1974. The majority—2,848—are wide-door box cars.

The railroad also reports it will overhaul 83 diesel locomotives, adding 8 to 10 useful years to each unit. During 1973 62 were rebuilt. Some 168 cabooses are scheduled for total rehabilitation, up 40 units from 1973.

During 1972-73, SP reports it spent $310 million for new freight cars and locomotives.

Atlanta-based National Distributing Co., one of the largest distributors of wine and alcoholic beverages in the Southeast, said it has agreed in principle to buy the assets and business of The Milford Co. in Los Angeles.

National earlier gained entry into the Southern California market with the purchase of the Alfred Hart Co. in Los Angeles.

Alfred A. Davis, chairman of the board of National, said Milford "will add substantially to National's total market in Southern California."

Deere & Co., one of the nation's three biggest farm equipment manufacturers, said it is in the process of raising prices on its agricultural and industrial products an average of 5 per cent.

Magnavox Co. has won a U.S. Air Force contract to design and manufacture a new airborne UHF radio. The immediate contract is for $14.3 million and covers the initial buy of radios. Expected options will bring the total contract value to approximately $50 million on a multi-year basis.

Los Angeles-based Simplex Industries, Inc. (AMEX) has acquired exclusive, worldwide license rights to a new patented recycling process, president Richard H. Loeffler reports.

The "Ecomat" process uses virtually all types of waste paper materials and does not require the use of water. He said the process is almost totally nonpollutive to the environment as it is a closed system with no discharge of wastes. In addition, the system uses a fraction of the energy needs of conventional recycling plants. The system's end product is a low cost building board whose physical dimensions as well as porosity, density and fire and weather-proofing characteristics can be formed for specific applications.

Academy of Music Co. has raised wholesale prices for heating oil, diesel fuel and kerosene 3.1 cents a gallon.

The company said the April price increase, effective Saturday, is necessary because of the higher cost of raw material purchased in March.

Does your banker reject "loan" as if it were a four-letter word?

The last time you asked your banker for a business loan, did he blink as if you cursed at him?

Or if you were to mention a Small Business Administration Loan, would he stomp his foot down on the alarm button?

And if yours is a small-to-medium size business (gross annual receipts of $250,000 to $10 million), isn't there an even more important question to ask?

Does your big bank banker know why you need the loan?

If he doesn't—if he treats your business like a hill of beans—consider Imperial Bank.

We'd like to help make a mountain out of his "mole hill."

We'll give you a personal banker from senior management, backed up by an action team of officers from our Imperial Bank.

We'll give you personal answers on loans.

And although we're basically "yes" men, occasionally we'll have to say "No!"

But along with that "No," you'll get a positive kind of alternate plan.

What else can we offer?

Everything from loans, accounts receivable financing and equipment leasing, to payroll systems, account reconciliations and federal depository services.

And more—much more.

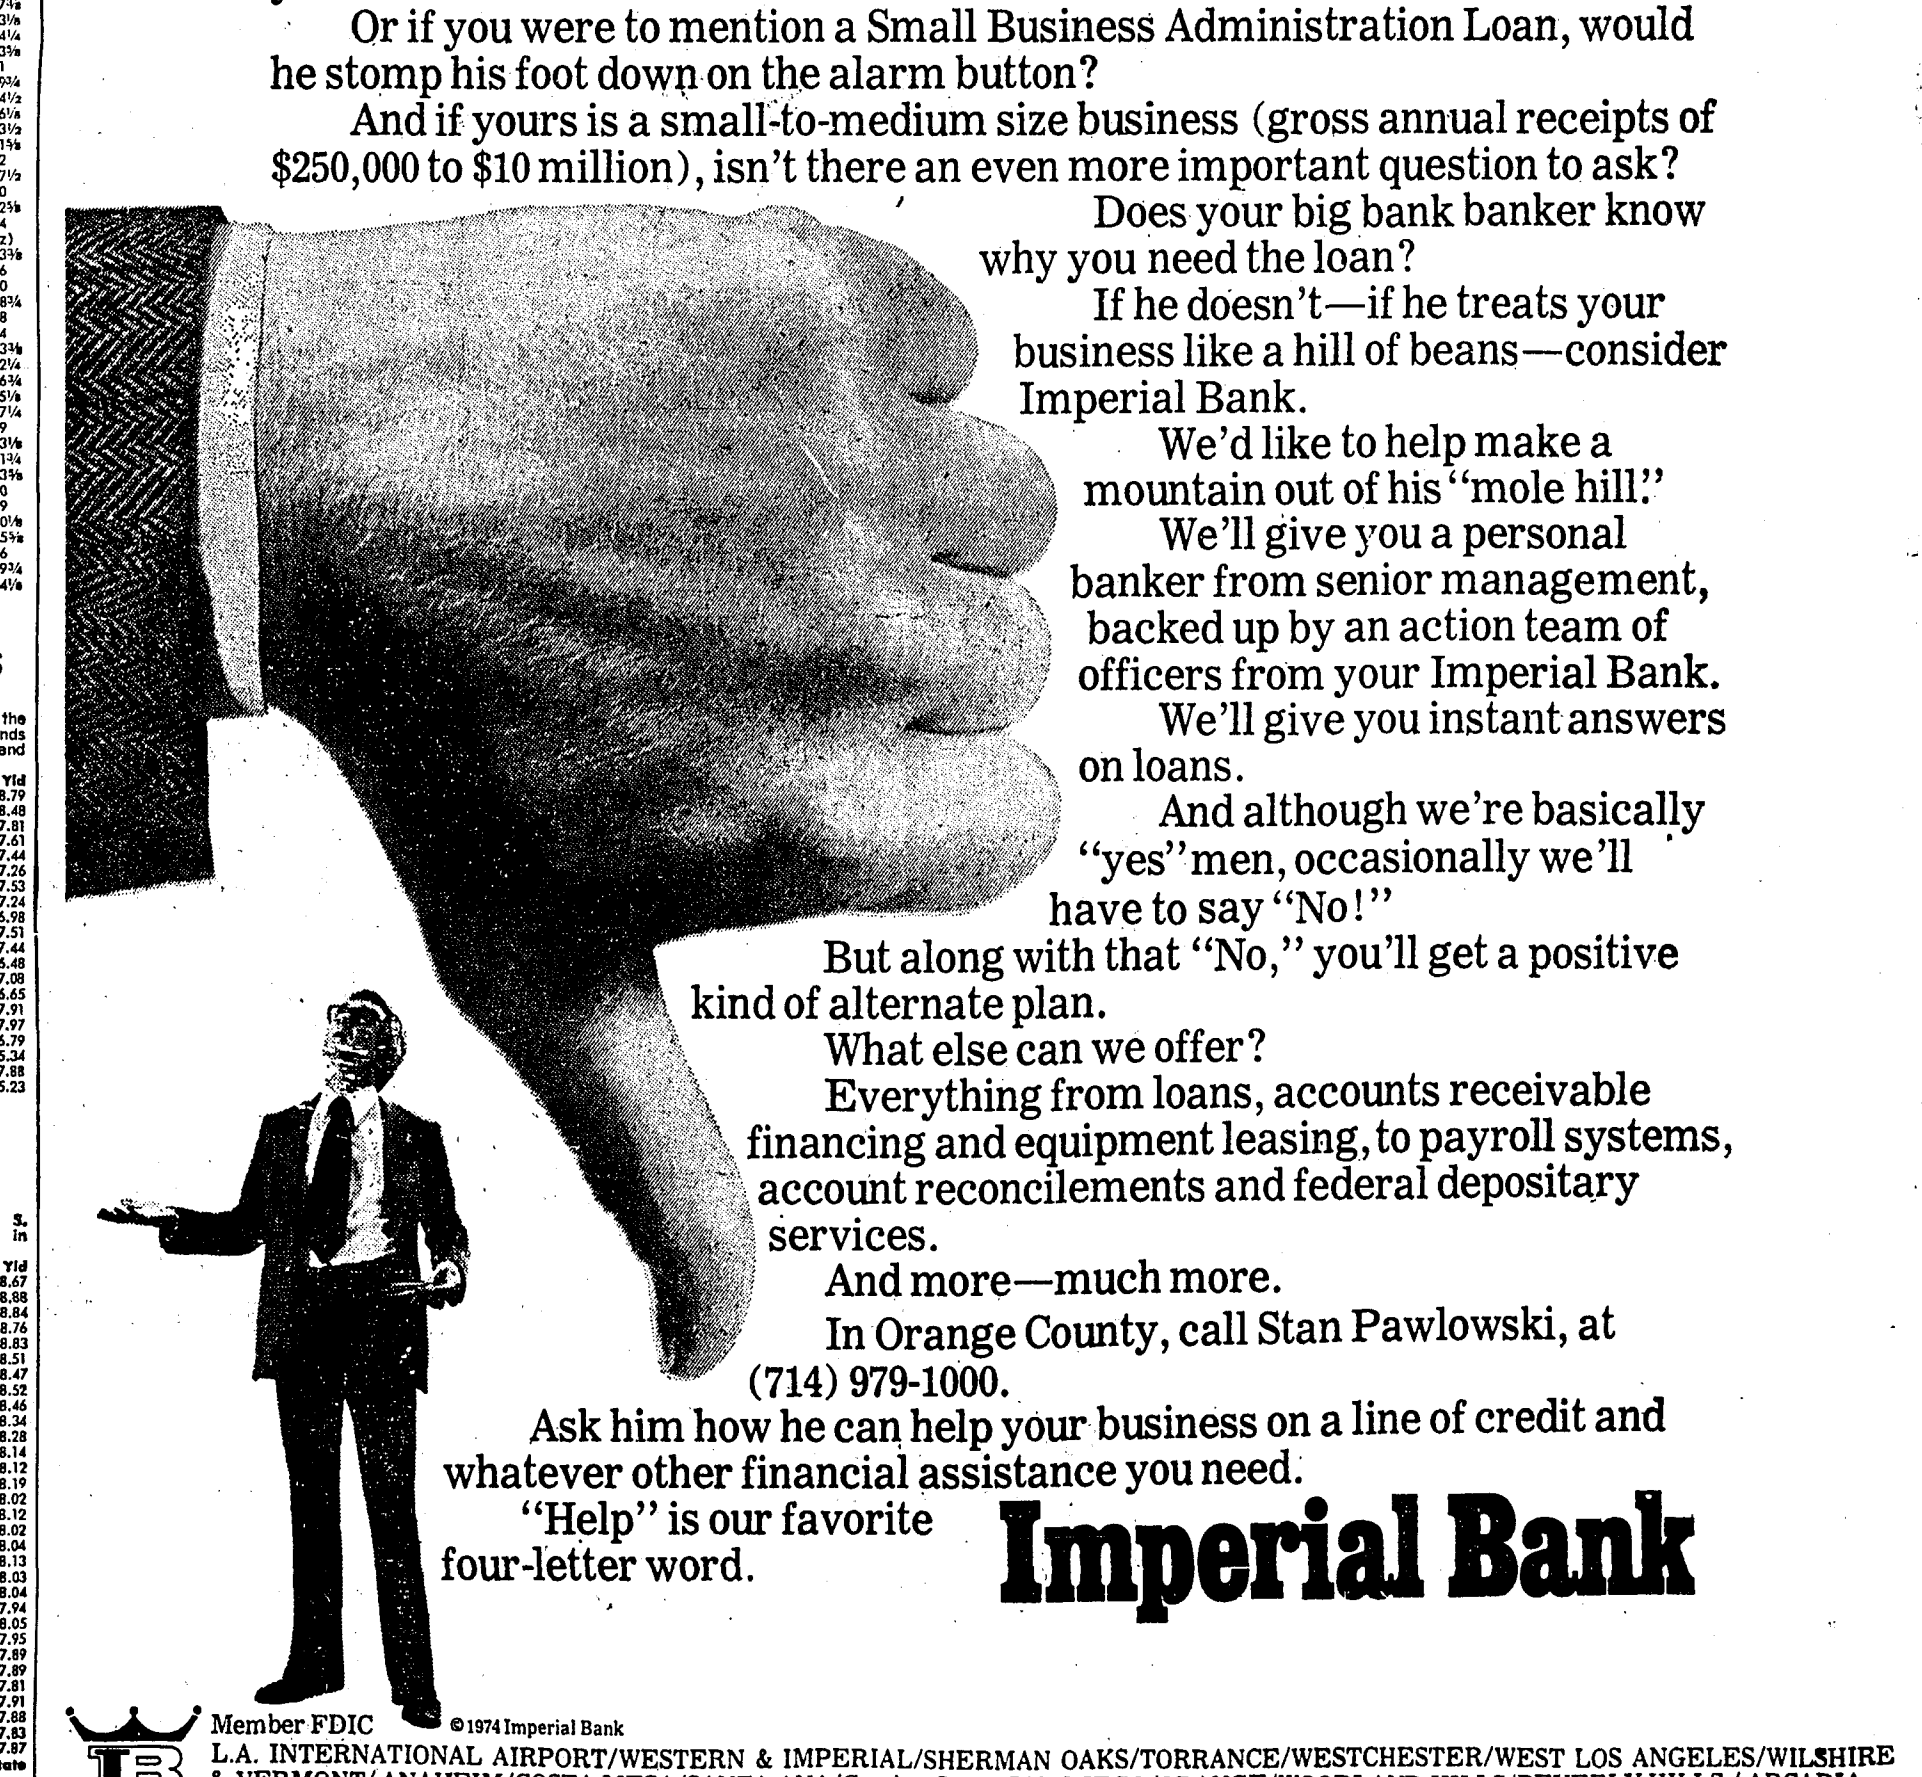

In Orange County, call Stan Pawlowski, at (714) 979-1000.

Ask him how he can help your business on a line of credit and whatever other financial assistance you need.

"Help" is our favorite four-letter word.

Dumps Of Uranium Waste Plague Utah, 6 Other Western States

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has called for further study of abandoned uranium waste piles in seven western states and asked for rejection of legislation designed to protect Salt Lake City against radiation from wastes left by a uranium mill.

Officials of the Atomic Energy Commission and the Environmental Protection Agency, testifying recently before the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, admitted that radiation at the Salt Lake City site was at least 50 times greater than allowed under government guidelines.

They said, however, that passage of the bill introduced by Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, would be "premature" and that further studies should be made of the other abandoned milling sites in Arizona, Colorado, Oregon, Texas, New Mexico and Wyoming.

Testifying against the bill were Dr. James L. Liverman, assistant general manager of the AEC, and Dr. W.D. Rowe, deputy assistant administrator of EPA.

Liverman said the 150-acre pile of uranium tailings left behind by the Vitro Chemical Corp., which processed the ore for the AEC, was only one of many such radioactive waste dumps left in the West.

"It is our judgment that a study should be made of the potential public health problems arising from each such inactive tailings pile and that it would be more efficient to perform one comprehensive study of all such piles rather than treating the potential problem on a piece-meal basis," Liverman said.

Rowe said EPA already had studied the Salt Lake City tailings and had found they are emitting two types of radioactivity—which will continue for centuries—that can cause cancer and genetic effects.

The EPA scientists said radiation was about 100 times greater than the normal background radioactivity and that it was found to be 50 times greater than allowed under the surgeon general's guidelines in four nearby buildings used for business purposes.

Rowe said the wastes would have to be covered with 20 feet of soil to reduce the emissions by 90 per cent.

"To my knowledge nothing of this magnitude has previously been attempted," he said, adding that it would cost an estimated $6 million to move the wastes.

Moss, who opened testimony on his bill, said it was the federal government's responsibility to clean up the site because removal of the wastes was not Vitro's responsibility under its contract with the AEC.

Moss said a precedent for radioactive tailings in residential and commercial areas of when Congress authorized $51 million for the AEC to remove radioactive tailings in residential and commercial areas of Grand Junction, Colo.

Legal Society Chief Warns Of Incompetency

HOUSTON (UPI) — The president of the American Bar Association warns that the legal profession should design a system to protect the public from the incompetent lawyer.

Chesterfield Smith of Lakeland, Fla., said if such a step was not taken the profession would find itself regulated by "some consumer minded agency—government or otherwise."

"No longer should we as a profession allow marginal lawyers repeatedly to accept cases that they cannot competently and profitably handle or let some drift in and out of the profession without some demonstration that they have retained at least a minimal level of competence," he told a meeting of the National Conference of Bar Presidents meeting in conjunction with the ABA's midyear sessions.

Fire Claim Turns Into False Alarm

POITIERS, France (UPI) — It was another product of the new era of cold and impersonal automation.

Those who telephoned got a recorded message that said: "Because of a fire, you are unable to obtain your party. It is pointless to keep trying."

The fire was at Poitiers central telephone exchange but the message did not say so. Some of the 5,600 subscribers feared it meant the fire was in their own neighborhood or in the home of the person they were trying to call.

"I grabbed my little son and rushed down the stairs," said a young mother who would not give her name. "On the sidewalk I didn't see any fire. Then I thought it must be at the home of my sister who I was trying to call."

"I dashed to telephone my husband and got the same message."

"This is impossible, I said to myself. All of Poitiers burning except my house!"

Telephone officials later replaced the recorded message with a more detailed one.

Bandit Robs Fullerton Bank

FULLERTON—An armed bandit escaped with an undetermined amount of money he took at gunpoint from a teller Monday at the United California Bank, 315 N. Harbor Blvd., police reported.

The gunman took the money from the teller and ran out the door as she activated the alarm. Police officers were only a short distance away, but the bandit escaped before they could reach the scene, police said.

Channel Swim

The English Channel was first swum by Matthew Webb in 1875. America's Hertrude Ederle became the first woman to swim it, in 1926. Since then several men have made nonstop, round-trip crossings, a feat that means being in the sea from 30 to 43 hours.

RABBIT NESTS?
Dear Trouble Shooter
Please tell me how the Easter bunny originated. As a matter of fact, I have also wondered for a long time how the word "Easter" began. I cannot find it in my Bible.
M.O.G.
Santa Ana

The Trouble Shooter's glad you asked about this, Ma'am, because it gave him a chance to discover why Easter bunnies "lay eggs" in nests. It's an interesting story.
Historians at the Hallmark Greeting Card Co. say that the Easter bunny started out as a large and splendid bird that was the pet of Eostre, the goddess of spring (and that's where the word "Easter" comes from). One day, Eostre, for some reason or 'other, changed her pet bird into a bunny.
The Easter bunny's former membership in the bird world, according to legend, accounts for the nests it builds and the colored eggs it lays in 'em.

'GET WELL' CARDS
Dear Trouble Shooter
On March 11, The Register printed the story of California Angel pitcher Bruce Heinbecker's death in an auto accident. It was head-on collision and the driver of the other car is my cousin, just 29 years old.

Would you ask your readers to send her some Easter cards, or some "get well" cards? She has a long period of recuperation ahead of her. Both legs are in a cast, plus one arm. She had three and one-half hours surgery on her face, has a broken nose, broken rib cage and there is much more. She is in much pain.
I'm sure cards would cheer her and help the time pass.
M.P.
Garden Grove

The Trouble Shooter reckons a lot of his readers will agree, Ma'am. They can address their cards and letters to Miss Cathy Carroll, 68-707 "D" St., Cathedral City 92234.
And, while he's on the topic of cheering cards, the Trouble Shooter's been asked by a Santa Ana reader if folks from these parts would be willing to send some cards to a 10-year-old lad in St. Louis, Mo., whose critical illness will prevent him from realizing the dream of his life, to visit Disneyland.
The story is a tragic one, too long to print, but a greeting from California will mean a lot to a very sick young boy. He is Paul Whitley, 4011 "A" Juanita, St. Louis, Mo. 63118.

NEEDS A VISA
Dear Trouble Shooter
We are planning this summer to visit relatives in an eastern European country and we will need special visas. Can you tell us how to go about obtaining them?
B.C.A.
Fullerton

Easiest way is to talk with the folks at Visas International, 6255 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles 90028. They'll send you the forms to fill out. The Trouble Shooter assumes you already have your passport. If not, get it before applying for your visa.

SUMMER CAMP
Dear Trouble Shooter
We would like to get some information on summer camp for handicapped children. Our daughter is 9 years old and has cerebral palsy. Her greatest wish is to go to camp this summer.
I have located one camp program at a cost of $260 for two weeks which is out of sight. We are a family of only average means, and can afford only about half that amount.
Two years ago, our daughter was scheduled to go with the Crippled Children's Society of Long Beach, but due to surgery that came up, she was unable to go. Now I am told they no longer take any child who lives outside of Los Angeles County. There was no fee for this camp because it was funded by charitable organizations.

Will you ask your readers if they know of other sponsors of camps for handicapped children?
M.J.C.
Cypress

You betcha, Ma'am! You'll hear from the Ol' Trouble Shooter minute he hears from someone who can help.

NO POWER STEERING
Dear Trouble Shooter
This sounds ridiculous, however, I wish you would listen to it. I bought a new car for my wife about six years ago, thinking she had everything on the car that the car window sticker showed. Recently, the car needed adjustments. We found that the power steering is missing. My wife had never noticed.

The dealer who sold us the car claimed that there is a possibility that someone removed it. According to the mechanic at another dealer who sells the same cars, it is almost impossible to remove power steering without a lot of work and expense.
You see, I evidently paid for what I didn't get. We still have the original sticker and sales contract to prove that we paid for power steering.
G.S.F.
Garden Grove

Installation or removal of power steering equipment is a pretty complicated job, pod-nah. Mechanics tell the Trouble Shooter that they've heard of a lot of things being stolen from somebody's auto, but never the power steering mechanism.
The Trouble Shooter would be inclined to agree with you that the "extra" listed on your bill of sale was unintentionally omitted when the car was put together at the factory, or that someone at the factory goofed in listing the extra equipment on the car. However, since your wife has been driving the car without complaint for six years, the Trouble Shooter doubts that the dealer is going to be willing to make any adjustment.

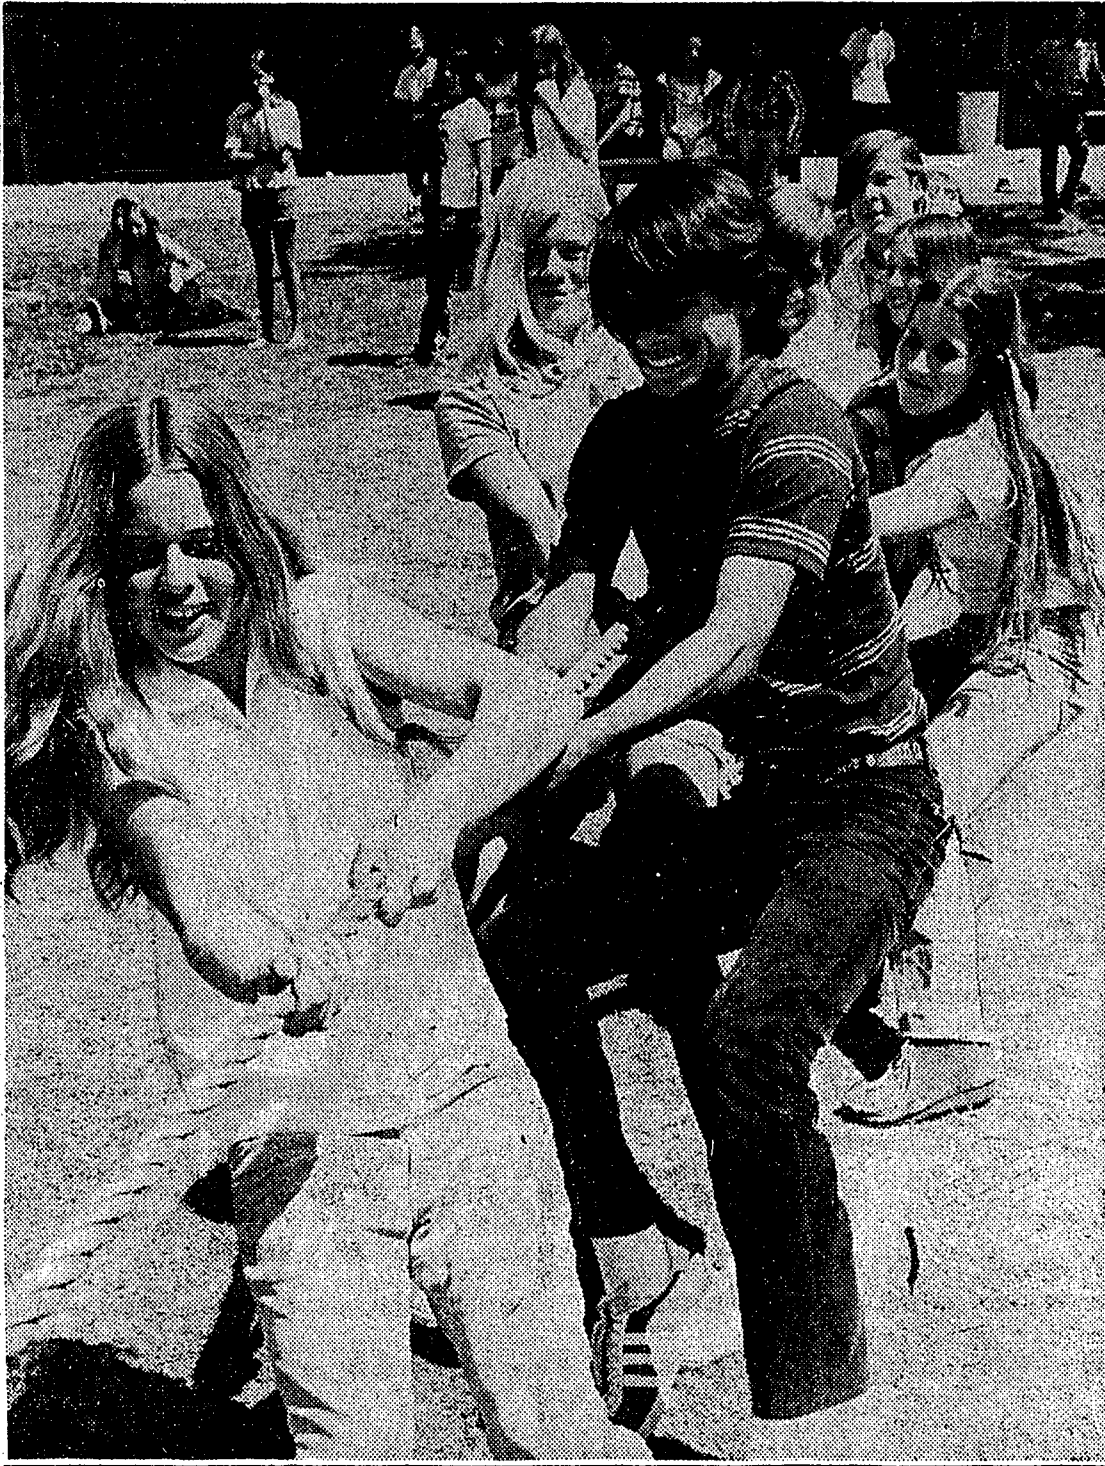

BIG BROTHER
Dear Trouble Shooter
A recent conference with my 9-year-old son's teacher prompted a recommendation that he attend the functions for boys at the Tustin Boys Club since he has only an older sister at home and no male "image." (I have been divorced for five years and moved to Tustin only six months ago.)
I wholeheartedly agree with the teacher, but I have a dilemma. I work all day and transportation is a problem. It's out of the question for my son to walk each way every day to the Boys Club. It's too far away.
His own bicycle was stolen in San Diego last year before we moved here. I have been unable to replace it because my income does not stretch very far.

If someone has an outgrown or discarded regular 26-inch boy's bicycle in the garage that could be fixed up for my son, there would be one very happy 9-year-old who would be grateful, not to mention his mother!
J.N.
Tustin

Seems the Ol' Trouble Shooter that your son needs some good male companionship, Ma'am, along with, or maybe instead of, that bicycle. Have you contacted Big Brothers of Orange County? This is a group of dedicated, down-to-earth, volunteer "good guys" who help provide a balanced childhood for fatherless boys.
Got a problem? Write the Trouble Shooter, P.O. BOX 11626, Santa Ana, Calif., 92711. PLEASE DO NOT TELEPHONE YOUR PROBLEM. Due to the volume of mail, not all letters can be answered or acknowledged. Those published will be signed with initials only, but you must include your name, address and telephone number.

SPRING FLING — People - wrapping, watermelon eating, a gunny sack race and tug-o-war were some of the student-teacher activities at a "Play Day" at Izaak Walton Intermediate School, 12181 Buaro St., Garden Grove. Seventh and eighth graders tried "people decorating" upper left and clockwise, Una Carlin chomped into a big piece of watermelon, teachers hopped through a sack race and Sherry Matchik led a tug-o-war team.

Holy Week Services Scheduled At Churches In OC

Orange County churches will begin final days of preparation for Easter with observance of the saddest days in Christendom, Maundy Thursday, when Christ was betrayed at the Last Supper, and Good Friday when he died on the cross.
Many churches will observe the Good Friday rite of Tenebrae (Service of Shadows) when candles of the church are extinguished one by one, symbolizing the fading of the light of the world as Christ was departing from it.
Prayer vigils also will be kept in many churches. During these services parishioners come to the church at various times during the night of Maundy Thursday in an unbroken chain of prayer. This vigil is in memory of Christ's last night on earth when he was deserted by his Disciples.
Good Friday services are concluded in most churches by stripping of the altar and draping it in black.
Maundy Thursday and Good Friday services, listed by cities are as follows:

ANAHEIM
ZION LUTHERAN CHURCH, 228 N. East St., plans six half-hour meditations on Good Friday from noon to 3 p.m. Each meditation will last 30 minutes and involves choral groups and ministers from the Orange County area.
Senior Pastor E.W. Matthias will begin the series at noon. Other speakers will be the Rev. John Bucka, associate pastor at Zion; the Rev. R. Thoeke, Messiah Lutheran Church in Buena Park; Pastor R. Kusel, Lutheran Church of Our Savior, Fullerton; the Rev. R. Juengel, Bethel Lutheran Church, Cypress; and the Rev. H. Ehlers, St. Stephen's Lutheran Church, Fullerton.
ST. MICHAEL'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH of Anaheim will celebrate Holy Communion at 9:45 a.m. on Maundy Thursday. The Rev. John K. Saville, rector, has announced a Choral Eucharist and sermon at 7:30 p.m. on Good Friday, a family service will be held at 10 a.m. From noon to 3 p.m. "The Seven Last Words of Christ" will be presented. Along with the Rev. Saville, speakers taking part will include the Rev. Edward S. Little, the Rev. Paul Keller, First Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Arthur Harrington, Trinity United Methodist Church, St. Dunstan's Choir will sing. Edgar Reinschmidt will sing "Requiem" by Gabriel Faure, as part of the Good Friday service in Lamb of God Lutheran Church, 621 S. Sunkist, Anaheim. Holy Communion will be celebrated on Maundy Thursday. Both services are at 7:30 p.m.

On Good Friday at 7:30 p.m., the adult choir of the First Christian Church, 520 W. South St., will present the cantata, "Behold Your King," composed by John W. Peterson.
The 48 member choir is under the direction of Carey L. Gibbs, minister of music at First Christian Church. Ed Nix, of KEZY radio, will narrate, Linda Gibbs, will be organist and Glen Brookman, pianist.
The Maundy Thursday service at 7:30 p.m. in Covenant Presbyterian Church, 188 Emily St., will be spiritual highlight of the year, according to Dr. Rev. Bruce Kurre, pastor. Ralph H. Didier, pastor. A candlelight and music service will conclude with a Tenebrae rite. Following celebration of the Lord's Last Supper, the cross will be draped in black before the sanctuary gradually darkens as worshippers leave.

Holy Week observances at Grace Lutheran Church, 700 W. South St., will include Communion Services at 7:30 today and Holy Thursday at 9 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.
A three-hour community Good Friday service will be held in Grace Lutheran Church. This service will consist of seven 25-minute meditations on the last words of Christ from the cross, starting at noon and finishing at 3 p.m.
On Good Friday at 7:30 p.m. there will be a Communion service and Dr. Harry F. Stieff will preach on "New Gate—His Life for Me."
Guest speaker for the 7th annual YMCA Good Friday Breakfast at the Anaheim Convention Center will be Robert W. Clifford, president of Air California and chairman of the board of the Orange County Chamber of Commerce.
Also on the 7:30 a.m. breakfast program will be the A Cappella choir from Western High School under the direction of Alex Encheff. The Lord's Prayer will be sung by Fred Frank, a member of the choir and soloist at Garden Grove Community Church.
Tickets may be obtained from the sponsoring Anaheim Family YMCA, 1515 W. North St.
BUENA PARK
Good Shepherd Lutheran Church will hold Maundy Thursday Communion services at 7:30 p.m. Good Friday services will be from noon to 3 p.m.
COSTA MESA
The Covenant Church of the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, 2850 Fairview Road, will present the Lenten Cantata "To Calvary" at 7:30 p.m. as part of the Maundy Thursday Communion service. The narrative portion will be read by the Rev. Bruce Kurre, pastor. Holy Week services at Mount Calvary Lutheran Church will include a Tenebrae Service at 7:30 p.m. on Good Friday. The message from Pastor Vlad P. Benko will be "The Ending Word." A prayer vigil will be held from 4 to 10 p.m. Good Friday.

FOUNTAIN VALLEY
A sacrificial meal and Holy Communion will be observed at Fountain Valley First United Methodist Church Maundy Thursday at 7 p.m., in the church sanctuary. Child care will be provided. Reservations may be made with the church office or members may sign on a reservation sheet on the church bulletin board.
Family Eucharist will be held at 7 p.m. in St. Stephen's Lutheran Church, 2311 E. Chapman Ave., Fullerton. The church will observe a Tenebrae Service at 7 p.m. Good Friday. The Rev. Harvey I. Ehlers will preside.
GARDEN GROVE
Maundy Thursday services at St. Anselm Episcopal Church will include 6 a.m. Holy Eucharist, 7:30 p.m. choral eucharist and vigil of prayer from 9 p.m. Thursday to 6 a.m. Friday. Rector Samir J. Habiby will remain on the church premises during the prayer vigil to hear confession and counsel.
The community Good Friday service will be held at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church of Garden Grove, 12301 Magnolia Ave., from noon to 1:30 p.m. The service will center on the seven last words of Christ from the cross.
The service is being sponsored by the Ministerial Fellowship of Garden Grove, the Rev. Richard Moore, president.
The four meditations will be given by the Rev. Richard Moore of Faith United Church of Christ, the Rev. Benjamin Chapel, Free Methodist Church, the Rev. Miles Acker of United Methodist Church and the Rev. Charles Garringer of the First Baptist Church of Garden Grove. The service will be so arranged that persons not able to stay for the whole service may stay for a half hour, Pastor Endter, host minister announced.

HUNTINGTON BEACH
Maundy Thursday Holy Communion service will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the First Methodist Church of Huntington Beach. The combined choirs will sing, and the pastor, the Rev. Edward C. Erny, will give the meditation.
Community Good Friday services will be held at St. Wilfrid's Episcopal Church from noon to 3 p.m.
Maundy Thursday will be observed at 7:30 p.m. at Grace Lutheran Church, 6931 Edinger Ave., Faith Lutheran, 8200 Ellis Ave., and Redeemer, 16351 Springdale.
Good Friday services will be held at the three churches as well as at Lutheran Church of the Resurrection, 9812 Hamilton, at 8 p.m.
LAGUNA HILLS
Maundy Thursday services in the United Methodist Church of Laguna Hills will begin at 7 p.m. with special choral music. The Rev. Mark W. Gress and the Rev. Winfield Kelley will assist Dr. Lawrence F. Hawley, pastor, in serving Holy Communion Thursday evening.
On Friday, the church will join the community-wide observance to be held in the Geneva Presbyterian Church from noon to 2 p.m.
LAGUNA NIGUEL
The Laguna Niguel Shepherd of the Hills Church Maundy Thursday celebration of Holy Communion will be at 7:30 p.m. at the new sanctuary at 2551 Niguel Road.
The chancel play, "The People Versus Christ," will be featured under the direction of Bertha Johnson.
The Shepherd of the Hills choir will sing, and the Rev. David Sandberg will conduct the Communion celebration.
The Lord's Supper will be (Please Turn to Page F-2)

METERS WILL REMAIN

Beach Parking Hassle Ended

SANTA ANA—A compromise solution to the problem of who can park in the new surfside parking lot at Sunset Beach was reached Tuesday.
County supervisors said the 675 parking meters would remain in the lot, due to open May 31, but cars would not be ticketed for failing to pay between 6 p.m. and 9 a.m.
Residents also will be able to buy on a first-come, first-served basis 300 parking stickers, at $80 a year, enabling them to park without feeding the meters. Officials estimated there are 800 households in the area.
County park officials had recommended the meters operate from 6 a.m. to midnight, to keep parking spaces free for early beachgoers and to prevent overnight camping in the lot.

"We didn't start out to provide parking for the residents of the area," said Ken Sampson, harbors, beaches and parks director. "It was to be for beachgoers; that was the basis for our 50 per cent matching federal and state grants."
The problem in Sunset Beach is that many homes were built in 1906, when the area was served by the old Pacific Electric red cars. Many have been converted into apartments and many have no garages. People used to park on the beach.
Some residents appearing before supervisors Tuesday tried to get rid of the parking meters.

"Remove the meters and allow open parking for all," said Richard Taylor, vice president of the Sunset Beach Community Association.
Rust Fisher, a Sunset Beach resident and Long Beach attorney, contended the permits were proposed after the parking lot was approved by the south coast regional control commission.
Under provisions of the state coastal control law, he said the commission must consider any structure proposed for a beach area, including parking meters.
He asked for an opinion from the state attorney general.

Primary Opponent Claims Briggs 'Hiding' $54,000 Contribution

By DAVE ROSE
Register Staff Writer

William E. (Bill) Schmidt, an opponent of Republican Assemblyman John V. Briggs, Fullerton, in the 69th Assembly District primary, charges that Briggs is "hiding" $54,000 from a fund raising dinner last June.

In letters to State Atty. Gen. Evel Younger and Orange County District Attorney Cecil Hicks, Schmidt is calling for what he calls "an all out legal assault designed to force Briggs to reveal sources of campaign financing as required by state law." Under the Waxman-Dymally Campaign Disclosure Act, Schmidt claims that Briggs has "bragged" to friends that he has a campaign chest in excess of $150,000.

Schmidt says Briggs failed to list all campaign contributions of less than $500, a violation of the state disclosure act in filing his campaign statement on March 1 of this year.

sure the state gets its share of back taxes in the light of the President's recent statement that he will comply with a Congressional committee finding that he owes nearly $500,000 in back taxes.

"Now I'm asking the franchise tax board to hasten its decision (to collect back taxes), and, if necessary, place a lien on the San Clemente property to protect the state's interests," Cory said.

The League of Women Voters hopes to collect 1½ million signatures on a petition calling on Congress to enact what the league calls a "reform system of financing political campaigns." The nationwide campaign, which began Monday, will end April 22, with the results to be announced at the league's national convention in San Francisco May 6.

Purpose of the petition drive, the league says, is to "break the link between big money and politics."

Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-Newport Beach, wants to see the state's temporary 55 mile per hour speed limit made permanent. He's introduced a bill to do just that. The reason, Badham says, is "in response to public acclaim" that the lower speed limit imposed during the fuel shortage, has "greatly reduced traffic fatalities, personal injury and property damage."

Patricia Reilly Hitt, former assistant secretary of Health Education and Welfare during the early years of the Nixon Administration has been named state women's chairman for Republican John G. Veneman's primary campaign for the lieutenant governorship.

Mrs. Hitt, a longtime Orange County active in local politics, is the wife of Bob Hitt, executive assistant to Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton.

Marlin McKeever, GOP primary candidate in the 72nd Assembly District, has named Santa Ana attorney Rodger Howell and George Honold, former Garden Grove mayor, as his co-campaign chairmen.

Lloyd Aubert, a Santa Ana bank official, was named treasurer.

Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield, R-Downey, who is seeking re-election in the 70th Assembly District of Orange County, has introduced a bill that would require approval of a majority of voters in an area proposed for an airport before that airport could be built.

Wakefield said the bill is aimed at the proposed Chino Hills International Airport in northeast Orange County.

Outgoing Assemblyman Ken Cory, D-Garden Grove, wants the State Franchise Tax Board to slap a lien on President Nixon's San Clemente home, charging that board members are "sitting on their hands" in not taking such action.

Cory, who's running for state controller, says he wants to be-

Russia Wooing Uganda With Shipments Of Arms

By K.C. THALER
LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet Union, increasing its influence in Africa, has sent a shipment of arms to Uganda, Moscow's most recent weapons client. Authoritative Western reports said the shipment, including tanks, guns and jet fighters, was unloaded at the Kenyan port of Mombasa and transported overland to Uganda.

Ugandan President Idi Amin welcomed the arrival of the arms as a contribution to "the improvement of the balance of power in Africa," the reports said. The Soviet Union has concentrated its influence in the region so far in northeast Africa's Somalia, where the Russians established a foothold soon after independence in 1960, according to Western informants. The Soviets have consolidated and broadened their investment by building important naval facilities in Somalia after equipping the local army with tanks and warplanes, the sources said. Western diplomats said Somalia was the main center of Soviet maritime activity on the African seaboard of the Indian Ocean—the new major target of Soviet strategy since expanding Russian influence in the Middle East. The Western reports said the arms sent to Uganda were a gift. The Soviet aim was apparently to extend political and military influence in the face of its deepening conflict with Red China, according to Western analysts. Amin originally asked Israel for arms but was refused and later broke with the Jewish state. The reports said he later approached Peking, but Chinese Premier Chou en-lai offered only solidarity with Uganda in "its economic war." The Russians stepped in and several months ago made their first move quietly by sending a small arms shipment, Western diplomatic sources said.

The sources said the Soviets have now moved more openly and more significantly by sending two ships with a variety of arms — armored troops carriers, tanks, anti-aircraft guns, jets and trucks.

Diplomats said the move caused anxiety in countries neighboring Uganda. They said bordering nations suspected Amin of harboring ambitious plans to make Uganda a military power in east and central Africa.

New Tax Law Coming?

Proposals to revise the nation's laws governing taxes on personal income will probably be in vogue in the coming congressional sessions.

Politicians frequently talk about "tax reforms," but that usually is merely a form of headline hunting. We doubt any of them expected any serious action.

But now, the grip of the Internal Revenue Service has encircled the highest elected official in the land, and public attention to this turn of events will surely give the lesser office holders reason for concern.

Republican tax payers who remain steadfast in support of President Nixon will be wondering about the tax returns of Mr. Nixon's critics in the house, senate and in other political positions.

Politicians are the elite of American society. They receive extremely high salaries and "fringe benefits" which, if the same were received by private individuals would be subject to scrutiny by the income tax people.

The spotlight on President Nixon's "underpayment" of more than $400,000 gives the impression, rightly or wrongly, that people in high political office just might be getting less scrutiny by the IRS than do the tax payers in general.

We have noted that the people seem to get upset most about profits they consider "excessive" and about people who pay little or no income tax.

When it was revealed that Gov. Ronald Reagan paid no income tax recently the public outcry was deafening.

Higher profits of oil companies in the last quarter of 1973 almost brought on revolt.

The reaction in neither case was justified, but the emotionalism was a signal to politicians, for emotionalism is the stuff political action feeds upon.

So a new element is injected in political campaigning and in the great game of remaining in office.

The fact of the matter is that there are too many variables in the administration of the income tax laws, and depending upon how the stories are told, a politician can be made to look bad in the public eye if some questions about his payments are raised.

Certainly no one wants to pay more taxes than he is legally obligated to pay, so his tax consultants look for every opportunity to help him avoid taxes. That is quite proper.

But what makes the more affluent, especially politicians, vulnerable to negative public reaction is the fact that the overwhelming majority they have only their wages to report, and the government already has extracted its cut. This generally is more than is actually due, so they get a refund, an effective psychological trick. But when they get the idea that someone else, earning more was paying less, they become upset.

Just how the politicians will handle this new problem remains to be seen, but it is a safe bet they will do their best to eliminate any situation that may provide an opportunity for their opposition and for the tax payers generally to place them in an unfavorable light.

Rights Equal Discrimination?

Some day somebody may invent a game that could be called "philosophical mathematics."

The general idea would be that certain thoughts are equal to certain other thoughts or that they contain certain other thoughts.

This would be a good game for the classroom.

For instance, if you asked high school students whether they believed in equal rights, the probable answer would be a unanimous "yes" or nearly so.

On the other, if you asked the same class whether the members believed in the military draft, the most probable answer would be "no."

Yet, we received a mild shock the other day to read in Erik von Kuehnelt-Leddihn's master study, "Leftism" (Arlington House, 1974), that the draft arises out of the notion of equal rights.

Preposterous?

Well, listen to what Kuehnelt-Leddihn says and express your opinion afterward.

Early conservatives, he stated, were not right "in their gradual acceptance of another evil gift of the French Revolution: conscription. This institution rests on the democratic notion that everybody has the same rights. And people who have the same rights have the same duties."

The revelation poses an interesting dilemma. For if conscription goes back ultimately to the concept of equal rights, then it must be said that the power of old men to send young men off to war is a product of equality before the law; that legal discrimination is the fruit of legal equality; that the human right to life is the means by which political governments obtain the power of death; that the attempt to be fair to all leads to the means by which ultimate unfairness is politically imposed. How can this be? The Register has held, with the Declaration of Independence, that unalienable rights are the fundamental property of each and every man, but that the military draft is a form of involuntary servitude. Yet the author of "Leftism" makes his point impressively. He states further:

"Militarism, as an ism, was really born with the French Revolution, and it is evident that, if a major power introduces conscription, its neighbors, in self defense, have to do the same... Limited wars came to an end with the French Revolution. And since all able-bodied men had to serve, whether they had a natural talent and enthusiasm for war or not, they and their families had to be propagandized and indoctrinated. Now nation was pitted against nation, not merely government against government."

In other words, modern propaganda in all its various forms—the "kept" press, governmental licensing of broadcast media, the political postal system, tax-supported schools—is closely related to the objective of political government to make war acceptable to the masses. (Is it not interesting that Franklin D. Roosevelt, founder of the U.S. postal system, and Jefferson, patron saint of government schools, had close ties with revolutionary France?)

The inherent contradiction between equality before the law and military conscription—which seem to hatch out of the same egg—can be clarified, we believe. The basic error is two-fold. First, you are a citizen of the U.S. because you happen to be born within its territorial limits. Second, you were subject to a military draft whether or not you are a citizen. Few object to citizenship so long as that status conveys privileges only, but when citizenship conveys duties—well, then it's time for a trip to Canada.

The topic merits further discussion, in our opinion. In the meantime, we question (1) whether the location of one's birthplace is an adequate qualification for his American citizenship; and (2) whether citizenship is consent to military service. The reader often has something to say back to us when we submit matters of this kind. We hope that will be the case on the equal rights—citizenship—conscription question.

Question Box

Question No. 2146: 7. What is a fair profit? 8. What is a fair wage? 9. Isn't there some moral obligations due the public by both business and labor in the answer to questions 7 and 8, or should we as a nation operate on the theory that "I'll get mine, you get yours and never mind those who can't afford the cost"? L.W. Bratten, Anaheim.

Answer: We know of no way to determine what is either a fair profit or fair wage other than by a voluntary agreement between two parties. In a free-enterprise economy, two parties to a transaction must agree as to what is a fair price or a fair wage.

Both a buyer and a seller must believe they are gaining from a transaction. The buyer must want the product more than the money, and the seller must want the money more than the product in order for both to profit from the transaction. If there is no third party to the transaction, the profit will be fair in the minds of the parties. The term "fair" has meaning only to the individual himself. It is like beauty, it is in the view of the individual.

The same is true in employer-employee relations. One individual might consider that a dollar was adequate pay for a piece of work. Another might not consider anything less than thousands of dollars to be adequate compensation. An employer naturally will seek to pay no more than necessary for a piece of work, and an employee will seek as much as he can for it. When there is no third-party intervention, an agreement will be reached that is something of a compromise; yet both will consider the transaction profitable or they will not enter the deal. The worker would rather have the money than the time, and the employer would rather have the work done than to hold the money. In the long run, the worker must be able to produce his own wages, or the employer cannot long remain in business and able to hire the work done.

We doubt if the above transactions would fit in the category of "I'll get mine at the expense of all others." Individuals find they must provide a good or a service that others want or they will not long survive in a free-enterprise competitive society.

Certainly self-interest is involved. We know of no one who does not live, act and make choices out of self-interest. He seeks to profit by his activities, whether the profit is monetary or otherwise. The individual who devotes all his or her time to charitable work does so because he or she is happier in that activity than in some other activity. That is what profit is—an increase in happiness.

And a fair profit to one individual may not be considered a fair profit to another. It is attempts by third-party interventionists to determine fair prices, fair profits and fair wages that prevent truly free enterprise.

Peter Principle

According to Peter's Principle, every man, at some time, reaches a plateau at which he works at his peak ability, and then, because of his efficiency at that point, is promoted to the next step where he finds himself struggling beyond his capabilities. However, he is now in a position to hire an assistant to do that portion of his job that he cannot handle.

If one understands this principle, it is almost possible for one to assess a man's incompetence by the number of assistants he has.

How many assistant superintendents do the school districts around here have? And how many assistants do the assistants have?

It's a thought-provoking aspect, isn't it?

'Unfair'

I have some different thoughts on complete amnesty for the Vietnam war avoiders or deserters or those in prison because of their reluctance to serve their country.

The war was purposeless and unfair to all Americans. The military personnel involved in Vietnam were martyrs. The ones who were killed or permanently maimed are to be pitied.

The reason for amnesty is simple. 50 per cent of the U.S. population was not subject to the military draft and did not have to make a choice of serving or skipping; the women. Additionally, millions of young men chose to go to college to get deferments or exemptions from the draft and the threat of Vietnam until the draft ended, and they were safe.

Why should a few thousand men be exiled or imprisoned for not fighting, when a larger percentage of youth (women and male college students) escaped all responsibility and punishment for being legally able to do the same thing?

'Big Race'

Congratulations to Mr. Clay Miller on winning the Outstanding Feature Photography Prize of the National Headliners Club. He deserves this honor for his charming photograph of the "Last Big Race." The picture tells a beautiful story. I do not need to know Mrs. Bernstrauch to realize that children who have had her for a teacher have been very fortunate. Compare this picture with ones we have seen of bedraggled looking teachers on strike, carrying placards and picketing to gain their "rights." To me, the contrast is sad indeed.

'Warned'

Re: Irvine's University High School and drugs, another newspaper said: "The massive operation, believed to be one of the biggest in the state's history, was being handled delicately by police officers who were warned during briefings that the character of the Irvine community made diplomacy imperative."

Just how delicately do you suppose this would have been handled had this happened in Southwest Santa Ana and had the students been from the much defamed Santa Ana Valley High School?

There has been too much criticism of many fine young people working hard to be good students and super athletes.

Trashcan News

I am watching the Republican party die. Why? Because the news media apparently is completely run by the left wing, except perhaps the Freedom papers who seem to dislike both parties.

The Republicans must produce their own newspapers and try to demand some kind of fair break from the FCC or die.

Today, probably 80 per cent of the incoming news stories are tossed into the trash basket. The few men sorting out this news are powerful censors. I would rather read the Washington Post's and the New York Times' trash basket stories than their newspaper any day.

'Blessing'

I believe this is the time for a grass-roots movement to encourage the continuation indefinitely of the 55 mph speed limit on our nation's highways and freeways. The energy crisis has provided at least one significant blessing in disguise. The initial statistics indicate clearly and dramatically that a great many lives can be saved in the future if speed limits are not raised above

House Leftists Seek To Kill Red Quiz, Get Common Cause Aid

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON — Leftist forces in and out of Congress are aggressively waging a covert campaign to scuttle the House Internal Security Committee — whose official function is to investigate and expose subversive, revolutionary, radical and other extremist elements.

Spearheading the high-powered drive is Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., radical priest, militant dove and amnesty advocate, and public clamor for the impeachment of President Nixon—despite being a member of the Judiciary Committee which is supposed to be objectively considering the matter.

Drinan also openly admits he became a member of the Internal Security Committee for the express purpose of destroying it.

Vigorously supporting this attack are a number of activist organizations — foremost among them the American Civil Liberties Union, Common Cause, Americans for Democratic Action, Students for a Democratic Society, Communist Party.

The machinations against the Security Committee are two-pronged:

(1) To strangle it by withholding operating funds. (2) Shifting its functions to another House committee on the ground of "economy" and "efficiency."

Of the two assaults, the second is turning out to be the most threatening.

This is a scheme by the Special Committee on Committees to abolish the Internal Security Committee and transfer its extensive investigating powers to the Government Operations Committee.

The proposal is one of a number of explosively controversial "committee restructurings" recommended by the Committee on Committees, and which will be considered by the full House after the Easter holidays — in what is certain to be one of the stormiest battles of the session.

Chairman of the Committee on Committees is Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., who has long agitated "reorganization" of the House, and is no supporter of the Security Committee.

Outcome of this phase of the double-barreled drive to get rid of the Security Committee is uncertain.

In a large measure it depends on what happens to other hotly disputed plans of the Bolling committee — such as sharply curtailing the jurisdiction and authority of the powerful Ways and Means Committee, headed by Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark.

The veteran legislator has openly declared war on the Bolling Committee, and a furious melee is imminent.

ENCOURAGING START
In the first round of the Security Committee's grim fight for survival, it emerged the victor against an all-out attempt to strangle it by outright cutting off of its annual $475,000 budget.

Noisy working hand-glove with Drinan, mastermind of the assault, were a number of leading militants — prominent among them Reps. Don Edwards, D-Calif., another Judiciary committee man who, like Drinan, is already on record as demanding President Nixon's impeachment; Michael Harrington, D-Mass., an inveterate dove, amnesty clamor and denouncer of the military; Phillip Burton, D-Calif., canny leftist with secret Speaker's aspirations.

While their strident attempt to cut off the Security Committee's purse strings is an old story, added significance attached to it this time because of the Bolling committee's scheme to scuttle the Security Committee by indirection.

The Drinan clique made that crafty scheme their main argument.

"Never before," thundered Drinan after belaboring the Security Committee with shopworn ideological charges, "has the transfer of this committee been recommended by another House committee... The Security Committee is an anachronism. It is a hangover from the era of the cold war. We should defund this committee which is no longer justified."

Drinan and his activist faction were caustically countered by Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., Security Committee chairman, and an impressive bipartisan group — that included Reps. Lamar Baker, R-Tenn., John Hunt, R-N.J., G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., Dan Daniel, D-Va., John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, Roger Zion, R-Ind., Ben Blackburn, R-Ga.

TELLING THEM OFF
Rep. Ichord flatly charged Drinan with "going on the Security Committee for the express purpose of destroying it from within."

Neither Drinan nor his cohorts denied that citing the committee's numerous exposures, particularly of extremist and criminal elements, the latest probe of the Symbionese Liberation Army which kidnapped Patricia Hearst and has a long record of violence and revolutionary lawlessness, Ichord derisively characterized the charges against the committee as "old stuff."

"These arguments have been trotted out year after year," he said, "and they essentially come from the same opposition sources. I would remind this chamber that last August, in a comprehensive report on political kidnappings, this committee warned they could happen in this country, a prediction that unfortunately came true with the kidnapping of Patricia Hearst by the SLA."

"The committee is presently holding hearings on terrorism for the purpose of providing useful recommendations for the executive branch to act on. The committee has also begun an exhaustive review of the law, regulations and practices of the executive branch in the field of domestic intelligence, and this study promises to be one of the most significant undertakings of the committee."

Indirect Thrust at FBI
Rep. Zion, Internal Security committee man, pointedly attributed much of the attack on the panel to Communists.

"I am continually amazed," he told a tensely listening House, "at the efforts put forth by the Communist Party, USA, in its feverish attempts to abolish our committee. This effort is only one ingredient of the party's campaign to render ineffective all governmental anti-subversive agencies, both legislative and executive."

"In recent years, we have seen a campaign of steadily growing momentum, in Congress and in certain segments of the press, that is patently aimed at crippling the FBI and eviscerating the Justice Department's Internal Security Division. It is truly disturbing to note that while the openly terroristic Symbionese Liberation Army is holding Patricia Hearst as a captive, the Internal Security Committee is virtually the only governmental body that can investigate and publicly disseminate hard, documented information on Communists and other subversive activities that are seeking to undermine our system of government."

Significantly, neither Drinan nor any of his radical coterie answered these categorical charges. They bellowed about "attacks on privacy" and compiling "secret dossiers" on thousands of American citizens, but never once challenged the direct attacks on them and their motives in seeking to scuttle the committee.

Which undoubtedly explains why the House overwhelmingly approved the committee's budget 247 to 86.

Curiously, among leftists listed as not voting were Reps. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., one of the most strident militants in Congress, and Ogden Reid, D-N.Y., busily running for his party's gubernatorial nomination — and definitely not getting anywhere.

You won't find a dealer anywhere who has a small car.

Transfer To Federal Pen Endangers James Earl Ray

(Washington Observer)
James Earl Ray, who was convicted of assassinating Martin Luther King in Memphis on April 14, 1968, and sentenced to serve 99 years, is being transferred from the Tennessee State maximum security prison at Nashville to a federal prison. Neither state nor federal officials would explain why. Ray has submitted a brief in his own handwriting opposing the scheduled transfer.

In the Tennessee prison Ray is segregated and guarded by White Southerners. In the federal prisons inmates are integrated. Therefore, Ray will run a high risk of being killed by a Black militant.

Clearing House

The special interest groups may choose to lobby actively to raise the speed limit; I believe we can have faith in the conscientiousness and common sense of most, if not all, of these groups of individuals when they have reflected upon the objective reality and value of the lower speed limit. However, we the people, the tens of thousands more of us who might be killed or maimed in the years ahead if speed limits are raised, simply cannot remain silent on the vital prospect of retaining the 55 mph limit.

In my opinion, something very meaningful can now be done about the shameful rate of automobile fatalities. In this instance, where hardship and a lessening of pleasure are not offsetting considerations of any great magnitude, I trust that economic or self interests, and concerned public opinion, will embrace the wisdom and humanity of a permanently lower speed limit and the saving of lives.

Self-Protection

The little statement above your signature on income tax forms puts the burden of proof on you, and opens your records to IRS.

I crossed out the phrase "under penalty of perjury" and added "My filing and signing this form does not express or imply any waiver of my constitutional rights." If the IRS wants my records, I intend to make them spell out exactly what they want—and give them nothing else.

It's too bad honest citizens need to protect themselves against state and federal booby traps. But I believe they do if they want the same protection criminals get.

James D. Thackrey
Santa Ana

What may have really sparked the sudden decision to shift Ray is that he recently filed a writ for a new trial. Morton has not yet considered the writ and its contents have been released.

Ray's first lawyer was Arthur J. Hanes, an ex-CIA agent and former mayor of Birmingham, Alabama. Hanes recently said that he believed Ray had been a tool either of the CIA or revolutionary groups financed by Cuba or Red China, who had been interested in starting a race war in the United States.

And on the day after the assassination, Stokely Carmichael, who was then the top Black revolutionary leader in the U.S., after waiting all day at his desk at 14th and U Street in Washington, sailed into the street, quickly activated a mob who apparently were awaiting a signal.

Thereupon, he led the mob up 14th Street, looting and burning all the stores. And almost simultaneously riots flared in most of the big cities throughout the country. Damage was estimated at over $100 million. Special high-temperature incendiary chemicals were widely used during the "spontaneous" Martin Luther King riots.

A short time before, F.B.I. agents, who had King under continuous surveillance, filmed the Civil Rights leader at the John F. Kennedy International Airport as he greeted a Russian identified by the FBI as a top Soviet espionage agent and saboteur who was working under a cloak as an attache at the Soviet Embassy at the United Nations.

The reason King was under intensive investigation was that it was known that he was in contact with Soviet agents. King was known as a high liver, sugar daddy to several mistresses, both Negro and White, and when he was awarded the Nobel Prize of $85,000, he went through it in record time. He was putting the bite on his Soviet sponsors for large sums of money to enable him to continue to live in the luxurious style to which he had become accustomed, and when the Russians demurred in meeting his demands, he threatened to squeal. Did the Soviets arrange his assassination?

While in the Memphis jail, awaiting trial, Ray said he had been sent to Memphis by "a blond Latin" whom he knew only as Raul. This statement tends to confirm Mr. Hanes' asserted belief that Cuban revolutionaries may have financed King's assassination. Then as today the Soviets were Castro's paymasters. It may not be purely coincidental that Lee Harvey Oswald and Jack Ruby both had Cuban affiliations, and that Cubans formerly employed by the CIA were in charge of the Watergate burglary and the break-in of Dr.

Fielding's office in Los Angeles.

At this juncture in the Soviet-American detente it has become imperative for the Nixon Administration to take all precautions not to embarrass the Soviets. Would a true confession of Ray involve the Soviets? During his celebrated flight half way across the world after the King murder, Ray flourished in the various countries he touched, a series of cleverly forged passports that he obtained in Canada. No ordinary second-rate bandit would have that kind of connections, but it would have been no problem to the Soviet conspiratorial apparatus. Is Ray being set up as a clay pigeon to silence him?

As long as there are research grants around there will be something funny to write about. We have just been apprised of a grant to measure "bat droppings" in caves....

We know another name for this, but the "scientists" call it "bat guano" so I had better use that phrase. It may look better in print but it don't change the composition....

Anyhow there is this professor who is engaged in his special project of studying bats, and especially bat guano. He has discovered that the guano deposits build up during the course of the season. Depending on the size of the colony and the shape of the cave floor, deposits in some cases may reach depths of 60 to 80 feet! Imagine that.

We should surmise that most anything would be able to build up "guano" to that depth if given enough time in one place, why, even deeper than that, probably!

Another great revelation is that there is a second ecological link in the bat chain—it is the cave beetle. You see, these cave beetles scavenge dead or ill bats which fall to the cave floor.

At the end of the summer, the bats leave the caves and the beetles lay their eggs and the beetle population grows as the number of bats grows. When the bats return the following spring, new beetles have hatched and the cycle is repeated. Amazing!

But wait! What this professor does with the bat guano is to take samples back to college, homogenize it in a blender, and extract protein from it. He then breaks it up into amino acids so he can accurately date it!

We hope he don't pursue the bat guano any further than that as we don't know what he is projecting for the bat protein. But it scares me....

Proposed Agencies 'Costly Duplication'

By Capitol News Service
SACRAMENTO — A proposed Office of Data Processing in the health and welfare agency would be a duplication of existing services already performed by the department of finance "at an unreasonable cost," ac-ording to Assemblyman Vincent Thomas (D-San Pedro), chairman of the state legislative audit committee.

Creation of the office would add $200,000 to the state budget and four new employees, Thomas said, while the department of finance has budgeted $465,472 and 15.5 jobs for a similar state-wide operation.

India's Taboo Against Beef May Be Ended

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The energy crisis may force India to forsake a centuries-old religious taboo and begin exporting beef.

The country is faced with steep hikes in the price of crude oil. Preliminary studies made by the government show there is a heavy demand for beef in the markets of the Middle East and western Europe.

"The markets in the Middle East and west Europe will take in any amount of beef that we are prepared to export," declared a senior government official.

Cows are considered sacred animals in India and cattle slaughter has frequently led to riots in the predominantly Hindu country. The cow is an object of reverence to millions, a provider whose dung is dried and used as cooking fuel.

Eating beef is taboo. Hindu scripture says that those who kill cows will reside in hell for as many years as there are hairs on the body of the animal they slaughter.

Now the increasing bill for oil may force India to face reality and lift the taboo ban on the export of beef.

"There is a ready market out there waiting for India to grab it," a government spokesman said. "We have to make a choice between pragmatism and religion."

"The back of the Indian economy has been broken because of the oil bill, and most of the oil to India comes from the Middle East where the demand for beef is the highest."

"A political decision has to be made on the export of beef. It is too explosive a decision for bureaucrats to take."

Ten of India's 21 states have a total ban on the slaughter of cows. Others have restrictions on it. Commerce Minister D.P. Chatterjee says officials in Kuwait told him that if it were not possible to overcome religious inhibitions, at least India should permit the export of live cattle. But Chatterjee says this would be uneconomical because of freight costs.

Agricultural Ministry statistics show there are at least 230 million cows, bulls and steers in India, highest of any nation in the world and one-fourth of the cattle population of the globe.

"Even if we slaughter and export just eight per cent of the 30 million stray and old cows we can earn about $6.1 billion annually and the by-products will yield another couple of million dollars," one agricultural specialist said. That would nearly balance the annual oil import bill.

Officials here believe that beef could be the single largest foreign exchange earner for India, outstripping the income from jute, tea, textiles, and marine products combined.

Certain Arab sheikhs have offered to build slaughterhouses. Today there is only one modern slaughter house—in Bombay—and the estimated 5,000 others are incapable of meeting health standards.

It is impossible for the non-Hindu mind to comprehend how deep sentiments go on the issue. In 1966, Hindu holymen covered on New Delhi with spears and sticks and stormed Parliament to force a country-wide ban on all slaughter of cattle. Police opened fire and 17 persons were killed.

Hindu priests who receive cattle from wealthy Indians turn them loose. Some are taken to special shelters (there are about 3,000 such shelters in India) which are supported by public funds and charitable institutions.

Piece Work

The first letter carriers authorized by Congress for the United States Post Office Department in 1794 received two cents for each letter they delivered. In 1836 they were allowed another cent. Not until 1863 were mailmen paid salaries.

Thomas, in a letter to Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr. (D-San Francisco), chairman of the ways and means committee, said he feared that "if this new function in the health and welfare agency were to set a precedent for the other three agencies and the state college and university system at approximately the same annual budget a potential expenditure of $1 million annually may develop."

"The most significant difference found between the Health and Welfare Consolidated Data Center and the proposed Office of Data Processing is that the primary function of the data center was the consolidation of hardware and operation."

"The newly proposed office would not have the consolidation of hardware or personnel as a function or goal," Thomas declared.

He said that along with the state auditor general, that "data processing should be adequately serviced by existing staff organizations and control of the Office of Data Processing would duplicate these services."

Police Brutality Claim Denied By HB Councilmen

HUNTINGTON BEACH—The city council has denied a $9.6 million damage claim filed by six persons who charge that police assaulted them in an incident Dec. 8.

Drug charges against the six were dropped Jan. 16 in municipal court, Westminster, after the court granted a defense attorney's motion to suppress evidence on the grounds that it was obtained improperly.

The six were arrested at 205 15th St. and charged with possession of marijuana. Their claim charged the police assaulted them both verbally and physically.

The claimants are Donald Ashcraft, 21, of South Lake Tahoe; Steve Pedrosian, 21, Vernon Calderon, 21 and Dave Odkel 20, all of Fountain Valley, and Lynne Reed, 18 and John Thomsen, 18, both of Huntington Beach. Each is asking $1.6 million.

2.5-Acre Lots To Be Minimum For Capo Area

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO — The city council has voted to further restrict the density of nearly 60 acres off Ortega Highway from an earlier stated 2.5 acre per lot average to a 2.5 acre per lot minimum.

Councilman Douglas Nash Monday proposed to "clarify" the council's intent and spell out in the ordinance that was up for second reading, that the 2.5 acre per lot would be a "minimum."

The council agreed except for Councilman James Weathers, who said it would be very difficult for the developers to be tied to such a restriction since some lots be rendered "undevelopable."

Stanton Signs OC Police Pact

STANTON—City involvement in a countywide system for maintaining police records has been approved by the council.

The records system would be coordinated through the Santa Ana police department. The program depends upon a federal grant of $250,000, to be matched by state funds of $13,890 for the first year.

City councilmen approved participation in the project at a city cost of $216 for the first year.

A 'Tastebud Transplant' For Fattening Food Fans

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Can you really change your taste in food? After 10, 20 or 40 years of turning thumbs down on vegetables and nose up at fish, can you develop a passion for perch or an addiction to artichokes? After a lifetime of rich eating, is it thinkable that one day certain foods will strike you as sickeningly sweet or nauseatingly greasy?

Yes, you can change your taste in food. In fact, changing one's tastes is the secret behind all winning losers.

Back when I was 200-plus, I made a point of questioning people who had lost weight. Invariably they told me how they "learned to like" crisp salads and fresh fruit, unsweetened coffee and seafood. The phrase had a suspicious ring to it.

How does one "learn to like" low-cal food? Not for one minute could I believe that anyone actually chose broccoli, asparagus and flounder, not when there were chocolate donuts, Danish pastry and pizza.

Years later I succeeded in shedding 80 pounds and finally discovered that these people weren't kidding. A peak-of-perfection peach beats a Ring Ding any day. One sun-ripe tangerine is worth a carload of potato chips. Keep your greasy cheeses and dips. Show me where the chipped shrimp are.

Consider the 40-year-old man who has just discovered seafood. He hasn't touched fish since age 10. Now, finally, he finds flounder delicious. Soon he will go on to try lobster, crabmeat, scallops... even raw oysters! The seas are alive with savory delights awaiting exploration. For him, food has become an adventure to be embraced instead of a temptation to be resisted.

We "fat people" generally like heavy, sweet, starchy, greasy fare while the "naturally" slender seem to possess an affinity for fresh fruits and vegetables, big tossed salads, poultry and seafood.

If only science could figure out a way to transplant tastebuds. Perhaps a skinny friend could will you her palate — and preference for watermelon over seven-layer cake!

Here's how you can perform your own "tastebud transplant":

—Vow now to try all the foods you decided you didn't like before you knew how to tie your own shoes.

—Never refuse something new because you're afraid you may not like it. If you don't, so what! If you do, you've made a new "food friend."

—If you don't like something, try it again in a new form.

—Make a list of vegetables, from artichokes to zucchini, and try a new one every day.

—Become a world traveler in your kitchen! figure out ways to decolorize foreign dishes based on non-fattening foods.

—If you don't like a vegetable cooked, try it raw... or vice versa. Have you ever eaten raw asparagus, or celery simmered in tomato sauce?

—Don't let family members food-narrowmindedness keep you from experimenting. Make it, even if it's "just" for you. You can always freeze the extras!

For new ways with vegetables and diet tips, send a stamped self-addressed envelope and 25 cents to SLIM GOURMET VEGETABLE IDEA, in care of The Register, 50 West Shore Trail, Sparata, N.J. 07871.

Will Name Be Unique Or Traditional?

By CAROLYN COIL

Copley News Service

"Honey, if our baby is a boy, I want to name him Horace after my father," says Mary, clasping her hands over her bulging waist.

"Oh, no, we're not," says Bill emphatically. "No kid of mine is going to be named Horace. I want to call him John."

"Not John!" says Mary, wrinkling up her nose. "There are too many Johns in the family now."

Months later, when the doctor says, "You have a son," Mary and Bill still haven't agreed on a name.

While some parents spend the entire nine months before their baby is born arguing over names, others use the time to create a unique name for their baby.

When Mrs. Guy Laverty was pregnant with Cambra Irene, her husband put letters together to form a pleasant-sounding name that was unusual.

"We wanted a name that would go well with our last name and not be too different," says Mrs. Laverty.

Cambra was given Irene as a middle name after her mother.

Mrs. Robert Brown says she picked her daughter's name from the Bible. Melea is the third member of her family whose name was taken from the third chapter of Luke.

"My name is Janna and my sister's is Rhessa," says Mrs. Brown. "We both love our names and would never want to change them."

She says she always has had trouble with people misspelling Janna, but she likes being the only person she knows with her name.

Her daughter's middle name is Janene. Mrs. Brown says it just seemed to pop into her head.

"We wanted a Swedish name to go with our last name which is Swedish," says Mrs. Steve Ek.

She says she and her husband were careful to choose a name that would have a pleasant sound because people usually mispronounce their last name as Eek.

"I asked my husband's Swedish grandmother for ideas and she suggested Dagmar," says Mrs. Ek. "I liked the name, but I changed the spelling to Dagnye. I found her middle name which is Adina in a baby name book."

Mrs. Ek says if she has another daughter she will try to find a special name for her, but if she has a son, she probably will pick a common name.

Each family has its own reasons and traditions for choosing a child's name.

While some parents are happy with uncommon names or unusual spellings, others prefer to name their children after relatives.

George and Jan Jarvie of San Diego, say if they have children they probably will choose something simply like Bill for a boy or Mary for a girl.

George and Jan say they are a typical couple. He's husky, 6 foot 4, 230 pounds and a professional boat builder. She's a slim housewife and a working girl.

They're typical—except for their names.

She's George.

He's Jan.

In the five years they've been married the confusion has been endless. Jan Jarvie still refuses to call his wife by her given name, which actually is spelled Jorj.

Jarvie was named for a Finnish ancestor.

His wife says jokingly that her name was made up by a very odd mother who couldn't think of anything else.

"To this day, we have to fight to get Jan listed as a husband on credit applications and me as the wife," says George. "The nieces and nephews have a terrible time with Uncle Jan and Aunt George, but they're finally getting it."

Some persons aren't able to laugh about mixups caused by their unusual names as easily as the Jarvies do.

"Tell the child the meaning of his name and the tradition behind it," suggests Sue Browder, who has written "The New Age Baby Name Book."

If your child knows why he was given his name it will be more meaningful because it doesn't reveal the child's has two children and lives in Connecticut.

She says she named her 7-month-old daughter Rin because it means peace. A second reason she likes the name is because it doesn't reveal the child's sex.

"I've often wished when filling out a job application that my name didn't reveal I was a woman," says Ms. Browder.

Her 3-year-old son, Dustin, was named because she and her husband Walt like the name.

Dustin is German for a fighter, Ms. Browder says.

"It probably is gaining in popularity in the United States because of the actor Dustin Hoffman."

There are more than 3,000 unusual symbolic, creative names in her baby name book. She has included traditions behind many ethnic names, plus suggestions for creating new names.

"It's a trend to seek names with deep personal meanings for the parents, and ultimately, of course, for the child," says Ms. Browder.

The trend is expressed by names like Tamera, Tasha, Shalee, Tabitha, Kendra, Jedidiah, Jermain, Tywon, Tinika, Alis, Nofretete, Destrea, Darshon and Damien, all recorded recently at hospitals.

Former Countian Scores A First In Acupuncture

A former Orange County businesswoman has become the first woman chiropractor in the United States to be certified to practice acupuncture. She is Dr. Jackie Bartels, now of Carlsbad.

For several years before moving to Carlsbad, she operated Jackie's Business Services in Anaheim. During that time, she was active in civic and professional organizations in the community.

The Acupuncturist Certification was conferred upon Dr. Bartels recently by the Columbia Institute of New York after she had trained under Dr. V.L. Bridges of Battle Creek, Mich., a veteran student and practitioner of acupuncture. He began the study of acupuncture in 1947 in Tsingtao, China.

The form of acupuncture practiced by Dr. Bartels—electrical acupotherapy—does not involve the use of needles which puncture the skin, she pointed out. The procedure, which uses a micro meter, measures resistance to electrical stimulation and diagnoses body imbalances by stimulating the acupuncture points without the use of needles. The instrument used in the diagnosis is also used in therapy.

Dr. Bartels graduated from Cleveland Chiropractic College in Los Angeles two years ago. The mother of three children, she said she had to wait "until I raised my family before I could finish my professional training."

Despite her success in a profession dominated by men, Dr. Bartels is by no means a women's liberator. "I like being a woman and I like being treated as one," she said. "But, if I, or any other woman, can do the same work as a man, then I think we should be paid the same as a man," she declared.

She is a member of the American, the California and the San Diego County Chiropractic Associations, the Parker Research Foundation, Acupuncture Society of America, American Council Carlsbad Business and Professional Women, and the Oceanside-Carlsbad Soroptimist Club, and is a Diplomate of the National Board of Chiropractic Examiners.

Hepburn, King Named Women Of The Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Katharine Hepburn and Billie Jean King were among the eight women of achievement honored in last night's telecast, "Women of the Year, 1974," broadcast from Lincoln Center.

The women, selected by ballot by the readers of the Ladies Home Journal, were:

—Katharine Hepburn, actress.
—Barbara Walters, television moderator.
—Billie Jean King, tennis champion.

—Rep. Martha Griffiths (D-Mich.), sponsor of the equal rights amendment.

—Patricia Roberts Harris, attorney and former U.S. ambassador to Luxembourg.

—Dorothy Height, president of the National Council of Negro Women.

—Barbara McDonald, consultant on early childhood education.

—Dr. Dix Lee Ray, first woman chairperson of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The one-hour presentation was moderated by Bess Myerson, former consumer affairs commissioner.

Each of the women was given a gold pin of a sunburst designed by Tiffany, and among the presenters were Clare Boothe Luce, Cher Bono, Eunice Shriver and Dr. Virginia Apgar.

Some 3,000 invited guests were invited to the black-tie event.

Masculine Ring

Bracelets for men continue to make a strong showing. The look of solid silver circling his wrist may become a classic, pleasing the most masculine man.

SAFEI — Mrs. Morton Chase arrives home safely with a hook slide, escaping the tag of Mrs. Gerald Moe, left. Assisting in the attempted run down is Mrs. Norman Chambers. The three women are not sliding in their support of the West Garden Grove Pony-Colt League. As members of the Pony-Colt Auxiliary they have been planning the Saturday, April 13, dinner dance to support the league. The dance will be in the Inn of Tomorrow in Anaheim from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Tickets are available from league members or at the door. Mrs. Moe is treasurer of the auxiliary, Mrs. Chambers is on the dance committee and Mrs. Chase is president.

Men's Feet Are Going Wild With New Spring Sock Colors

By RICH SEELEY
Copley News Service

The peacock look in men's fashion is reaching its bottom line—the All-American foot.

Unless you put your foot down soon, Mr. Conservative, you are going to find some wild things going on below your ankles.

This spring, say the fashion monarchs of New York, you will see the end of the plain dark socks.

Bright colors and crazy quilt designs will be all the rage.

Argyles and plaids will be about as conservative as you can get.

Men's stores are already stocking lots of these as well as a few wilder ones featuring stars and stripes and Mickey Mouse.

Those kinky designs are for the up-and-coming young man balancing themselves precariously on two-inch platform tri-color shoes.

To kick, as it were, this spring trend off—many stores are carrying socks with a heart pattern.

There are white socks with little red hearts and bright red socks with little white hearts.

They're the perfect gift item for the woman who wants to get something for her man but doesn't want to put a lot of thought into it.

Of course, there's always the risk that her man won't want to put his foot into it.

But, after all, men in romantic merry old England wore heart designs on their shirt sleeves and from that custom we get the expression: "He wears his heart on his sleeve."

Maybe these socks will lead to an expression like: "He wears his heart on his foot."

And the new trend is for the wild socks to match shirts, ties and other accessories.

This whole color crazy trend could lead to a lot of men taking up darning to try and keep their plain dark socks in running order until the fashion czars declare that the peacock look is a dead bird.

Episcopal Group Meets April 15

The Women's Auxiliary of All Saint's Anglican Episcopal Church will meet Monday, April 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Rose Carricker, 1237 E. Monroe Ave. Orange. Mrs. Ann Calenda will be co-hostess.

Special business for the meeting will be election of officers. Mmes. Calenda, Wesley Toy and Robert Hoag are on the nominating committee.

After the business meeting, members will make Easter baskets for distribution to convalescent homes.

FASHIONED By Marge Luenson For The Home Seamstress

We gave a lecture last week at Golden West College to a charming group of women enrolled in a series entitled "Discovery Unlimited" conducted by Connie McCausland.

They attend one morning each week to participate in activities and lectures of concern to vital, energetic women.

I had a ball talking to this vivacious bunch. Their questions were typical of those I get from active women who want to dress well but don't want to make a full time hobby of clothes.

Answers or comments from any columnist must always be received as the personal opinion of the writer. They are not pronouncements from ON HIGH. If you have good taste and intelligence you can sort out all the ridiculous statements you hear and read from so called "Fashion Experts" and come up with a realistic conclusion which relates to your own lifestyle.

Questions I am most often asked concern wearing long dresses and pants. Below are my opinions on the two subjects.

LONG DRESSES: They will stay in fashion because women love them, and so do men. When a designer is quoted as saying that long dresses, or anything else for that matter, will not be worn this season, you can interpret as follows: "I did not include long dresses in this collection so I hope my customers are not wearing them."

My own feeling is that they are lovely, comfortable and practical. Wear them in the home for entertaining or guesting. They are good for church, especially if you hold small children. Do not confuse the casual country dress with formal attire. The casual dress is of a cotton, blend or full finished fabric. It has sleeves, usually a high neck, is a few inches off the floor, is youthful and refreshing. If your long dress has a low neck, no sleeves, is of a shiny or slinky fabric, it is not intended for day wear. For spectator sports, shopping, or street wear, for the long look, it should be a skirt of a tweed, check, plaid or textured fabric worn with sweaters or casual type tops, a substantial shoe or boot and be ankle length for easy walking.

PANTS: Women will never give them up, but as with any fashion, the slobs ruin it. If you are going to live in pants you need a wardrobe as extensive as your dress wardrobe used to be. You need a pants suit with a beautifully tailored jacket, well fitted slacks and coordinated accessories. This will take you any place in the daytime in good taste. I personally think they don't belong in church, but that is because I know that as soon as they are allowed, the slobs will arrive in dirty blue jeans. It is a demonstration of respect to dress up for church as it is for any special occasion.

You need several pant sets for casual dressing, shopping, meetings, etc. Have dressy pants with full legs for parties. You need well coordinated grubbies for daily work. You need substantial covered up shoes or sandals with wide straps for day wear and more delicate sandals or shoes for evening. Day wear pant suits look best with a shoulder bag scaled to your size. Evening pants call for a small envelope bag.

Coats for pants should come to the crotch in front. If they are too long they shorten your leg and you resemble a midge walking in a trench. I personally don't like shawls, but if you do, wear them with flair, not life a refugee.

Fashion should be fun and would be a lot more so if the self-appointed "experts" were not always bolstering their own frail egos by giving us their opinions of what we are supposed to do with our money and our life-style and passing it off as irrefutable law.

Line Gives Pantsuit Sleek Look

If you wear half sizes and would like to look sleeker in a pantsuit, plan to sew Printed Pattern A659 by Harwyn. Princess lines plus the in-and-out belt plus proportion know-how accomplish diminishing wonders. It's all sleek shaping with no extra bulk anywhere—the pocket flaps are purely decorative. The well-cut pants are topped by an elasticized waist for easy, comfortable fit. The original is a vacation-practical polyester blend. Consider also Dacron-cotton or an all-seasons knit.

Printed pattern A659 is available in half sizes 10½, 12½, 14½, 16½, 18½, 20½. Size 14½ (bust 37) requires 3½ yards 60-inch.

Please send $1.25 for Printed Pattern A 659 to The Register Pattern Department, P.O. Box 59, Old Chelsea Station, New York, N.Y. 10011. (Add 25 cents for each pattern for first class mail and special handling.) Please print plainly your name, address with zip, style number and size.

Choose your next great fashions from our new 1974 prominent designer book! Use the free 50 cent coupon inside for any printed pattern. Choose from the newest day and evening dresses, pantsuits, sweater looks, jumpers, jackets, skirts, costumes—even men's styles. Misses', half sizes. Send 50 cents now for book 29.

Sew and knit book includes basic tissue pattern adjustable for sizes 10-20; 40, 42. Sew a complete wardrobe—dresses, gowns, blouses, skirts, jackets, more! Then, go on to knit another complete wardrobe. Hurry, send $1.25 now.

Good News

Believe it or not — skinny is out! This is the latest consensus of top fashion designers, writers for fashion publications and fashionable women, who say they are all feeling better with a few extra, but not overweight, pounds. Experts now feel excessive thinness detracts from your looks as you get older.

Zetas To Light Ritual Candles

A candlelight pledge ceremony and ritual of roses will be on the program of the Tuesday, April 16, meeting of Alpha Zeta Chapter, Kappa Phi Sigma Sorority.

The 7:30 p.m. meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Karl Fleck, 11622 Faye Ave., Garden Grove. Chapter officers will be elected for the 1974-75 year, and Mrs. Enid Earl will give a report on the Easter bingo party for "The Villa" Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center in Santa Ana.

Alpha Zeta members and rushers will attend the Sunday, April 28, spring social of the sorority in the El Adobe, San Juan Capistrano. Cocktails will be at 11:30 a.m. with lunch served at 12:30 p.m. Highlight of the afternoon will be the presentation of The Presidents award to one woman who has done outstanding work in the sorority.

FIRST LOVE — Wearing a floral headpiece in the theme of "First Love," Mrs. Philip A. Thompson of Huntington Beach captured the President's Trophy at the recent Las Floristas 36th Annual Floral Headdress Ball in Century Plaza Hotel, Century City. Roma's Flowers in Pasadena designed the headdress which featured two pink love birds in a lacey-patterned cage. Thousands of white and pink vanda orchids, cattleya orchids, phalaenopsis, gypsophila, pink sweetheart roses and carnation and gladiolus petals were used in the construction of the pink and white creation.

Sears Highway Passenger Tire Guarantee

If you do not receive the number of miles specified because of your tire becoming unserviceable due to (1) defects, (2) normal road hazards, or (3) tread wear-out, We will: At our option, exchange it for a new tire or give you a refund charging in either case only the proportion of the then current selling price plus Federal Excise tax that represents mileage used. If the tire is unserviceable due to any of the above causes before 10% of the guaranteed mileage is received, the replacement or refund will be made with no charge for mileage received. Nail punctures will be repaired at no charge. Guarantee applies to tires on vehicles used for private family purposes.

Battery Guarantee
Free replacement within 90 days of purchase if battery proves defective. After 90 days we will replace it with a new battery if defective charging only for the period of ownership. Your monthly charge will be computed by dividing the current selling price less trade-in at the time of return by the number of months of guarantee.
